WHERE IS YOUR BOY?

Commending Solicitor Sease for Being

Thoughtful as to the Morals of the Young Boys.

A rather dirty case came up for trial in the courthouse last Monday afternoon, and the room was pretty well filled with all classes, including a number of small boys of various ages. We remarked to a gentleman what a bad thing it was to allow boys to be present on such an occasion. He informed us that Solicitor Sease took in the situation and at once ordered the court room cleared. We expressed our approbation for an officer who is so thoughtful as to the morals of the boys of this community, and we wish to give public and most emphatic expression to our admiration for him. We have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Solicitor Sease, but we hope to meet him, and whether we do or not we shall ever bear for him feelings of the very highest regard.

And this leads us to ask a pertinent question, where were the parents of these boys that an officer of the court was kind enough to protect? The action of the solicitor was a kind, but a very severe reprimand to them. We wonder if the fathers and mothers of this town know where their boys are?

This episode would indicate that they do not know and that they do not care, at least some of them. Oh! for a revival of parental care and parental authority.—Greenwood Journal.

Newberryans at the Wheat Growers' Convention.

In the Greenwood Index's report of the Wheat Growers' Convention we find the following experiences as related by Newberryans present:

Mr. J. H. Chappell, of Newberry, made a short talk giving his experience in wheat growing. His smallest yield was 11 bushels per acre, the largest 23 1/2.

Col. Thomas W. Holloway, of Pomaria, in giving his experience, said that he usually sowed three pecks of seed to the acre and used 15 bushels of cotton seed. Used a harrow and always got the ground level. Had found that

FARMERS INSTITUTE.

Lectures by Mr. Sellers and Professors of Clemson College.

The Farmers' Institute held by professors of Clemson College at Brown & Moseley's grove near Prosperity was not largely attended on Thursday.

Hon. R. T. C. Hunter presided and introduced the speakers. A nice, large stand for the speakers and seats for the listeners had been arranged beneath the large and spreading oaks.

Mr. Sellers was the first speaker and spoke on tobacco and its culture, and explained it from the time the seed were sown through all of its stages, until it was placed on the market. He said that Marion, Florence, Marlboro, and Williamsburg Counties were now growing tobacco to advantage, and that the farmers settled their entire store accounts from this crop and had their cotton, corn and other crops as a clear profit; and that this county was as well adapted to the cultivation of the weed as either of the above named counties. There are only three things necessary to grow tobacco profitably and they are: proper care in cultivation, gathering and curing. The beauty about this crop is that in ninety to one hundred days from time crop is planted you can place it on the
