Death-Bed Repentance.

PRECIOUS few people take any stock in deathbed repentances, but nearly all conclude that a man that is so awfully a rry on his death-bed for things in the past, would do the same things again if he lived, or other things just as bad. It's a mighty poor place to be sorry.

BUT Joshua Whitney was sorry and he was dying. He was AWrULLY sorry. He had shet his little motherless girl in a drunken spree and then shot himself, and now, entirely sober, he recalled the deeds done, and if he could have been spared, would have taken the Morrell Cure and never drank again.

BUT it was too late! In a few hears more, he would be through with all would be through with all earthly thoughts and deeds; Too late! Too late!! Those are very had words to use to one's self.
