DRUG STORE.

And he buried him in a valley in the land of

Mosh ever against his people; but no man

knows his sepulchre unto this day.

[Deut. xxxiv, 5.

By Nelo's lonely mountain,

On this side Jordan's wave,

In a vale in the land of Moab,

There lies a lonely grave.

And no man dug that sepulchre,

And no man saw it e'er since,

For the angels of God upturned the sod

And laid the dead man there.

That was the greatest funeral

That ever passed on earth.

But no man heard the trumping

Or saw the train go forth.

No solemn dirge was sung

When the night is done,

And the crimson streak on ocean's cheek

Grows into the great sun.

Not solemnly on the spring time

Her crocus of verdure waves,

And all the trees on all the hills

Upon their thinnest boughs;

So without sound of music,

Or voice of them that wept,

Slily down from sky and soil's crown,

The great procession swept.

Perhaps the bold old eagle,

On gray Beth-pa's height,

They his rocky eyrie,

Looked on the wondrous sight.

Perhaps the lion stalked about

On the summit of his den,

And saw that hollow spot;

For he saw a bird have seen and heard

That which man knows not.

But when the warrior died,

His comrades in the war,

With arms reversed and stilled drum,

Follow the funeral car.

They show the banner taken,

And after him lead a muffled steed,

While pale the minute gun.

Amid the noblest of the land

Men lay the dead to rest.

And give the dead a funeral place

As his costly mantle dress.

In the great military transport,

Where lights like glories fall,

On the battle-field and the organ rings

Along the embowered wall.

This was the bravest warrior

That ever lived on earth;

And his most glorious feat

Was to die in the field of war;

And his most noble deed

Was to die in the field of war.

On the battle-field and the organ rings

Along the embowered wall.

And he was not high honor?

O, look to his people!

To his state and his people!

With stars for his people!

And his most noble deed

Was to die in the field of war.

On the battle-field and the organ rings

Along the embowered wall.

And he was not high honor?

O, look to his people!

To his state and his people!

With stars for his people!

And his most noble deed

Was to die in the field of war.
