progressive element of China. Instead of the rich silken robes which have been the traditional garb of Chinese ministers, Mr. Shah's picture shows he has adopted the convention-al costume of the western world. He is shown in the usual freek coat of diplomacy, and without any of the characteristics of the old regime. Offletals in Washington have seen in the past the changes from the ways of the east to those of the west, on the part of the Japanese, later the Koreans, and now the Chinese. It will be one of the first occasions when conventional garb of the westers
