ANECDOTES OF THE SHAH.

His Persian Highness Is Not Entirely Without a Sense of Humor.

The shah supplies a fair crop of anecdotes daily, says the London Telegraph's Paris Letter. His sayings and doings lend themselves largely to anecdote treatment, and they are therefore carefully recorded. The latest story is about the shah and the dentist. His majesty suffered from toothache soon after his arrival in Paris, and a professional extractor of high-class molars was sent for. The professional looked at his majesty's teeth, and advised the extraction not of one, but of several. The operation was postponed for a day, but when the dentist returned to the Elysee Palace hotel he found the shah all right and in a playful mood. The toothache had gone, and there was no longer any need for the dentist's services. As the professional was preparing to leave the shah called him back, saying: "I do not like to have troubled you for nothing, so, as you have come, you had better draw a molar from each of my counselors." The shah spoke with his eyes fixed on the ground and in a meditative manner. When he looked up all the counselors had vanished, with the exception of the grand vizier, who manfully stood his ground unmindful as to whether his all-powerful master was in joke or in earnest. The other counselors evidently believed in the earnestness of the master's utterances. The anecdote is something like that old one told of the present shah's predecessor, who, when in Paris, asked to see M. Deibler at work with the guillotine. When he was informed that there was nobody in La Roquette at the time waiting for execution he proposed that one of his suite should be handed over to Deibler and decapitated in the Champs Elysees.

WHERE DO SALMON FEED?

A Question That Even the Fish Experts Are Unable to Satisfactorily Answer.

There is no family of fish more interesting than the salmon, and in no other fishery have the benefits of artificial propagation been more clearly demonstrated. The homing instinct of the salmon enabled the propagators of fry to learn, at the beginning of their work, that it was worth doing, writes John R. Spears, in Success. Salmon hatched in any stream usually return to that stream when they are of spawning age. The propagators reared salmon to the size of fingerlings, marked them, and turned them loose. In due time the marked fish returned and were caught in the home stream. It is a curious fact, however, that, in spite of the homing instinct, salmon are found at the spawning season in the brackish water at the foot of Alaskan glaciers, where, it is believed, no fish was ever hatched.

Another curious fact, learned through marking the artificially propagated fish, is that a fingerling weighing from one to two ounces may grow to weigh from two to ten pounds in six or eight months, and in two years a weight of 40 pounds has been reached. The growth depends, of course, on the food supply. But where salmon feed and what they feed on have not yet been learned. It is supposed that they find small marine animals so numerous in their deep-sea haunts that they swim about "as if in a soup." Perhaps the deep-sea haunts will sometime be discovered.

No Gambling in Austria. For playing "heads and tails" for stakes of a farthing an apprentice named Paul Riedel has been sentenced to banishment from Austria. According to the Austrian criminal law the uniform punishment for all games of chance, including the game "heads and tails," is banishment.—N. Y. Post.

Starving in Galicia. In Galicia the wage of the farm laborer has been so reduced that he is starving to death on a pittance of from 10 to 15 cents a day.

Munger, who administered restoratives which quickly brought the woman to consciousness. Further than this she could tell nothing of what happened after they left Watertown. She is now resting comfortably at the residence of Mr Jones.

The town football team will play the Waterville team at the Fair grounds to-morrow.

A large number from here expect to witness the Yale-Harvard football game at New Haven to-morrow.

PRESIDENT RETURNS.

Journey Homeward Made Safely and Without Incident.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The president reached Washington this morning at 8 o'clock.

The homeward journey was without special incident. The ride across the mountains over the Southern railway was made in fast time. The train stopped only to change crews and engines. Its coming was generally unheralded, but there was a small crowd at almost every station. Several times the train was cheered as it swept by.

At Chattanooga the president received a telegram from Newport, Tenn., saying that the school children would turn out to see him. By his direction the train was slowed down when that place was reached. About 200 little ones, with flags in their hands, were lined up along the track. The president stood on the rear platform and waved his hand and hat to them. At Stevenson, Ala., early yesterday morning about fifty children gathered around his car and begged the porter to let them see the president. The president had just got up, heard their cries and, rather than disappoint the little ones, stepped to the door in his spoking feet and said, "Good morning."

Just as the train drew out of Ooltewah Junction, where the train stopped for water, a tall, rawboned mountaineer engaged the president in conversation. The Tennessean remarked that the bears in Mississippi had proved too wild for the president. "Perhaps they were Democratic bears and took to the woods upon my arrival," retorted the president, smiling. At Knoxville the president shook hands with a sister of a lieutenant colonel of his regiment.

GREAT OCEAN RACE.

Cruiser Cincinnati Led Warships in Long Distance Trial.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 21.—Carrying a great white bone in her teeth and with phosphorescent spray flashing high up on her sharp bows, the cruiser Cincinnati forged abreast of Culebra light at midnight, a winner in the greatest ocean race of warships ever run on the north Atlantic seaboard.

Barely two miles astern of the cruiser flashed the white searchlight of the great battleship Alabama. She had distanced all her rivals of the heavy-weight class and had shown her quality by putting up a hammer and tongs struggle all the way from Hampton Roads, Va., with the fleet footed cruiser.

One by one she had left behind the little gunboat Maclure, the staunch battleship Indiana of Santiago fame, the formidable new battleship Kearsarge, her own particular rival, and last of all the plucky Massachusetts, sister ship of the immortal Oregon.

That the comparatively old Massachusetts was a stronger competitor than the Kearsarge is one of the surprises of the race.

That the Alabama came in so close a second to the fast commerce destroyer Cincinnati, even though the cruiser had been handicapped thirty-five miles at the start, is a superb performance for a first class battleship heavily armed and heavily armored.

This is the first time in its history that the ships of the north Atlantic squadron have engaged in such a long distance speed contest in the open sea.
