WHY IS IT?

First Prise to the Chronicle Reader Who Farnishes a Correct Answer.

A few years ago a certain farmer ved fifty miles from the neares own. He had no market in which sell or buy. It did not concerin what was the price of wheat reors, or pork in the markets of to world. He raised a supply o con motton, beef, poultry and egeables. He raised his own orses and cattle. The family icked the seed with their hand on the cotton by the fireside after pper-the good wife spun, wove. stand made the garments for a men children. Once a year a adef hides, borns, turkeys and by taluable truck was carried jules to town and sold in reh for coffee, sugar, and a new bottwo. The farmer used to es, with satisfaction, that he duo man anything, that he had ed a large family of healthy and daughters, and was in good condition and he had a fine lot of stock. imuple of miles of the farm. Is. The old farmer was now in with the outside world; the alt was that in ten years his was mortgaged, he ceased to and wheat, and kept well inabout the markets of the Our question is this:

road; but in his missuse of a good thing. 1. He began to buy his fertilizers.

instead of making his own manure, 2. He awoke to a strange desire to handle more ready money. Money is a magic wand. Most men much A full and Complete stock of everyprefer to manipulate something by which they can realize twenty-five dollars and buy a barrel of flour, a couple of turkeys, one hundred pounds of pork, and ten pounds of butter than to produce on the farm the same things to the amount of thirty dollars!

3. Hence, he found that he could raise cotton or tobacco and ship it on the railroad, get ready money and buy what he ought to have produced on the farm.

4. A short crop necessitates a mortgage to raise money to start another year, and so he is on a down grade that lands him, sooner or later, at the bottom.

I wrote this answer because, as a citizen, I am greatly interested in he farmer. I travel through the country thousands of miles during a year and I find that the farmers who have the most money belonging to them are those who produce on he farm nearly everything necessary to support a family. They live at home and are free from the growing anxieties of mortrages. The farmers of the South will remain poor so long as they continue to raise scarcely anything but cotton and tobacco. They must learn to put only the surplus of their capital in these staples, if they would defy the bears and bulls of ommerce, have a contented mind and a clear conscience.
