curing eight other animals, making a total of 23 head. Mr. Bishoy has three ranches on the Puget Sound, is largely interested in timber and has several times represented his district in the State Legislature. He is a good judge of cattle and, probably, thoroughly-going business man. He expects to devote more of his time to breeding, and we believe he now has as fine a herd of Holsteins as there is west of the Rockies.

J. W. Gilsen, of Redmond, has long been building up a herd of Aryshires. He has just received from Scotland 44 cows and hifers, the shipment comprising the largest single importation ever made to America. He has in all now over 150 head of this breed. He has grazed Canada, Scotland, and the United States for the best stock to be found. In addition, he has developed a strain of Morgan horses, and brings horses and poultry. He has announced his intention of following the North Pacific fair circuit this fall, and his exhibit will be one of the strongest single displays to be made.

Cattle men are now seeing an exceptionally fine display of stock this fall at the State Fair, and in some departments by long odds the best ever shown in the state.

At a recent show of Shorthorn cattle at Portland J. T. Langharn, of Little Fitz, Lewis County, bought Langharn, Golden Belle and three two-year-old heifers. T. M. Melroe, of Oregon, bought the sale.
