Winter and Marriage.
"Marriage licenses are not in demand at present, only one having been issued this week, says an exchange. As the weather grows colder there will probably be a marked increase in the demand. Fo some reason the bleak barren days o early winter cause a sense of loneliness to they barter to take to themselves a part ner to shorten the dreary hours and mak the blazing hearth seem brighter while the chilly rain beats upon the window pane and the downy snowflake descend gently to mother earth or is sent swirling across the barren plain by the ever-re curring blizzard. In the spring, man i inspired by the animation which pervade everything, feels his ability to battle with the world and takes not to himself a mat as do birds of the air and beasts of the field."
