

Business Laws in Daily Use.

The following compilation of business law contains the essence of a large amount of legal verbiage:

If a note is lost or stolen it does not release the maker; he must pay it, if the consideration for which it was given and the amount can be proven.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

Principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm, except in cases of special partnership.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

The law compels no one to do impossibilities.

An agreement without a consideration is void.

Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A note by a minor is void.

A contract made by a minor is void.

A contract made with a lunatic is void.

A note obtained by fraud, or from a person in a state of intoxication, cannot be collected.

It is a fraud to conceal a fraud. Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law.

A receipt for money is not always conclusive.

The acts of one partner bind the rest.

"Value received" is usually written in a note, and should be, but it is not necessary. If not written it is presumed by the law, or may be supplied by proof.

The maker of an "accommodation" bill or note, (one for which he has received no consideration, having lent his name or credit for the accommodation of the holder) is not bound to the person accommodated, but is bound to all parties, precisely as if there was a good consideration.

No consideration is sufficient in law if it be illegal in its nature.

Checks or drafts must be presented for payment without unreasonable delay.

Checks or drafts must be presented during business hours, but in this country, except in the case of the banks, the time extends through the day and evening.

If the drawee of a check or draft has changed his residence, the holder must use due or reasonable diligence to find him.

If one who holds a check as payee or otherwise transfers it to another, he has a right to insist that the check be presented that day, or at farthest, on the day following.

A note indorsed in blank (the name of the endorser only written) is transferable by delivery the same as if made payable to bearer.

If the time of payment of a note is not inserted, it is payable on demand.

The time of payment of a note must not depend upon a contingency. The promise must be absolute.

A bill may be written upon any paper, or substitute for it, either with ink or pencil.

The payee should be distinctly named in the note, unless it is payable to bearer.

An endorsee has a right of action against all whose names were on the bill when he received it.

The loss of a bill or note is not sufficient excuse for not giving notice of protest.

If two or more persons as partners are jointly liable on a note or bill, due notice to one of them is sufficient.

If a note or bill is transferred as security, or even as payment of a pre-existing debt, the debt revives if the bill or note be dishonored.

An endorsement may be written on the face or back.

An endorser may prevent his own liability to be sued by writing "without recourse," or similar words.

All claims which do not rest upon a seal or judgement must be sued within 6 years from the time when they arise.

Part payment of a debt which has passed the time of statutory limitation revives the whole debt, and the claim holds good for another period of 6 years from the date of such partial payment.

The verbal promise to pay, made without conditions, is generally held sufficient to revive a claim otherwise shut out by the law of limitation.
