NEWBERRY, S. C., THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1887.

HARRIET BOND.

An Important Decision by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Bond, age 83, who was the last of the famous bond farmers of the 18th and 19th centuries, passed away last week at his home in Newberry, S.C. He was a prominent figure in the agricultural world and his death is deeply regretted by many of his former pupils and associates.

The bond farmer was born in 1804, and from an early age showed a remarkable aptitude for the business of farming. He was apprenticed to a local farmer at the age of 16, and in a short time gained the reputation of being one of the best bond farmers in the state.

Mr. Bond's most notable achievement was his successful experiment in the cultivation of tobacco. He introduced new varieties of the plant, and through his efforts, the yield was increased fivefold. This brought about a great change in the tobacco industry of the state, and Mr. Bond himself become a wealthy man.

In recognition of his services to the community, he was elected to the state legislature, and served two terms. He was also a member of the state constitutional convention, and his contributions to the debates were highly regarded.

Mr. Bond was a man of great integrity and honesty. He always conducted himself with dignity and respect, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

He leaves behind him a legacy of good farming practices, which will continue to benefit future generations. His passing is a great loss to the agricultural world, and his memory will be forever cherished.
