In a large eastern city is a professional hypnotist who has a wide reputation for curing the habit of intemperance. His method is dirt simple. There is no real hypnotism about it -unless it is a matter of self hypnotism," this professor once said. simply observe the mind process of the man that drinks and advise him how to reverse it. The subconscious soliloguy in the mind of the man that drinks runs something like this: When did I have my last ball? Whew! Long as that! I don't see how

KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

This Parisian Beggar Realized the Value of New Shoes. Begging has long been a great art in Europe. By using subtle touches of misery and calculated effects of disease and dismemberment the beggar became a master of pathetic appeal.

A delightful story of Dupre, the sculptor, is quoted by Hamilton W. Mable in the Outlook. Looking out of his window in a hotel one bleak wintry morning in the good old times. Dupre saw an old beggar sitting barefooted on the stone steps below. His heart was moved with compassion, and he began to search for a pair of shoes. He found two pairs, one of them new. "Do not give the new pair away;

you will need them yourself," urged his prudent wife. "No," said the sculptor, "I shall find the old pair more comfortable. Moreover, if I am to give anything away I am going to give the best I have." So he hurried downstairs and put the new shoes in the hands of the barefooted old man. The next morning the beggar sat on the steps as usual, and, as usual, his feet were bare. Dupre hurried down to him. "Where are the shoes I gave you? You are not wearing them," he said. "No," replied the old man, "I could not wear them, excellency. If I did nobody would give me anything. I have pawned them."
