

From the New Ark Advertiser.

THE WHIGS SEEK—

To advance the greatest good of the country, irrespective of party;
To preserve the Republic in its purity and simplicity in which it was left by Washington and Madison;
To oppose the concentration of power in the hands of a grasping Executive;
To preserve the respective principle unimpaired;
To resist the "wiring-in and wiring-out" demagogues, and to place the people on their guard against the arts of abandoned politicians;
To spread throughout the length and breadth of the land, all knowledge; but most, that knowledge which will acquaint the citizens with the nature of our inestimable institutions;
To oppose government corruption in whatever quarter it may be found;
To spurn all who would array the poor against the rich—who seek to suppress the better feelings of man by arousing the worse;
To resist all wild experiments;
To cause the government to regard itself as the agent, not the principal—the servant the People, not their master;
To overthrow the principle which punishes one man because of his political opposition, and rewards another because of party sentiments;
To depreciate the interference of office-holders in elections, as tending, in the words of Jefferson, to "another the constitutional principles of elections."
To cherish home industry;
To develop the resources of the country by a liberal system of Internal Improvement;
And to abjure the effort to reduce freemen to the hard money vassalage of slaves.

THE VAN BUREN PARTY—

To advance the greatest good of those in power having strict reference to the support of party;
To reduce the Republic to an office-holder's machine;
To concentrate power in the hands of a grasping Executive;
To destroy the representative principle, by buying up the People's Representatives by bribes of foreign missions and home Secretaryships;
To mislead the people by the hypocritical cant of Democracy;
To cover up corruption in the Departments of Government;
To array the poor against the rich—to enlist passion in a crusade against reason;
To indulge in wild experiments, which have already rocked the Republic to its centre;
To separate the interest of the government from the interest of the people;
To establish the principle which punishes an opponent for his opposition, and rewards a friend for his partisan servility;
To array the office-holders into Pretorian hands of political operatives; thus smothering the Constitutional principles of elections;
To check national works of improvement;
To break down the credit system and reduce all prices save the salaries of office-holders, to the standard of gold and silver.

A Dreadful Earthquake.—

A letter from India gives an account of a dreadful earthquake, with which the city of Ava was visited on the 23d of March last. After some preliminary particulars, the account proceeds:

The earth was rent in several places into wide chasms and fissures, from ten to twenty feet wide, from which deluges of water had gushed, and a large quantity of gray earth was thrown up, covering the place around several feet deep, and emitting a sulphurous smell. The rapid current of the Irrawaddy was even reversed at the time of the shock, and ascended up its bed for a while. The old cities of Ava and Tagaung, with their numerous pagodas and other edifices, have also been reduced to heaps of ruins, and their walls shattered and thrown down. The towns and villages above and below the capital have likewise suffered, and it is reported that some have even been swallowed up and others destroyed by inundation. The number of persons that perished here and in surrounding towns and villages amounts to between 200 and 300, which number may of course, be expected to swell as reports arrive from more distant places, amongst those who died are Mr. Harpeast, the wealthy American merchant, and three children of Mr. Avenese. These were the survivors of a family of six children, and he has now been deprived of them too. We have, indeed, to be grateful to Providence that, though we have been in the midst of so many dangers, and where so many have perished, none of us have suffered either in person or property. We owe certainly our escape to the house being built of the same light materials as the general buildings here; but we had high been swallowed up by some openings and gaps in the earth, for some of these were not many yards from our residence. An occurrence like this is not in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant in this country, nor is there any mention of one in their historical records.

An Expensive Ram.—

A funny law suit came off week before last, between two farmers at Pownall, Vt.—George Layden had a very ferocious cow, which he was wont to let run about the highway. A neighbor of Mr. Layden's had also a cow, which he was driving home from pasture, with her young calf, on a certain occasion. As the cow was passing the ram, who was grazing on the highway as usual, the ram took it into his head to butt the calf, which he knocked down and killed. Both the cow and her master undertook to punish the ram for this piece of brutality, and during the attack upon him, the animal got the better of the man and gave him a severe bunting, broke one of his ribs, and was laid up a month in consequence. For this assault and battery, the suit in question was brought against Mr. Layden, and the jury fined defendant $27.50 damages and costs.

New article of Merchandise.—

There was shipped in New York, on Saturday, on board steamboat John W. Richmond, which arrived here on Sunday morning, a common meat barrel, directed to Luther Pollard, Boston, Mass., with the letter W. inclosed in brackets. After the arrival of the boat at the depot, India Point, Providence, one of the hands on board, discovered that the head of the barrel was not in its proper place, and undertook to replace it. In doing so, it became necessary to take it out; when the barrel was found to contain the body of a young female, apparently about 25 or 30 years of age, with nothing on except a pair of fine white cotton hose, marked with the letter D.

We are informed by Robert Knight, the coroner, that the body appeared to be that of a person recently deceased, of small stature, with a delicate frame, and long black hair, and was packed in the barrel with straw.

We are requested by the Coroner to say, that the body has been placed in a coffin, and deposited in a tomb; and that any friend of the person may receive the necessary information by applying to him.

General Banking Law.—The decision of the Supreme Court of this state, declaring the Banks established under the General Banking Law to be informal created quite a sensation here yesterday. The decision is, that these Banks are in their nature incorporations; and therefore, that in order to be continually authorized, the act under which they were established, should have passed by a majority of two thirds in both houses,—which it was not.—Of course, if the act itself is unconstitutional, it is either ipso facto a nullity, or it must be immediately repealed, or passed by the constitutional majority. An evening paper presumes that the case will be carried up to the Court of Errors; which is another name for the Senate, acting in a judicial character. Its fate there, will involve the continued existence of Free Banks in the present shape.

MARRIED.

In Deerfield, Mass. 5th inst. Mr. Jesse Allen of Windham, Vt. to Mrs. Charles Chandler of South Hadley, Mass.

DIED.

At New Fane, (Vermont,) on the 10th inst. Hon. JAMES ELLIOT, aged 64 years. He had labored under feeble health for several years, and had recovered from the severe sickness which he experienced last fall at Brattleboro, while attending the Legislature.

Mr. Elliot was extensively known in this region and throughout many parts of the Union, as a public man, and a valiant and upright citizen. From infancy he was remarkable attached to reading and literature. Before he was 7 years old, he had read the Bible regularly through, and possessing the same beloved book, he took peculiar pleasure in looking it over, and examining its ancient leaves, worn away by his tender infantile fingers.

He was a native of Gloucester (Mass.) from which place his widowed mother removed into the interior of Mass. during his infancy. He came to reside in Guilford, Vt. in early life, and enlisted under Gen. Wayne at 18 years of age and served 3 years in the Indian wars, quartered most of the time in the west part of Ohio, then a wilderness. He afterwards went through the service of the Law, and was admitted to the bar in this County. Before 30 years of age, he was elected one of the representatives to Congress from this state and ably discharged that trust for three successive elections. His later life was varied with different duties & services—among others, besides his attention to the practice of the Law, he served several years as Register of Probate and Clerk of the Courts, and for two years past, has had the Office of State Attorney for this County. He has sustained through his life, in a high degree, the inviolable character of an honest man, with talents and intellectual accomplishments of the first order. He has left an affectionate wife and daughter, with two surviving brothers and many friends, to lament his death.

In Putney, Nov. 7, Mrs. Eunice McClafflin, aged 87.

THE Mechanics of this village are hereby requested to meet at the Elliot street school house on Monday evening next, at 6 o'clock, to take into consideration the propriety of forming a society for the purpose of affording each other and their respective families, relief, in the event of sickness or death. Every working man is requested to attend.

"Costly thine habit as thy purse can buy, But not express'd in fancy; rich, not gaudy; For the apparel oft proclaims the man."

THE subscriber's Shop is in the upper story of Bugbee's Store, at the old stand except that his friends must take the trouble to enter at the side of the building and come up one flight of stairs. He has the recent fashions from Europe, including all the new methods in England and the much approved and comfortable German style. He has too the New York Fashions of the latest date. He has selected the very best of journeymen, who do all his work without the help of apprentices. He gives to the Cutting business his own constant personal attention, (whether to be finished in his shop or elsewhere) and will, he is very confident, be able to please all those who entrust him with their work.

The subscriber ventures again to remind his friends that the good opinion of the world and indeed even their own dignity and self respect, must depend on personal neatness. Let those who are fortunate in life present themselves to society as examples not of foppery but of taste and elegance in dress.—Let those who are sinking in poverty be careful that they do not also sink in their personal habits. The laws and public policy encourage every man to protect his person not from cold only, but from degradation and rags. Let the young early learn the difference between gaudy foppery and a correct and manly taste. And above all let that honored class who are passing on to a green old age, be careful to guard as the apple of their eye, the outward marks and tokens of their respectability. There is not an object in the universe so closely associated with our feelings of respect, as a gentleman advanced in life, who preserves to the last his care of his personal deportment and dress.

THESE TRUTHS COME TO US FROM ABOVE. While lower animals are directed by an imperative instinct to make each his appropriate dwelling, MAN is LEFT BY PROVIDENCE to cultivate a nobler taste for architecture. While the birds and the brutes are clothed by the hand that made them, MAN is invited and urged by his very nakedness to acquire an elevated and an elevating taste and dignity in procuring his dress. With the beasts, their covering is a matter of comfort only,—with us there is a MORAL in the subject.
