

No End of Good Reasons

UNLESS you buy carelessly, these are a few of the features that will lead you to the I H C line when you buy a hay press. I H C presses are provided with self-feeders, eliminating dangerous foot-feeding and increasing capacity by even operation; the bale chamber is of just the right height to permit convenient tying of the bales; the bale tension and roller tucker make for uniform, compact and attractive bales; the toggle joint plunger is the most powerful and simple compressing device ever used on a hay press—though producing great pressure, it requires least power to operate.

I H C Hay Presses

cannot be surpassed in convenience, durability, simplicity, and economy of operation. They will put your loose hay into neat, compact bundles, occupying but one-fifth the former space, increasing your available barn room, and making it possible to sell your hay in distant localities at the highest market prices.

You will find three sizes, 14 x 18, 16 x 18, and 17 x 22-inch bale chamber, in the I H C hay press line, baling, at a most conservative estimate, from six to sixteen tons per day. If your choice is a horse power press, you will be interested by its special features, the pull power principle, compound leverage, and the low step-over. If you desire a motor press, study the durable power jack. Remember, too, that this is an all year round machine, for the engine may be detached and used as a regular portable power plant to run saw, pump, cream separator, churn, feed grinder, electric light plant, repair shop, etc.

CONGRESSMAN JOHNSON ON CURRENCY.

The Advertiser has received the following letter from Congressman Johnson on a topic which should be of great interest to the citizens of this county:

House of Representatives,
Washington.

August 11, 1913.

Editor The Advertiser:

For the benefit of your readers who have not had full opportunity to keep in touch with happenings in Washington, let me write a short account of the management of public money under the Wilson Administration. How things have changed! The change is for the better. It is refreshing! We have in Wm. G. McAdoo a Secretary of the Treasury who thinks and acts in the interest of the people. For many years the practice has been to deposit without interest millions and millions of public money in certain large banks, mostly in New York. For instance, early in December 1907 four big New York banks had on deposit forty-four millions of public money, an average of eleven millions for each bank. Shortly after Wilson's term began, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo announced that public money in excess of a working balance would be deposited in the banks, but that the banks must pay interest on the deposit at the rate of two per cent per annum. Down our way we consider that mighty cheap money. The big fellows who had been getting millions and millions without interest for years and years and years and making millions out of it were mad. They were very mad. Some of the big banks said they would not handle Uncle Sam's money that way. I have in mind one bank which has made many millions through the accommodating actions of the Republican Administration. It refused to accept any government money at two per cent. I may also say that this big bank has done all it could to embarrass business by staying "Close to Shore". This bank and other banks have been anxious to prevent currency and banking legislation at this session of Congress or during this administration as for that matter. There is no doubt about it these banks have been increasing reserves and reducing loans. That means they are keeping more cash in their vaults and lending less. The big fellows have been saying that they were doubtful about the Democratic administration and were remaining "Close to Shore". Their talk and their conduct were calculated and were intended to induce small banks over the country to increase reserves and curtail loans. That would pinch the business world. Money was getting uncomfortably tight. The cotton crop was about to come on the market. Some of us were anxious and deeply concerned. At an opportune moment McAdoo announced that he would deposit fifty millions of public money in the banks of the South and West to help move the crops. That was splendid. The big fellows were madder than ever at this foolish Democratic administration. Heretofore, even if public funds were deposited to help move crops, they were deposited without interest in the big banks in New York and thence were sent to the South at stiff interest rates. The Secretary of the Treasury says that if fifty millions will not relieve the situation he will deposit one hundred and fifty millions. It is so good to use the people's money to help the people! The big bankers in New York have not been able to control McAdoo and they have been knocking him. The other day one of the big fellows in New York was knocking McAdoo in the presence of a South Carolinian. The South Carolinian said, "You have no right to complain. You either could not or would not let us have any money. Why then do you object to McAdoo letting us have it? Take a homely illustration. Suppose you had a crib full of corn and your neighbor had no corn and was suffering for corn and you would say that you did not know what the Democrats were going to do and you were going to keep your corn, could you justly complain if somebody let your suffering neighbor have corn? Or if you said you could not spare a bushel of your corn, why object to some one else coming to the rescue?" The South Carolinian covered the whole case. The big bankers could not or would not help us. McAdoo came to our relief. Hurray for McAdoo.

Pains All Over!

"You are welcome," says Mrs. Nora Guffey, of Broken Arrow, Okla., "to use my letter in any way you want to, if it will induce some suffering woman to try Cardui. I had pains all over, and suffered with an abscess. Three physicians failed to relieve me. Since taking Cardui, I am in better health than ever before, and that means much to me, because I suffered many years with womanly troubles, of different kinds. What other treatments I tried, helped me for a few days only."

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Don't wait, until you are taken down sick, before taking care of yourself. The small aches and pains, and other symptoms of womanly weakness and disease, always mean worse to follow, unless given quick treatment.

You would always keep Cardui handy, if you knew what quick and permanent relief it gives, where weakness and disease of the womanly system makes life seem hard to bear. Cardui has helped over a million women. Try it.
