

The hand-writing on the wall

INTO the fabric of the world's concern the word of a little Welshman spun a golden thread of hope—the United States has never been defeated.

For one brief count at least a monarch paused in his mad enterprise as fact took form in prophecy.

The United States has never been defeated. That is hand-writing of inexorable fact to hearten nations, stricken and oppressed, and that shall again be fact carved into the arch of victory through which will lead the path of peace.

For as you inscribe your name upon that application blank for Liberty Bonds to-day yours is the determined hand that writes upon the wall "the United States has never been defeated—and shall not be defeated now."
