PLATT OPENS FIRE.

The New York Republican Leader Begins Work.

CAMPAIGN WIDE OPEN AT GOTHAM.

Comments and Criticisms on Cleveland's Letter and Hill's Speech—Whitelaw Reid, Warner Miller and Depew Also on the List of Speakers—Resolutions Adopted—Democracy Has a Day Out at Shelbyville, Ind.—Eight Stands for Speakers and a Feast of Barbecued Beef—A Great Attendance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The first big Republican meeting of the campaign was held last night at Cooper Union. The news that ex-Senator Warner Miller, ex-Senator Platt, Chauncey M. Depew and Whitelaw Reid were to speak attracted a large crowd. The speakers arrived at about 8:30 o'clock, escorted by the Lincoln Pioneer corps of the Eighth assembly district. Their reception was most enthusiastic. Depew entered first, followed by Reid, Miller, Platt, Marshall Jacobus, William Brookfield, Elihu Root, and other notable men in the party. As soon as they were seated Brookfield, chairman of the Republican state committee, stepped to the front and presented as the presiding officer the Hon. Thomas C. Platt. Platt was received with applause.

Not a Prodigal Son.

As soon as the applause subsided Platt addressed the audience for its warm reception and said he must protest against being stigmatized as a prodigal son. He was a Republican and never expected to be anything else. He then referred to the lively contest which took place at the last convention between the friends of the different aspirants for the presidential nomination, and continuing said: "Only two conventions have occurred since the republic was founded in which the fiercest strife has not been engendered and these were the conventions which nominated for the second time the father of his country, George Washington, and the savior of his country, Ulysses S. Grant. [Applause.] The Republicans who supported the different candidates at Minneapolis have nothing for which to apologize."

Tributes to Blaine and McKinley.

"Any one of them is qualified to rule this nation in the darkest hour of trial or in the golden day of its prosperity. [Applause.] Contemplate the illustrious trio and mark well these remarkable men. There was the champion of the great principle of protection to American industries, a statesman who has weighed in balance and never found wanting; a Republican, tried by every test and as true as the steel of a Damascus blade, Ohio's favorite son and governor, William McKinley, Jr. [Applause.] Grandly as ever looked up in the list the stalwart form of the man whose name has stirred the hearts of millions of Republicans throughout the land as they have been inspired by no man of his generation. You anticipate his name and I need hardly mention James G. Blaine, of Maine. [Applause.]

The Man Who 'Got There.'

"But a majority of the convention decided that he who four years ago rescued the nation from Democratic misrule, who during the years of his incumbency had so faithfully borne the Republican standard, and whose administration had so signally promoted national prosperity, should lead us again to victory, and Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, became the Republican nominee. [Applause.] The Democratic convention at Chicago denounced the McKinley tariff as a cheat and fraud, denied the government the right to protect the working men, threw the plank of tariff reform overboard to the fishes, and substituted another plank sawed out long ago by the late Samuel J. Tilden, viz: 'Tariff for revenue only.' On that plank the Republican party joins issue with the Democracy. [Applause.]

CRITICISM OF CLEVELAND.

Remarks on the Letter of Acceptance—References to the "Force" Bill.

"Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Hill agree in declaring that protection is a cheat, but neither of them dares indorse absolute free trade, so they are both compelled to repudiate the platform and straddle the issue. In his letter of acceptance Mr. Cleveland has been forced to wrestle with a condition, not a theory, viz: he has been forced to spit upon the platform and exhortate as a consistent Democrat. [Laughter.] There are other conditions that are not theories to which he neglected to address himself. For instance one of the vital questions, which cannot be ignored, and which is deeply agitating the Democratic 'machine' politician of the state and the nation, is whether it is ordained that the Mugwump tail shall wag the Democratic dog. [Laughter.]

Comment on Peck and Dann.

"Again, he overlooked that embarrassing condition which was embodied in the recent report of that excellent Democratic official known as the commissioner of statistics of labor. He should have definitely settled the question whether Peck should be crucified to appease the wrath of the free trade Mugwumps and thus be put on the list of martyrs to the holy cause of protection. He has been driven to embrace the tariff ideas of his arch enemy and to humiliate the party by the imaginary issue of the journalistic statesman who has stigmatized him as 'a stuffed prophet.' In the expressive language of that same Democratic oracle, 'the tariff part of Mr. Cleveland's letter is full of carefully considered maxims, and is as elastic as caoutchouc.' [Laughter and applause.]

A Ray at the Mugwumps.

"For the future the party of Andrew Jackson, John C. Calhoun, James Buchanan, and David B. Hill may be considered as relieved from the necessity and trouble of holding national conventions. A self-constituted committee of all all-wise Mugwumps can be relied upon to furnish the candidate, and their candidate will never fall to be a platform unto himself. [Laughter.] Platt then went on to define the position of the Republican party on money and reciprocity, and to say a few words in regard to the 'force' bill.

A Forced and Fictitious Issue.

Of the 'force' bill question Platt said: 'Democratic newspapers have persistently for months past spread through their columns all sorts of incendiary appeals and bogus information in regard to this alleged force bill. There has never been a force bill which was endorsed by the Republican party, and the information furnished on that subject is of the character of the cable despatches of interviews with Bismarck and the imaginary discoveries in the geography of Mars. The issue is forced, fictitious and fraudulent. The Republican party will not condone political fraud and theft, no matter by whom committed, whatsoever his name and howsoever high sounding his title. The senate of New York has been stolen from the electors of this state and those who committed the crime have been rewarded by high official station.' Platt was cheered vociferously as he closed.

Resolutions Adopted.

Chairman Brookfield then read a list of vice presidents including Levi P. Morton, Depew, Evarts, Bliss, Choate, Pierpont Morgan, and others, and introduced Elihu Root, who read a set of resolutions setting forth that the Republicans of New York declare 'their devotion to the principles, their pride in the record, and their confidence in the future of the Republican party; reciting the wise laws honestly and ably administered under Republican rule; the advantages accruing to the country under the Republican policy of protection and reciprocity; and contrasting the definite and certain presentation of the policy of the administration and the results of Republican government in President Harrison's admirable letter of acceptance with the vague and meaningless generalities by which the Democratic candidate seeks to commend himself. The resolutions were enthusiastically received and adopted unanimously.

Whitelaw Reid Speaks.

Whitelaw Reid next spoke, saying that following as he did Platt and Brookfield, and to be followed by Miller, Depew, and Hiseock, his speech was already made, and he took the opportunity of his life for silence. He then eulogized the administration, and thought that the question whether the country would abandon the benefits thereof depended much on whether the Republicans of New York did their duty. He believed they would, and urged them to justify his belief. At the close of Reid's speech Platt introduced Warner Miller, remarking that there was harmony everywhere in the party. 'Nobody tonight is outside the breastworks,' Miller made an extended speech, and after other short addresses the meeting adjourned with cheers for the ticket.

MEETING IN INDIANA.

The Shelbyville Democratic Barbecue a Success.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Sept. 29.—Delegations of Democrats from all the neighboring counties and from parts of the state still further away, also from numerous points in Ohio: a splendid day as to weather and the outpouring of about every Democrat in this country made the great political barbecue here yesterday a red letter affair in Democratic history. How many people there were is a matter of speculation or party enthusiasm, but there were enough to surround eight speaking stands at once, while the throngs that could not get near enough filled the rest of the fair grounds.

There Was Plenty of Beef.

Thirty fat cattle had been slaughtered and cut into quarters and eighths. Each of the fourteen townships in Shelby county donated one animal for the feast. Terre Haute sent another, neighboring towns shipped in hogs and sheep, then the committee bought the rest, and put all the barrels in town at work to turn out 4,000 loaves of bread. As a consequence the floral hall at the fair grounds resembled the commissary department of a standing army. The beef was roasted in three trenches, each nearly thirty feet long and eight feet deep, and half full of live coals. This abundance of food was distributed upon sixty-five tables each sixty feet long.

A Long List of Speakers.

Among the speakers were Adlai E. Stevenson, L. T. Neal (of Ohio), Representatives Holman and Cooper, Senator Turpie, J. G. Shanklin, Representative Bynum, ex-Governor Gray, J. A. McKenzie (of Kentucky), J. W. Kern (of Indianapolis), A. G. Smith (candidate for attorney general) and others. The tariff was discussed at every stand, and there were always great audiences at each. Those who got tired of listening giving up their places to others, eager to hear. The crowds were full of enthusiasm and all the speakers were loudly cheered.

The Guest of the Day.

The guest of the day was Stevenson. He arrived at 11 o'clock a. m. and after lunch at the Ray House was escorted to the fair grounds by a procession two miles long. He spoke to 10,000 people, according to one estimate. After the speaking he held an informal reception at the Ray House. At night it was a continual reception, thousands calling on the vice presidential candidate to shake his hand. He left for his home at Bloomington, Ill., at 11 p. m.

Scenes in the Evening.

Shelbyville was packed with people during the evening. The town was brilliant with thousands of fireworks, and ringing with the music of bands and the tramp of marching. Features of the procession and the main display were a delegation of 'Uncle Sams' from Indianapolis, dressed in the stars and stripes, each wearing a long goatee; and Frank Wilson's regiment of Democratic soldiers, 800 strong, in uniform. It was late ere the streets were free from shouting throngs.

A FIGHT OVER A TICKET.

The Democratic Ticket of Colorado in Some Doubt.

DENVER, Sept. 29.—An application was filed yesterday afternoon in the district court for an injunction restraining Secretary of State Easton from receiving and filing the McDaniel's certificates, being what is known as the Cleveland and Stevenson electoral ticket, pending the hearing of an application for a mandamus compelling the filing of the certification of the O'Donnell ticket, which is known as the Weaver and Field electoral ticket, the secretary of state having announced that the McDaniel's certificates represented the regular Democratic ticket and would be so accepted by him. The case will be carried to the supreme court. Temporary injunction was granted.

Gov. Boies on the Stump.

GLENWOOD, Ia., Sept. 29.—Governor Boies addressed more than 3,000 people assembled in the courthouse yard in this city yesterday, making an elaborate enunciation of the Democratic platform and policy, especially with reference to the tariff.

Can't Find Time to Run.

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 29.—Hon. Charles S. Lilly, nominated for attorney general Tuesday by the Democratic state convention, will decline owing to pressure of his law business.

Cleveland Going to New York.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Sept. 29.—Cleveland left Gray Gables this afternoon by the Fall River line for New York.

Ticket Brokers Win a Victory.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Indictments against thirteen ticket brokers charged with violating the law prohibiting brokerage in railway tickets were quashed in Judge Tuthill's court yesterday morning on the ground that the law is unconstitutional.

The Weather We May Expect.
