

Phenix Rodivorus.
The Californian says the following simple and touching remarks, also to accompanying poem have been re-hand from the Phenix:
"The within the name and style of 'He Done His Level Best' was one among the whitest men I ever saw, and it not only in his heart to say he's glad the pose was in his hand and gone home to the States. He was here in an early day, and he was the handiest man about taken hold of anything that came along you most ever saw, I judge; he was a cheerful, sterner, crotchety, always doing something, and no man ever saw him ever see him do anything by halves. Proclaim was his natural gift, but he wasn't a man to lay back and twiddle his thumbs, because there didn't happen to be nothing to do in his own especial line—no sir, he was a man who would meander forth and stir up something for himself. His last act was to go to his pile of 'kings and queens' to fill, but which he didn't fill, when there was a 'flush' out again him, and naturally, you see, he went under. And so, he was cleaned out, as you may say, and he struck the home trail, cheerful but flat broke. I knowed this talented man in Arkansas, and if you would print this humbly tribute to his gregarious abilities, you could greatly oblige his unhappy friend."
Sensu, Southern Mines, June, 1865.
BY DONE HIS LEVEL BEST.
Was he a talking on the day—
He done it with a zest!
Was he a talking on the day—
He done it with a zest!
If he'd a regular talk to do,
He'd tramp from East to West,
And North to South—in cold and heat—
He done his level best.
If he was preaching on his beat,
He'd tramp from East to West,
And North to South—in cold and heat—
He done his level best.
No! I ease and sing and howl and pray,
And dance and drink and jest,
And he and she—all see to it,
He done his level best.
What'er this man was not to do,
He done it with a zest!
No matter what his contract was,
He'd do his level best.

No USE FOR TROUSERS.—On the morning of the meteoric shower in 1832, old Peyton Roberts, who intended making a suit out of the work, got up in the middle of the display. On going to his door, he saw, with amazement, the sky lit up with the falling meteors, and he concluded at once the world was on fire, and that the day of judgment had come. He stood for a moment gazing in speechless terror at the scene, and then with a yell of horror sprang out of the door into the midst of the falling stars, and there in his efforts to dole them, he commenced a series of ground-tumbling that would have done honor to a rope-dancer. His wife, being awakened in the mean time, and seeing Peyton jumping and skipping about the yard, bawled out to him to know "what in the name of common sense, he was doing out there, dancin' round without his clothes on!" But Peyton heard not. The judgment, and the long back accounts he would have to settle, made him heedless of all terrestrial things, and his wife, by this time becoming alarmed at his behavior, sprang out of bed, and running to the door, shrieked out at the top of her lungs—
"Peyton! I say Peyton! What do you mean, jumpin' there? Come, and put your trousers on!"
"Trousers! What the—! Is the use of trousers when the world's on fire?"

"DEARLY INTOXICATED.—The most remarkable case of intoxication ever heard of, is related by the Troy Times. About a month ago, an elicit whisky distillery was in full blast on Green Island, near Troy. One night—it was a still night—the man running the machine had made eighteen gallons of whisky, and put it out in the open air to cool. Along came a cow. She was thirsty, and the beverage looked inviting. She swallowed every drop—eighteen gallons of unrectified whisky, warranted to kill at forty rods. The cow has been drunk ever since. She staggered home, and is now in the fourth week of a grand old bonder. The cow eats nothing, falls down whenever they try to raise her up, and has become as lean as a crow instead of a cow. This cow, beside, had a young calf, whose strange behavior first led to the discovery of the state of the mother cow. It reeled round and round, and lifting three legs and a tail in the air, actually spun on the fourth leg.

OLD TWO VETERANS.—Veterans are no longer a novelty in this country. Every day they pass in honorable procession through the streets on their return from camps and battlefields. But we have two veterans, representing both branches of the service, who are perhaps the most advanced in age of any living representatives of the army and navy of any country. There is the veteran Winfield Scott, who was congratulated by a party of his fellow citizens at West Point on the 13th of last month upon attaining his seventy-ninth birthday. Scott was born during the progress of the Revolutionary War, a few years before the adoption of the Constitution and ten years after the Declaration of Independence. The great American soldier and the American nation are nearly equal in age. Winfield Scott has lived through three wars, and each was a victory, yet his form is as erect as ever. He used to say that he was as tall and his backbone so straight that people called him proud. If he only had a stoop, he thought, he would be considered a modest man. However, although in his eightieth year, his back bone is as straight as ever. The oldest representative of the navy, who has also witnessed three wars, is Rear Admiral Charles Stewart, of Philadelphia, who was eight-seven years old on Friday, and had been sixty-seven years of his long life in the American navy. He was born in 1778, just after the British evacuated Philadelphia, and he is reported to-day to be "active, healthy and cheerful." These are veterans of whom the country may be proud. Born almost with the republic, they have lived to see it pass through trials out of which few nations have come triumphantly.—N. Y. Herald.
