D. B. McCleery returned from the county seat the fore part of the week. He witnessed the cyclone which destroyed buildings on a ranch below Pierre.

S. D. Rousseau and St. Lindsay came up from Fort Pierre for a short stay.

Maurice Oberly is in town on business. He has leased his farm to Mr. Trumbo, who has good crops on it.

W. W. Waite was in after supplies. He says crops look fair in his locality.

The Sunday school picnic at Olney's grove was well attended by people from Midland, Nowlin, Nitteberg, Ottumwa and Powell.

Fifty-five wagon loads of Indians, twenty or thirty men and boys on horseback—about three hundred people altogether, gave a "wachcheepee" on the streets here Sunday afternoon. Another entertainment was given in the evening south of here on the river. Some of the squaws made considerable fun by reaching out into the crowd and seizing hold of the young men, who were compelled to dance with them, and on payment of a dime they were told to "kick a lap."

Mrs. E. J. Durkee came down from Deadwood today for a visit with friends and relatives.

Lightning started a prairie fire about two miles southeast of town. About a half section of hay land on which E. O. Roush and his father were cutting hay was burned over.

The Methodist ladies postponed their 6 o'clock tea, which was to have been given at the G. F. Moles' residence last evening, to Saturday evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

C. A. Knudson, who has been making his home at Philip for the past three years, dropped in on us Tuesday and took us by surprise. Chas. was one time sheriff of Jerauld county and naturally we were a bit leary at first but we had a very pleasant visit. He came to see Mrs. Knudson, who is here visiting for a few weeks.—Westington Springs Republican.

The local board of education have, through the proper officials, sold the bonds voted for purposes of building the new brick school building to the state, the money coming from the permanent school fund. The bonds are now being prepared; by the way, the work of preparation is no small job, for there are 480 interest coupons, and each entails considerable writing. The total amount secured was $12,000.

Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Heinemann were departing passengers today. Mrs. Heinemann and children will go to Winnipeg, Manitoba, for a six weeks' visit at the home of her parents. Dr. Heinemann accompanies them as far as St. Paul to see that they are transferred to the Canadian road safely, and will return home from there.

The Dougherty Stock company appeared at the Grand Monday evening, presenting "The Girl from the Hills," a very pretty comedy drama. A very appreciative audience enjoyed the performance. Announcement was made that the company would be here again for three nights the latter part of August. They have been in Philip before, and have never failed to please. Their return engagement should be greeted by crowded houses.

At a meeting of the board of county commissioners, which adjourned Saturday evening, our local commissioner, F. E. Morrison, secured favorable action on the petition for a bridge across the south fork of Bad river, the location being about two and one half miles southwest of the city on one of the main traveled roads. This will be a welcome piece of news, not only to local business men, but among their patrons who live southwest.

Wm. Frost and Wm. O'Reilly, of Fort Pierre, with Jeff Carr, of Lindsay, democratic candidate for sheriff, drove into the city Tuesday morning in the latter's motor car. They left Fort Pierre Saturday morning and drove via Hunt and Onida to LaBean across the river there and followed Fox Ridge to Philip, then struck southeast to Philip, they report conditions between the Cuyenne river and Philip better than any other locality they visited west of the river.

Mrs. L. Antis left Saturday for Portland, Oregon, where he will make an extended visit. Her boys left for Chicago the same day. Since his mother and brothers left Neighbor Antis must be rather lonesome.

E. Noerenberg left Tuesday for Chicago on business.

Hugo Frank has gone east to work in the harvest fields.

Otto Kruger has gone overseas with his team to work during harvest near Bremen.

State Rents Its Experiment Farm At Cottonwood

A little matter that comes near being a rich joke at the expense of the state of South Dakota has just come to light. Two years ago when the state experiment farm was located near Cottonwood it was found that the school section selected was covered by two separate school leases, one with three, and the other with four years yet to run. The hustling citizens of Cottonwood did not hesitate on that account. They went right down in their jeans and dug up the sum of five hundred dollars to purchase the leases of the holders so that the state might take the land clear and begin operations on its farm at once.

Whether the state board of regents was not duly appreciative of the generosity of the people of our neighboring town or whether the members were absorbed too deeply in the besetting sin of politics that has lately been inflicted upon this state, does not appear. Anyway, someone fumbled the ball. The faithful workers of the state went ahead and put in and cultivated a crop in the new little farms of the new experiment station. None, however, notified the commissioner of school and public lands that an experiment farm had been located on this particular school section. Very naturally, when the time rolled around for renting school lands again, the experiment station was listed along with other lands for rental. A thrifty German farmer by the name of Mauser has been deeply impressed with the apparent productiveness of the land in question, under the cultivation of the state's trained farmers, so he came forward and rented it.

Professor Clifford Willis received a rude shock when he was notified one day not long ago to keep his moving machines out of the fine grass on the land. Mauser intimated that for a proper and reasonable rental he was willing that the state should go on with its agricultural experiments and would allow the land to be put up on the shares. After the audacity of this proposal had sunk in upon the various state officials interested in the matter, they began talk of recalling the lease, commination proceedings, and many other dire and dreadful things that the old German farmer of South Dakota had done to himself.

Then came a letter from the state auditor, Mr. J. B. Benson, who was in charge of the state's finances. Of course, the state had no money to pay for the land, and the state's only recourse was to let the land go. The state's only recourse was to let the land go.

to do would be to compromise with the new lessee. Naturally they settled at the old German's terms. He gets a third of the hay in the stack and a money consideration for the relinquishment of the balance of his leases at the end of the year. Nevertheless, there is a thorough understanding that the old German is landlord and the state of South Dakota is tenant at the present time. The situation is not without its humorous phase. The state owns the land, but inadvertently leases it, and is then forced to lease and become a tenant upon its own land.

More than all this, one with little fancy at all can see that German farmer, clad in regulation plow shoes, straw hat, hickory shirt, and overalls, out bossing the neat professor farmers of the state agricultural college around, showing them how the crops should be rotated and the moisture conserved in order to protect all his interests as landlord. Likely there will be many a warm session, if the weeds are not kept down and the fences repaired on the farm. And if the rental is not paid on the dot when due there will likely be an irate landlord around the premises to throw the delinquent, bag and baggage, out into the street and the great state of South Dakota will get its hip pocket kicked clear around under its necktie.

Gone to His Maker

Lynus Green passed away Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of his step-daughter, Mrs. U. G. Benson, death resulting from cancer. Relatives in Nebraska were notified by wire of his passing, and the burial was deferred until Wednesday afternoon, when a message was received from them, stating that it would be impossible for them to come. The services were held at the M. E. church at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. C. H. Bryan reading the last sad rites, and interment in the Odd Fellow cemetery followed.

Lynus Green was born in Wisconsin March 3, 1845, so was past sixty-five years of age when he answered the call of his Maker. At the age of six years his parents moved to Iowa, and there he grew to manhood. He was married to Mary Ann Cooley in December, 1863, to which marriage two children were born. His marriage to Mary Caroline Blue occurred in 1876, and six children came to bless that union.

In early manhood he gave his heart to God, and united with the M. E. church, remaining always a faithful member.

His wife and four children are left to mourn his loss. His wife was at his bedside when the call came, with his children, Frank, Lillian, Pearl and Alice, were at his side when he passed.

those who are left while he goes beyond, the community extends sincere sympathy. Their sorrow will be lightened in the remembrance of his manhood, love and devotion, and the message that comes from the Unknown:

"The sunset speaks but feebly of the glories of another day. All is well."

Dr. Kyde reports the birth of a girl Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Farmer, seven miles west of the city.

Dr. Kyde reports two cases of typhoid fever southwest of Kadoka, also some scattering cases of cholera infantum. These diseases make their appearance with continued dry weather, and should be guarded against by boiling all drinking water which is not known to be absolutely pure, and avoiding ice-cream, good hygiene, and keeping all foodstuffs away from that are known to be carriers and disease producers, the common house.
