

For the Baby

The fifty-cent size is just right for the baby. A little of it in the bottle three or four times a day will supply precisely the fat all thin babies need. If your baby does not gain in weight as fast as you would like, try

Scott's Emulsion

The result will please you. If the baby nurses, the mother should take the emulsion. It makes the baby's food richer and more abundant; only buy the dollar size—it's more economical.

Both mother and child will feel at once its strengthening, upbuilding and fat-producing properties.

Key, Kee, Kay.

Professor Stuart wishes to know when the pronunciation of key as kee can first be clearly detected. It occurs in Milton, "Comus," line 12:

To lay their post heads on that golden key
That opens the palace of security.

And a little later in Marvell's "Fleece":

Now as two instruments to the same key
Being tuned to art, if the one touched be,
The other answers as with echoes.

These instances are curious, for both before and after this time the prevailing pronunciation was evidently kay. Herbert rhymes the word with way. In "The Secrets of Angling" (1613) culverkeys is rhymed with rays. In Withers' "Mistress of Philarete" (1622), key with day. Dryden, too, and Swift have the same pronunciation, and not till I come to Green's "Spoken" (1757) do I, after an hour's search, find the other. There, please rhymes with keys. This pronunciation must, however, have become common soon afterward.

In Duncombe's "Imitation of Gray's Elegy" it is rhymed with me, and Garrick rhymes it with tea, which would, I suppose, be pronounced then as it is now. Nares, in his "Elements of Orthography" (1764), says of the diphthong ey, "Its proper sound should be that of the long e. Thus, however, is given to it only in the word key, for key-a is constantly written tea."—Notes and Queries.

"More Sociable."

A lady who has recently returned from abroad had a curious experience at the little town of Dismant, in Belgium. She was traveling in a party of three, including another lady and a young man. They sought accommodation at a hotel and were shown a room in which there were three beds and on a deal table three basins and jugs about as big as slop basins and milk jugs.

The ladies explained that one room was quite insufficient for their needs, but it was a long time before they could get the hostess to understand why. They were then shown another room with three beds, three slop basins and three milk jugs and were told that they could have that, too, if they liked to pay for the six beds. It was therefore arranged that the man should have one room and three beds and the ladies the other room and three beds.

"Do you always sleep in threes?" said one lady to the hostess.

"Yes," was the reply; "it is much more sociable."—Madame.

Funny Men.

The hosts of H-hogadulms were very practical. He was fond of inviting people with some physical deformity to dinner and making jokes about them. At times he would invite a dozen luncheoners or a score of squinting ladies or an equal number of baldheads. Once he put a large number of excessively fat people, all very hungry, into a small chamber where dinner was waiting. There was no room to eat it. Another diversion of which he was fond was that of placing his guests on air sofas, so that when they were about to drink he could let the air out and have both sofa and guest collapse.

It is said that Nero, the Roman emperor, liked to "sly" nuts at the bald heads of the partakers who sat below during the performance at the theater, and they were expected to maintain their holdfast dignity and refrain from "sly" them back at him.

Too Much Time Wanted.

"If you will get my new suit done by Saturday," said a customer to a tailor, "I'll be forever indebted to you."

"I think I would go crazy with pain were it not for Chamberlain's Pain Balm," writes Mr. W. H. Stapleton, Harrisburg, Pa. TRIES BRITAIN'S NERVES.

Continued Silence Broken Only by Laconic Reports of Casualties.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—According to general expectations today will surely bring a message from Field Marshal Lord Roberts explaining the fighting of the past few days and giving the eagerly awaited status of the conflict with General Cronje.

All the official information is said to point to General Cronje's escape being impossible and it is now generally taken for granted that Lord Roberts has him surrounded.

But, the continued silence tries the nation's nerves. All the critics of the afternoon newspapers urge rushing reinforcements to Lord Roberts so that he may be able to risk much in endeavoring to inflict a decisive defeat, before the Boer forces, gathering from every quarter, strengthen Cronje's threatened force.

General Buller's apparent tardiness and failure to prevent the Boers from slipping round to assist General Cronje creates no little comment. The relief of Ladysmith is taken to be a matter of course, but it is quite within the probabilities that severe fighting will occur previous to the relief, while the detachments to be sent by General Buller to reinforce Lord Roberts are likely to meet with tremendous resistance in the passes of the Drakensburg, in which fairly powerful Boer forces remain. Boer reports say General Joubert's nerves are a truce, and that he no longer exercises the chief command of the army.

About Well Known Women.

If you ask Mrs. Margaret Sangster her pet recreation or diversion—whether music, reading, the opera, etc.—she replies, "Writing essays." Her first work was a collection of religious essays and poems and was published without a thought of pecuniary gain, but simply as a means of enabling her to make a few holiday presents.

Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth used to declare that her chief claim to distinction was having been born in a house in which Washington had lived and in the very room which had been his. Her first story, "Retribution," published in 1840 in The National Era, is said to have been the first novel published serially in this country. In public libraries her novels are rebound oftener than other works of fiction.

A New Occupation For Ladies.

To a woman who is fond of horses there can be no greater pleasure than to be constantly among them. And for women who combine means with a love for horseflesh we commend the new and very fashionable idea of pony farms. Two ladies have already become farmers and breed a special kind of Shetland on a farm managed by themselves, and now that ponies of all kinds have become so fashionable for driving such a venture is sure to be a very paying one, provided money and knowledge are combined with personal supervision.

What Women Lack.

One great fault with women is lack of individuality. Despite the many styles of hats and wraps and gowns the first ten women you meet after leaving your home in the morning will present practically the same appearance. If a particular style is becoming to one woman, the other nine must have it without regard to features or other points. And so it is with hair-dressing and ornaments and the many little necessities of the toilet.—Buffalo Enquirer.

John Durr, Poseyville, Ind., says: "I never used anything as good as One Minute Cough Cure. We are never without it. 'Quickly breaks up' coughs and colds. Cures all throat and lung troubles. Its use will prevent consumption. Pleasant to take. Hargis' Pharmacy, John Sheppard and S. Kuhn.

Causes of Loss of Hair

Dr. Sabouraud, the eminent French Dermatologist, says that 90 per cent of hair losses are the results of microbes and the neglect of dandruff. The antiseptic action of preparations kills microbes and removes dandruff. Their constant use for a period will, by acting directly on the hair bulbs, furnish nourishment, vitality and growing power to the impoverished roots and hair shafts, resulting in complete restoration.

SEVEN SUTHERLAND SISTERS'

Anti-Imperialists in Session.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—An "eastern conference" of anti-imperialists began here today and will remain in session two days. The conference is said by its promoters to be another step in the movement to bring the war in the Philippines to an end. The leaders say that a show of hands in Philadelphia a few months in advance of the Republican national convention will have some weight in inducing the delegates to recognize their claims. They have contended that the conference in Chicago last October resulted in a great boom to their movement in the west. Former Senator George F. Edmunds is honorary president of the Philadelphia league.

Canadians Regret Loss.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The news of the heavy losses of the Canadian battalion created a profound sensation throughout the dominion. No details of the action have come to hand, except that it was fought by the Canadians on Sunday, while pursuing Cronje's army at a drift on the Modder, to the east of Jacobsdal. Seven of the light companies were engaged and the Canadians lost in killed, wounded and missing 89 men, being about 10 per cent of the force engaged. The newspapers in their comments agree in saying that the blood thus shed will cement the union of Canada with the empire.

Fatal Mine Explosion.

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Feb. 22.—Two miners were killed by an explosion of giant powder today at their camp near here, Robert Pezzoni and Joseph Dorsey. Peter Lore was fatally injured. CONTRAST IS HUMILIATING.

War Has Killed Political Bitterness in Canada.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The Globe says: "The spirit in which a brave, strong nation should meet trial is admirably illustrated by the temper displayed by Canada. The war, if it has done nothing else, has killed political bitterness and mere party strife in all the colonies. The contrast between Ottawa and Westminster is painful and humiliating."

General Buller reports that his casualties Sunday, Feb. 19, were:

Killed—Captain Theobald of the Royal Fusiliers.

Wounded—Two officers and 14 men.
