Fourth Picnic at Lloyd.
The News is requested to announce that there will be a picnic at Lloyd on the Fourth of July. The program will consist of speaking, races and games. The site is well shaded, and everybody is invited.

A. B. Dauber has built an adobe for a residence.

Geo. Ogden, a business man of El Paso, is in the city

Herman Gerhardt is putting down cement side walks in front of his business house on Main street.

Gerhardt's double building on Second street is about finished. The rock work is completed.

The railroad well on the Pajarita is about twenty feet deep and there is so much water coming in that work has stopped. It is the intention of the company to dig it thirty or forty feet deeper but the water must be pumped out before work can continue.

The Southwestern will take charge of everything in the railroad line on July 1st. The passenger and freight division begins on that day and many railroad men will after that date stop over in Tucumcari. This is going to make business hum here. Pay day in Tucumcari will be an item.

The Baptist B. Y. P. U. gave a box social at the church last night.

The preachers who have been holding services on the streets this week, have secured the M. E. Church, South, and began last night to hold a protracted meeting.

W. H. Fuqua and Banks Jones, both of Amarillo, Texas, are expected here today. Mr. Fuqua is president of the First National Bank at Amarillo, and Jones is interested in the Tucumcari water works system. They are coming on that mission.

There will be a Fourth of July Celebration at Quay, a barbecue, picnic and speaking, in fact all kinds of amusements with a free dinner. Everybody is invited.

The Tucumcari-Melrose Auto line is now in full operation, making daily trips both ways. This is a luxury to travelers who want to make connection between the Santa Fe and Rock Island.

LIGHT KILLS THEM.
Queer Fish and Insects That Live in Perpetual Darkness.

The cavern beetle was first discovered some seventy years ago in an Austrian cave, the grotto of Adelsberg. One specimen only was caught, and, though its discoverer offered a prize of $5 for another, it was fourteen years before a second was found.

The cavern beetle has a little round body, very long legs and absolutely no eyes at all. Brought out from its gloomy haunts into the light of the sun, it dies almost immediately. Yet in its pitch dark home far beneath the surface of the earth it moves with as great rapidity and certainty as any of its eyed relatives on the upper soil.

To make up for its lack of sight it is provided with antennae of extraordinary length and delicacy. By means of these it feels its way over the rough surface of the stone and hunts its prey—other smaller blind insects—with great rapidity and absolute certainty.

The cavern beetle has its enemies. The blowfly (a species of scorpion) and the great eyeless spider hunt it remorselessly. Prince Khevenhuller, who thoroughly explored these caves some years ago, describes it as a most extraordinary sight to watch by the light of a candle a scorpion, absolutely eyeless, hunting a beetle, equally blind, along the cavern wall. Although the beetle was several feet in front of the scorpion and divided from it by a fissure in the rock, yet the scorpion tracked it with absolute and almost appalling certainty.

The spider found in these caves is of a lovely ivory white and is able, like other insects which inhabit the same subterranean depths, to run away rapidly and find its way with as positive certainty as if it had eyes and light to use them. Like several of the others, it, too, perishes if taken out of the cave. Sunlight seems to wither and shrivel up these insects, just as though they had been placed in front of a hot fire.

Yet, in spite of this fact, it is known that the blind cave creatures are descended from others which originally lived in the light of day.

An ordinary proof of this is that, though no faintest ray marks the difference between day and darkness in the depths they live in, yet it has been ascertained beyond the shadow of a doubt that those whose ancestors were nocturnal in their habits still prefer to move about during those hours when the surface of the earth is in darkness.

Numbers of different kinds of fish are known to live in the gloomy rivers and lakes which exist in all large caves.—London Tit-Bits.
