Lincoln's Dry Humor.

"Just after Jeff Davis had been captured," says a gentleman, reported in the Boston Traveler, "I called over to the white house to see President Lincoln. I was ushered in, and asked him, 'Well, Mr. President, what are you going to do with Jeff Davis?' Lincoln looked at me for a moment and then said to me in his peculiarly humorous way: 'That reminds me of a story. A boy 'way out west, caught a coon and tamed it to a considerable extent, but the animal created such mischief about the house that his mother ordered him to take it away and not to come home until he could return without his pet. The boy went down town with the coon, secured with a strong piece of twine, and about an hour was found sitting on the edge of the curbstone, holding the coon with one hand and erying as though his heart would break. A big-hearted gentleman who was passing stopped and kindly inquired: 'Say, little boy, what is the matter?' The boy wiped a tear from his eye with his sleeve, and in an injured tone the matter! You see that coon L there? Well, I don't know what to do with the darned thing. I can't sell it, I can't kill it, and ma won't let me take it home."
