Morganton Notes.

Communicated. Morganton, N. C., June 23, '93. There have been several severe storms in this section of the county lately. On last Thursday lightning struck the house of Mr. W. G. Hogan, and knocked down two chimneys. Three children that were in the house were stunned, but recovered in a short time without any painful effects being produced. Yesterday a cow, standing in the jailyard, belonging to Luther Ward, the jailer, was struck by lightning, and instantly killed. Four or five months ago the five year old boy of ill with what was supposed to be Utah, says: phneumonia. After a few weeks he rallied, only to again go into a decline, which the doctors pronounhim to Baltimore to be treated, and after a careful examination the doctors then confirmed the belief in regard to consumdtion and seemed to consider the case incurable. The boy was brought home; his condition grew worse, and eving. This morning during an unan iron tack nearly an inch long. It and had been the source of all the trouble. The parents then remembered a circumstance which led to believe that the tack had been swallowed five months ago. There is nothing in the way of the complete recovery of the boy; and his parents are almost wild with delight. Dr. Moran, of this town, says that the only case that he ever heard of like this was that of a woman, who swallowed a plugged tooth and in consequence had pheumonia. Maj. Hayes, of the Fifth Cavalry, United States army, is spending his vacation here. Maj. Hayes had charge of the troops who terrified the Oklahoma settlers into something like order a few years ago; and his relation of his adventures in that country is decidedly interesting. Before the civil war he served in the same regiment with Kirby Smith, Fitzhugh Lee and other Confederate officers, and has in his possession now a very affectionate letter from Gen. Smith—the last, it is said, that he wrote.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jackson and buby, Mrs. Moffitt, all of Raleigh, and Mr. James F. Phillips, of Tarboro, are visiting Judge A. C. Avery. They will be in Morganton nntil Monday when they will leave for Catawba Springs.
