WAR NOTES

There is no form of German propaganda more subtle or more dangerous than that which seeks to create sympathy for individual Germans through stories and plays. Such a play was "The Little Belgian," which the producer dropped when its influence was brought to his attention. Another is "The Unbeliever," a photo-play which has been going the rounds of small communities. In this the author, misreading the abnormal situation created by the monstrous methods of the Germans, sought to minimize the human tendency toward race prejudice as applied to the Germans. There can be no doubt that race prejudice is a monstrous evil and one which is unfortunately rampant in this country. But this is not the time to make a fight against it in favor of the German people. The first duty of every American is to realize that the German people, as led by the Kaiser, is no more than a ravaging horde, which must be decisively beaten. So far as the Germans who uphold the Kaiser, which means practically all the Germans living in Germany, are concerned, we can have but one feeling. They are our enemies and will continue so until we have brought them to their senses, and this will not happen, as is unfortunately too evident, until we have secured a decisive victory. Any paltering of these facts at this time means a distinct weakening of the American morale. Here is a little suggestion from the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy: They're wearing wooden shoes and paper clothes in Germany now, says an American woman who lost fifty-four pounds in weight there. And we won't be happy until a lot of them that are responsible for this bloodshed are wearing wooden kimonos and have their friends say, "My, doesn't he look natural!"

Capt. Daniel M. Tabox, of Oak Ridge, Me., has no use for the government's daylight saving scheme, and as a result has not changed the family timepiece, nor his faithful watch. He says he rises and retires by the sun. It is believed Mr. Tabox is the only man in Maine who hasn't adjusted his comings and goings to the new order of things.—Boston Globe.

The Rev. Philip Cook, of Chicago, was one of the party of Young Men's Christian Association workers recently torpedoed in mid-Atlantic. As soon as he could reach a cable office he sent this unique message to his wife: "Acts xxvii, 41-44." The brief reference is to the vivid account of the shipwreck suffered by the Apostle Paul, the conclusion of which is the sentence, "And so it came to pass that they escaped all safe to land."

Eight hundred cases of alcoholism have been cured during our camp experience. This is a conclusion that comes to us from civil life when the men are drafted. These men may backslide at some future time, when they are released from military supervision, but for the time being, at least, 800 lives have been rendered normal and temperate.—William C. Corgan, in Collier's Weekly.

It is not enough to deplore what the Germans have done. That will NOT hurt the Germans; they don't care what you think of them.
