

ASTORIA, OREGON:

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1888

The new tariff bill which passed congress goes into effect on the 15th inst.

This season will see the building of a paper mill on the Columbia at Multnomah Falls, near the Cascades.

Major F. J. Blakeney, life service inspector of this coast will again visit Astoria in the latter part of this month.

A fleet of Badollet & Co.'s boats are in the water on the north of Squeamouqua street and present a trim appearance.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the chamber of commerce held at the room of the president at 7:30 this evening.

Annie Urquhart has been appointed postmistress at Chehalis, J. L. Lyons as postmaster at Pekin, and T. B. Perkins at Kalama, W. T.

At the Portland school meeting last Monday evening a five mill tax for the support of the schools, was levied. $250,000 was spent in '82.

A Russian named Alexander Barballa was yesterday examined before a medical board, and adjudged insane. He will be taken to the asylum to-day.

Parties recently from Salem state that William De Lashmott, who was sent to the penitentiary from Astoria last winter for kidnapping, is very low with consumption. —Nees.

Will C. King, lecturer for the grand lodge of I. O. G. T., will deliver an address upon the nature and effects of alcohol, at the Presbyterian church at half-past seven, this evening.

We are glad to learn from the attending physician that Dr. Kinsey is out of danger, the fever having broken, and he resting easier. It was a bad shaking up for a gentleman of his years.

The Welcome hears that the Knights Templar of Oregon, have chartered the steamship Queen of the Pacific to take them to the monster meeting of that branch of the Masonic Order in San Francisco.

At the annual meeting for school district No. 18, held on the 5th inst., Thomas Dealey was elected a director to serve for the term of three years, and C. W. Shively was elected clerk for the term of one year.

Capt. Brown, of the firm of Brown & McCabe, is in the city. His resident partner, Wm. L. McCabe, is quite ill, suffering from rheumatism. He was conveyed yesterday to good quarters at St. Mary's hospital.

The C. L. Taylor, recently abandoned off Cape Flattery, is now off the entrance to Barclay Sound. When deserted she had starboard anchor and seventy fathoms of chain out, and this has kept her off shore. —Oregonian.

Men from Redding tell the Ashland Tidings, that the general understanding at that place is that about 5,000 men will be sent to the front about the 10th of this month, to begin work on the extension of the railroad northward.

The Coast Mail says the investigation of the conduct of Desmond, life saving station keeper at Cape Arago, will probably result in a "whitewash." It characterizes the examination as one-sided, as Desmond has influence with officials.

Those who were present at the open lodge meeting of the American Legion of Honor, last Saturday, are loud in their praises of the declamations of little Edith Conn. The little lady has already a state reputation for her remarkable powers and is a prodigy of infant talent.

The Young America sailed for San Francisco to finish cargo yesterday. The Cheesebrough commenced unloading; the Tam O'Shanter came down from Ranier; the Kioto will go to sea as soon as she can get a crew. "Mickey Fat" does not go down to the sea, but will tarry for a season.

The public school at upper town is enjoying a prosperous term. Among the new improvements a new stove occupies a prominent place. There are 70 names on the roll, and the ability to so successfully handle so large a school reflects great credit upon Miss L. L. Allen the teacher whose services the district is fortunate in securing.

There is a good second-hand piano for sale at M. Olsen's furniture store. Intending buyers would do well to call and see it.

Liver pudding and head cheese at George Ganz's.

Chehalis Items.

The hardest things for strangers to find out, is where the Chehalis river begins, and Gray's Harbor ends, they are so near the same size for quite a distance.

Things are lively at the Hoquiam mills, but there seems to be a dearth of men, so there is a chance for man hunting work, providing they are not afraid of work.

The schooner Gardfield brought a large quantity of goods to the store at the Hoquiam mill. Simpson Bros. are doing a good work for the section of country adjoining their mill.

A vessel, name unknown, came in to the harbor through a mistake Friday morning. She was bound for Shoalwater Bay, but upon discovering his blunder, the captain concluded to load at the Hoquiam, instead of hunting for the bay. —Vidette.

From $40 to $65 per month is the ruling wages for loggers at Coos Bay.

Portland is to have a new Methodist church to cost $40,000. A $20,000 Catholic church is to be built at Vancouver.

The Madison Square Theater company played "Emeralda" in Portland last night. They go to San Francisco on to-day's steamer.

One of the most remarkable echoes we have noticed in this vicinity is observable on the other side of Lewis & Clarke's. A shot fired at the point opposite echoes and re-echoes, and then all is still for a moment when a rattle like the discharge of musketry is heard and then a thundering reverberation away in the direction of Baldie Mountain.

A singular case was brought before Judge McGuire yesterday wherein Mrs. Childs asks possession of her daughter Minnie, a girl of 15 years. The child was produced in court on a writ of habeas corpus from where she was staying as servant in a family and stated her reasons for not wanting to live with her mother. The case was heard with closed doors. Judge McGuire took the case under advisement.

A. J. Smith, an old resident here, sold on Monday last $850 worth of beef on foot, to James Chambers, of Olympia. Mr. Smith has sold during the past year about $2,500 worth of beef, which is his usual annual sale, as he sells only his increase. This would seem to indicate that Chehalis county is a good stock country. The stock just sold to Chambers brought ten and a quarter cents per pound, estimated net weight. —Chehalis Vidette.

Captain Pease, superintendent of the city dredger, wishes to notify captains of steamboats that when they are going down stream and see a red light on the dredger, it is a sign that she is lying outside the channel, and that they must pass with port helm. In the same position, boats coming up stream will see a green light, and will pass with starboard helm. When the lights are reversed the dredger will be on the inside of the channel. In a fog, three whistles will be blown by the dredger. In windy weather, when the dredger becomes unmanageable, steamboats are probably requested to have their life-boats ready and trust to Providence. —Standard.

Something to Write About.

Probably no abstract subject among all the daily concrete subjects, comes nearer to or oftener in the mind of the purveyor of public information than the one which is embodied in the title to this article. There is never a lack of topics; the question is not one of provision, but one of selection, and is generally answered according to the tastes or bias of the newspaper writer. Whether to elaborate the reported boom in real estate, or write up the resources of the country; to language the thought of the man with a grievance, or take in hand the matter of reform; to report the sermon, or the gossip of the saloon; to chronicle the arrival of Col. Smith, or the expected departure of Major Jones; to tell the exact, unvarnished and unwholesome truth about a private scandal, or to accord to it the clarity of silence; to make trouble between friends by officious announcement or to ignore the idle rumors that malice suggests; to arouse the timid or suppress the wicked; to make due announcement of crime committed with all its ghastly details and fill the columns of his paper with garbage and filth from every slum and sink hole within reach of his observation, or tacitly assume that certain trees produce certain fruits and leave the subject to the imagination; to recount the doings of the latest social gathering or devote the space to information concerning the outside world; these and others of like import make up the questions that come up for settlement every day. They constitute purely a matter of judgment, in a business point of view, and of personal feeling socially considered. If a newspaper reporter lacks judgment, he can't help showing it, just as any other workman; if he report the dog-fight, and ignore the lecturer, his lack of judgment is lamented by those who considered the lecture a good one, and confidently expected to see a good report of it, while on the other hand should he omit the homely details of the canine conflict, and in graceful diction revivify the lecturer's thoughts, those whose tastes lie in an opposite direction would find the paper tame. The best thing he can do is to have a middling tight grip on a few general principles and exemplify them: first that what his readers want are the facts; they want to know what's going on and to feel when they read an item that that's just the way it occurred, and that they have the correct version of the matter before them; second, that the average men and women, taken just as they come in the census, don't care much for opinions, or what the writer thinks; they want the points and let do their own thinking; third, that what is said must be so said that there is an element of common horse sense in it; that when they read what is said they can mentally say "that is so," as they go along; fourth, that private opinions and rights be respected, and no attempt made to ridicule or injure anyone, unless that one sets himself up to be a public censor, and even then treat him as a Christian; fifth, that a newspaper should not be one's responsibilities, and assume no functions of missionary work. It is simply a reflex of the community in which it is published; it tells what goes on, what men are doing, and how other men like those doings, but has no obligation to turn aside the general current of human events. And to this we think every newspaper writer, if in harness, and every newspaper reader, unless a bigot, will say "amen."
