HOW THE WOMAN'S COMMITTEE GODMOTHERS

In spite of the disapproval of "godmothering" of soldiers expressed by the War Department and widely circulated last fall, letters from girls and women asking for the names of soldiers who would like to be written to are constantly being received. The letters go to Mrs. Philip North Moore, head of the Department of Health and Recreation of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense.

In reply to these letters, Mrs. Moore continues to state the policy of the council in regard to furnishing the names of soldiers, but cites Indiana as showing a way that women can look after soldiers that have no relatives or friends, without the danger that a nation-wide system of "godmothering" would incur. The Woman's Committee in Indiana has systematically made a list of the soldiers of the State who have no one interested in them, and the women as a group make it their business to see that none of them suffer for want of such comforts and attention as other soldiers receive.

"In this way the personal welfare of the soldier is looked after by the women of his State," said "The sending of food which is simply a source of discouragement and all for them is under intelligent supervision. And take up the idea, if the looking after lonely men make such a system des-
