

POLICE COURT DOINGS

Several Liquor Cases Disposed of This Morning.

The adjourned cases for violating the liquor laws were called in the city court today before Judge Bradstreet, after a complaint against Percy Cheve, land for abusing horses belonging to Charles Sackett had been settled. Cleveland was fined $25 and costs. The complaint was issued on March 8 last year. Cleveland said he has lately been employed at the Scovill Manufacturing company.

Prosecuting Agent Pierce stated that the case against B. E. Reley, who kept a drug store on West Main street beyond the bridge, was settled. Irving Wolcott, who bought Reley out and actually committed the offense Reley was charged with, paid what the others had been fined. A certificate was then introduced by Reley, showing that Mrs. Sarah Dunphy Bank street, had a liquor license on September 23 last. Attorneys Root and Carmody, counsel for the defendant, objected to the certificate on the grounds that in all criminal proceedings the accused must be confronted by the witnesses. This occasioned an interruption in the proceedings, and a heavy row minutes between the lawyers. The certificate was admitted and a fine of $10 and costs was imposed on each of the two counts against Mrs. Dunphy.

H. B. Platt, a druggist at 10 Bishop street, was charged with selling drink for consumption on the premises, and came next. David Bedell, one of the private detectives, was the only witness that was examined. He testified that with Roberts, Eckland, Herzog and Adams, all of whom have been heard of in the cases disposed of last week, had whiskey in the accused's store at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. October 7, there was no defense and a fine of $15 and costs was imposed.

Frank Sheehy, 32 Ridge street, was charged with keeping open and selling on Sunday, September 23. Adams, the other private detective, testified that with his friends, he gained access to Sheehy's place from 26 Martin street. There was some dispute as to the latter address being 32 Ridge street. Adams said that he was not sure if Sheehy's saloon was at 32 Ridge street. He visited another saloon on that street the same day. Adams was cross-examined in great detail. Officer M. T. Sullivan was called to remove any doubt about the location of Sheehy's saloon. A certificate from Clerk Ansell of the superior court was introduced to testify that he did not know "F. T. Sheehy," the accused, kept a saloon on Ridge street. The name on the certificate was Frank Sheehy. This point failed to work. The same fine as in the other cases was imposed. An appeal was taken.

John F. Casey, proprietor of the Railroad hotel, at 17½ Washington avenue, was next. Bedell testified in this case. There were four men drinking in the room, which appeared to be a dining room. They were discussing the silver question and one of them did not appear to understand it. Casey was found not guilty of keeping open and was fined the above amount for selling.

Thomas M. Ferris, 124 Liberty street, was next put to plea and he said he was not guilty. Bedell testified to getting a glass of ale at the back door of the cellar of the saloon. Ferris met the same fate as the others. There was no defense.

Royal A. Bondar, a druggist at 282 Cherry street, was then called. The defense claimed an acquittal on the grounds that the state did not prove that either Mr. Calendar or any agent of his sold the liquor which was consumed by the witness, Bedell, and his friends. Mr. Pierce claimed it was only necessary to prove that there had been sold any liquor there and that there was some doubt about the law on the matter decision was deferred.

The next case was against John Shannahan, 63 Railroad Hill street. The evidence for the prosecution was practically the same as in the other cases. The defense tried to prove that Adams who testified was mistaken in the place. Adams held he was not mistaken and denied being in a saloon kept by one Loughlin, on the same street. The same disposition was made of this as in the other saloon cases.

Garrett P. Henneberry, 467 West Main street, stepped up next. Bedell testified. Whiskey was supplied him there; part he drank and the remainder he poured on a sponge. The same fine was imposed and an appeal was taken.

Three counts were preferred against Michael J. Shep, 472 East Main street, keeping open, selling and dispensing and disposing of liquor on Sunday, September 23. Adams testified that the accused attended his party of spies. This was the first case in which the accused appeared so prominent and the evidence dealt with him directly. It was on this evidence the additional count, "dispensing and disposing of liquor," was based. Attorney Root tried to disclose the source from which the funds came that paid Adams and Bedell, but failed. Further than that they got it from Le Clair, their employer, they knew nothing about it. This closed the case and Mr. Pierce stated in reference to the extra count that for two years Shep had conducted a saloon at the above address, though the license has been in the name of one Jeremiah Sullivan, who could not be located. This was the only way, Mr. Pierce said, he could get at Shep. He did not expect him to be convicted on three counts, but held he ought to be on two counts. Court held Shep was guilty only of selling and fined him $10 and costs. An appeal was filed. The other cases were put over to tomorrow morning.

After court had adjourned and while prosecuting agent Pierce was gathering together his papers, C. Collins Adams entered the room and walked directly toward Mr. Pierce, and then followed. Mr. Adams told Mr. Pierce that he should be arrested for the purpose of encouraging a student of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in regarding the dignity of a professional institution. "I am a student of it. You also, Mr. Pierce," Adams said. "You also, Mr. Pierce," Adams said. "You also, Mr. Pierce," Adams said. "You also, Mr. Pierce," Adams said.

LATEST REPORTS

Show That Colonel Sheridan's Business Affairs Are in Bad Shape.

Bridgeport, Jan. 30.—Some of Colonel James Sheridan's friends believe that he has committed suicide. They can find no other explanation for his continued absence. It developed yesterday that Colonel Sheridan's business affairs are in bad shape and that he has been unable to meet his financial obligations. Creditors in New York, New Haven and this city yesterday called attachement papers against $2,500 to be placed upon the saloon at the corner of Middle and Golden Hill streets. Close friends of Colonel Sheridan, however, declare that he would never have run away in order to avoid facing his difficulties, and are anxious lest his mind has become affected by his business troubles, with self destruction as a result.

It is stated now that Colonel Sheridan went to New York for the purpose of effecting some sort of a compromise with a brewing company to which he was heavily indebted; that his friends have since visited this concern and learned that Colonel Sheridan's mission there failed and they conclude that he may have become utterly discouraged at this culmination of his misfortunes and have made away with himself.

It is understood that he had about $300 with him when he left town.

Colonel Sheridan has shown in his physical condition of late the result of his accumulating pecuniary difficulties. He has aged greatly within the last few months and his falling health is another reason for the anxiety of his friends as adding to the probability of suicide.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS

Want City Attorney to Support Senator Kennedy's Bill.

The board of public works held a meeting last night, Mayor Kilduff presiding and all the members being present.

Parties interested in the construction of a sewer in Hill street from Summer street to Fairfield street, in the blocks between Cooke street and Bishop street, and in Cottage place, were called and heard. Those who appeared were about evenly divided on the matter of a sewer in Hill street. There was no opposition to the other portions. The estimated cost of the sewers in the order mentioned is $1,700, $150 and $725. It was voted to recommend to the aldermen that sewers be built in three streets as petitioned for.

A communication was received from the Connecticut Lighting and Power Co. waiving all claim to a formal notice relative to the paving of North Main street. This was followed by a lengthy discussion as to what kind of paving should be used on the hill between Kingsbury street and Bishop street. Mr. Blake said that several horsemen had spoken to him about this matter, stating that it would be almost impossible to use that street in frosty weather in case brick paving should be used. He said he had chosen himself and was not prepared to say whether there was any merit in the contention of those who had approached him on the question. The mayor appeared inclined to favor the bricks and the engineers might be cited as to why it would not be good policy to use the Belgian blocks. One, for example, the likelihood of not being able to collect an assessment for the work. "The people claim," he said, "that they are not willing to pay for their place to good advantage in streets where they are used. That's why we couldn't collect anything for Brook street."

Mr. Blakeslee (apparently amazed at this statement): "Has the court decided that we can't collect anything for the paving of Brook street?"

The discussion on that point ended here, Mayor Kilduff disposing of the subject with the remark that life was too short for people to bother making too many friends and consequently it would not pay to think of the Belgian blocks. He thought it might not be a bad plan to cover the blocks we have laid with asphalt.

On motion of Commissioner Whiting it was voted to recommend that North Main street between Kingsbury street and Cottage place be paved with vitrified bricks.

H. M. Judd was heard in reference to his claim for damages on account of the falling of a load of furniture on the Water tower street, and the other side of the street, where a large quantity was kept on hand.

RETIRED HATTER SUICIDES.

Losses in the Stock Market May Have Prompted the Act.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—Edward D. Cornell, a retired hat manufacturer, committed suicide by hanging last night. Heavy losses in the stock market are said to have prompted the act. Mr. Cornell was 74 years of age. He was born in New York and started in the hat manufacturing business at Orange, N. J., with John B. Stetson as a partner. Withdrawing from that town he came to this city and established a business. He eventually retired and came to New York, Conn., where he resided for a number of years. He returned to this city about a year ago. For many years Mr. Cornell was president of the Hatters' Union.

She began to leak and finally became waterlogged and unmanageable.
