PEACE!

Peace! Like the rosy radiance of a resplendent dawn, its glory spread over the earth as the day was born, driving away the brooding gloom of blood, and pain, and sorrow and strife, even as the forces of darkness flee before the burning chariot of God!

Peace! To the nations sore beset, whose blood has been drawn until it has left them white—who stand at the graveside of their best-loved sons, mourning but undaunted, stricken but undimmed—clinging to their ideals of right, and liberty, and humanity—suffering but smiling still!

Peace! To the mighty land, which for love of justice, and for the perpetuation of democracy, and for the freedom of the world, threw herself into the fray, and across the path of the insolent march of arrogant autocracy stretched the flaming sword inscribed, "Thou Shalt Not!"

Peace! Like a benediction, to the anxious hearts in thousands of homes, in crowded city, and lonely prairie, and far-off mountain side, where the service flag flutters, as a symbol that somewhere a loved one has been fighting or suffering, or working for the great Cause—some one who will come back and bring light to the home and life to the heart again!

Peace! To those other homes where the blue star has turned to gold; where they know when the boys come proudly marching back, HE will be missed from the ranks! Aye, peace, and pride, and exaltation of spirit, because that his life was not "lost," but given as a priceless heritage to humanity—exultation, too, because that the sacrifice was not made in vain!

Peace! To those above whom the poppies blow in Flanders field. No Knights of old, in quest of Holy Grail, or breaking lance against heartless oppressor, ever fought more bravely or died more nobly! The world will not forget them—while poppies blow in Flanders field!

Peace! To all the nations of the earth, from over which the shadows of a great menace has been lifted forever! Peace, that will be lasting—peace that will lift the yoke from millions, and give them the first glimpse of the glories of liberty and equality and self-government. Peace, that will unify the nations; that will break down the barriers of sectionalism, and sectarianism, and race prejudice, and the rule of caste, and bring to all the peoples of the earth the joys of brotherhood, and the rule of right! Peace—Peace on earth, good will to men!

The few followers of those who have preached the doctrine of religious hate and prejudice in this city for the past two years or so, must have felt mighty small when they heard Gypsy Smith yesterday. And the utterances of this big man opened the eyes of many to a broader vision of tolerance, humanity and true broad Christianity.

The Evening Telegram once made the statement that whenever a morning paper was needed in Lakeland it would be here to furnish it. This morning was the first time Lakeland has ever needed a morning paper, and the Evening Telegram was right on the job, giving the great news of peace in a succinct and intelligible manner long before any other agency. It is the first time the Evening Telegram has been issued as a morning paper, and it now retires from the morning field until another exigency shall arise that will justify its covering it again. It mortally offended certain people because we once said that "when Lakeland needed a morning paper we will be here to furnish it," but in this as in all other things we have promised or undertaken, the people will bear us out that we have made good.

Tremendous Crowd Heard Gypsy Smith Here Yesterday Call For Subscriptions Met Ready Response

A crowd estimated at 4,000 persons—this is in our opinion, a conservative estimate—listened with spell-bound attention for an hour and a quarter yesterday morning to a most inspiring and eloquent address by Gypsy Smith, the renowned evangelist and Y. M. C. A. worker.

Mr. Smith was brought over from Plant City by Editor Wayne Thomas of the Plant City Courier, accompanied by Lieut. Sprigg, an Australian Y. M. C. A. worker of note, and Rev. R. F. Hodnett, pastor of the Plant City Methodist church. These gentlemen came as a committee to escort Mr. Smith back to Plant City where he spoke at 12 o'clock for 45 minutes, leaving on the Seaboard for the North at 1:40 p. m.

Shortly after ten o'clock the exercises, which were held from the band stand in the Park, singing the first two stanzas of "America," and the invocation was delivered by Rev. R. F. Hodnett. The speaker of the day was then introduced by Mr. M. F. Hetherington, who presided at the meeting.

Many persons have expressed the opinion that it was the best address ever heard in Lakeland. Certain it is that we have heard no speaker who had his audience more thoroughly with him than did Mr. Smith, and he played on the hearts of his auditors as on a harp, touching alternately, with master hand, the chords of humor and pathos. Particularly in recounting his personal experiences in ministering to the boys dying with a smile on their lips, rejoicing to make the sacrifice for the great cause for which they died, there were few in the throng whose eyes did not glisten with irrepressible tears.

The address was a wonderful appeal to the generous natures of the people to give and give freely to the boys who are giving so much. He told of the terrific toll of life that had been taken from England and France, compared with which our casualty list is as nothing; of the devastation that has been wrought over there while we have remained untouched, because of the human bulwark that has been interposed in our defense by the brave men for whom we are now called upon to give a trifle that some small comforts may be brought to them.

The speaker emphasized the united character of the present War Work campaign, explaining the plan adopted at the request of the President, and he paid his respects in no un-mistakable terms to those narrow persons who would withhold their support.
