Woman Named In Formal Articles.

The formal articles of impeachment against State Insurance Commissioner Perry A. Her name is mentioned in two of the three counts against the insurance commissioner. The second article charges collusion between the commissioner and Miss Gwinn relative to state printing, at a time the young woman was operating a small printing plant. The third article is "That the said Perry A. Ballard, while insurance commissioner of the state of Oklahoma, was guilty of an offense involving moral turpitude to the extent of debauching public morals and in violation of the public decency in that during the year 1912 he employed and placed in his office one Nannie Gwinn with whom he had been and was maintaining improper inlations and with whom he continued to maintain such relations during the time of her employment in his office."
