The New York Journal chartered a special train last Sunday to carry its papers from Springfield, Mass., to St. Johnsbury, a distance of 184 miles. The Journal and the World are to be brought to Brattleboro each Sunday morning throughout the sum mer, the train being due here at 7:52 and on returning it will pass through here about 4:27 Sunday afternoon. It is understood that this train will carry passengers

There was a decided drop in groceries on illiot street yesterday afternoon. Warren Miller of Scott's grocery store started out with one of the largest loads he has carried this season, and drove to the house of J. C. Frederickson, at 126 Union street, off Elliot. While Mr. Miller was in the house the horse wandered off a steep embankment 30 feet in length. The wagon rolled completely over, and when Mr. Mil-ler appeared the horse was lying upon its back. Four bushels of potatoes chased each other down the hill, 178 out of 180 eggs were broken, and a barrel of flour was deposited in a neighbor's yard.

The village committee for the children's fresh air work had their final meeting with showing of results of work last evening and the report was exceedingly gratifying By the efforts of the committees from th various churches the sum of $204 has been raised, and additional free entertainment provided for 21 children. This represents money gift of $288, and the rec-72 little children into the fresh air homes of our immediate vicinity. No more beau-tiful charity presents itself than this, and the response of kindly hearts and hospita ble homes has indeed been Christian and generous. Arrangements will be perfected at once for their coming and duly announce ed, and more places than are needed have already been offered for their reception.

Marshall A. Howe, a former instructor at the High school, was in Brattleboro Tuesday, on his way from New York to his home in Newfane where he will spend the summer. After leaving the High school Mr. Howe went to San Franisco, where he was professor of botany in he University of California for four years a course of study in the higher branches it the botanical department of the Columbian University at New York and has recently been elected to a fellowship of which ther are 24 in the university. A fellowship guarantees free tuition and carries with it stipend of $500. At the completion of his course at the university next year Mr. Howe will write a treatise upon certain branches of botanical study.

The Springfield Republican has the following lowing paragraph about the son of a former pastor of the Congregational church in Brattleboro: "A portrait of Gerald Stan-ley Lee is given in the current number of Critic, for which he writes so much and also a characterization of him by a college classmate, Rev. John Sheridan Zelie of Cleveland, O. Mr. Lee's remark-able book, "The Shadow Christ," is meeting a great welcome, and sells well, too, in England as well as in this country. He will publish some day a companion to this book, the Christ Out of the Shadow, as Mr. Zelie intimates. The portrait is as good as one could expect of so individual and changeful a countenance as Mr. Lee's." General Stanley Lee was formerly pastor of the Congregational church in West Springfield, Mass. He resigned his pastor ate to devote his time to literature.

The service at the Baptist Sunday school last Sunday was a special observance of Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee. The rooms were attractively decorated by the members of the school who were once subjects of Queen Victoria, the decorations consisting of bunting and English flags, mountain laurel, and white roses, the Queen's favorite flower, furnished by D. McGillivray. Upon the pulpit was a life size portrait of Victoria drawn by Will Stewart with the letters V. R. (Victoria Regina) in laurel. Appropriate remarks were made by L. W. Hawley after which Arthur Maynard read President McKin-ley's message of felicitation to the Queen, and Miss Corabel Coates read a sketch of the Queen's life. The exercises closed with the singing of "God Save the Queen," adapted. The regular evening service was held in the Sunday school room that all might see the decorations.

Orange, Mass., was the scene last Thurs day of a notable event—the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the marriage of two sisters, Harriet H. and Hannah F Heywood, the former having been united to David Ball, a native of Warwick, in Athol, June 24, 1847, while the latter at the same time and place promised to love and obey George W. Johnson of North Orange. Mr. Johnson was formerly a carpenter and later a farmer. He lived in North Orange, then for many years in Athol, and has been a resident of Orange several years. Capt. Ball was born in Warwick 75 years ago. During the forties he lived in Brattleboro and was a common carrier between this town and Boston. The building of the railroad interfered with his business on the Boston route, and from 1850 to 1860 he was a common carrier between Brattleboro and Jamaica. Capt. Ball was a brave soldier during the war and served with Stannard's brigade which made the memorable charge at Gettysburg. He was captain of Company D. Townshend company, of the 10th Vermont regiment. Since the war Capt. Ball Company I of Brattleboro, which will report direct to Col. The cattle were badly scattered, however, over from 500 to 800 miles of territory. Never in the history of the company had its cattle become so separated.

A telegram was received Tuesday stating that Joseph Ferriter had been injured in Boston, and his brother, James, clerk at Dunham Brothers', left on the first train. Joseph is a street car conductor, and in attempting to board a moving car just as one of the passengers was getting off, he was thrown heavily to the pavement home of his sister, and remained in that condition two hours. His injury, however, s not serious and he came to Brattleboro vesterday. He will remain here for a two

The foreman of the men who are build H .. which is to be the summer house of A. Overman of bicycle fame, brought a beautiful specimen of mineral to Druggist H. A. Chapin for examination recently. Mr. Chapin made the examination Tuesday night and found the stone to be green duorite, or fluor spar, with perfect octa-hedral cleavage. By turning to Dana's manual he found that Putney (Vt.) and Westmoreland, N. H., aside from Derby-shire, England, were among the principal ocalities in the world where fluorite is found. The specimen brought from West-moreland was the best that has been seen in Brattleboro, and Mr. Chapin will place it in the collection at the Brooks library.

The beautiful home of Mrs. E. D. Greenwood in Dummerston was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, June 30 when, amid a profusion of flowers, her Mass., was united in marriage to J. L. Taylor, a well-known citizen of Greenfield, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. E. Marggraf of Bellows Falls in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties, after which a wedding breakfast was served. The bride was becomingly attired in a beautiful blue silk trimmed with white silk lace and pearls, and carried bride roses. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor took the afternoon southern bound train for a wedding trip, carrying with them the many hearty congratulations and

There is a double stage service on the three overland routes into Brattleboro. The terms for carrying the mails expired July 1, and the old contractors lost their daces. Walter Hubbard of Halifax is the new mail carrier on the Jacksonville route, ut Mr. Warner, the old stage driver, continues to go over the course for passengers and express. F. G. Smith carries the mail between here and Wilmington, but Judson Stafford follows the example of Mr. Warner, and does not propose to go out of busi-ness because he has lost the mail route. Henry Allen has the Chesterfield mail route. H. R. Brown continues to run the Chesterfield stage, going direct to the lake instead of through Chesterfield Centre. J. A. Taylor has been carrying the mail to Eagle (North Hinsdale) but Newton Stearns has the contract. He has arranged with Mr. Polley, the Hinsdale stage driver, Leyden Bovey, an employe at the Brattle-boro Retreat, stopped in Greenfield Thurs-day while on his way to North Adams. The Greenfield correspondent tells this story of what happened: "He met Sargent and together they had several drinks. Bovey mentioned the fact that he had money when Sargent offered to show him the way to a resort and took him down through the Cheapside district and over the bridge into Deerfield. Bovey com-plained of the long distance they were traveling and started to sit down on the grass, when Sargent attacked him and bore him to the ground and demanded his money. Bovey is about 30 years old, and being the more muscular of the two he eded in throwing him off, and Sargent fled up over the railroad tracks and through the Abercrombie pasture into town. He was recognized late in the evening on the street by Bovey, who notified the officers and he was arrested.'

store last week Thursday. A. E. Weatherhead of Vernon is the champion fisherman as far as weight is concerned. He caught last week four large fish that had been left in a hollow on his lower meadow by the receding waters of the Connecticut. The largest fish weighted Li7 pounds and the total weight of the four was mil-pounds. The fish are described as covered with bright spots, having only a few scales, the mouth being sucker shaped. The flesh was of fine fla-vor and colored like saimon. No one who saw the fish could tell to what species they belonged, but Brattleboro piscatorians think Mr. Weatherhead landed German carp. Carp are being caught in the river this year for the first time, and they have been seen repeatedly near the toll bridge. Mr. Weatherhead gave a fine fish dinner the 28th to his sisters and their families.

The North Brookfield, Mass., Journal of last Friday contains the following in its West Brookfield correspondence: "A fish linner was given Wednesday by Mr. F. W. Blair to a few enthusiastic devotees of the rod in honor of his friend, Mr. Harry Lawrence of Brattleboro. Dr. C. E. Bill, Dr. F. W. Cowles, Mr. John Shakley and Rev. W. Loomis were among those present The evening was spent in telling marvelous and extraordinary fish stories, and in recounting various adventures and hair-oreadth escapes. Much speculation was had at the table as to how Mr. Blair was able to secure from the lake two bass that weighed just two and one-half pounds each, but these and other fish were in evilence and superbly cooked, thanks to Mrs. Blair." Mr. Lawrence, who returned this week, reports excellent sport in several Massachusetts towns, with catches of bass running from two to four pounds.

Judge H. H. Wheeler has handed down a decision in favor of the defendants in the famous suit of Bannerman against the Winchester Repeating Arms pany of New Haven, Conn. 100,000 persons were directly interested in the result of this suit, as they were liable for damage for infringements if the plaintiff won. The suit was brought in October, 1894, by Francis Bannerman of Brooklyn, N. Y., against the Winchester company to enjoin them from making the Winchester model '90 rifle and the Winbester repeating shotgun, model '93, alleging that the supporting forearm action by which these guns are manipulated was an infringement upon patents owned by him. Bannerman claimed $10,000 damages and a royalty upon all the guns of these models which the Winchester had made up to the time the suit was brought. Judge Wheeler decided that the Winchesguns do not infringe upon the patents of Bannerman and dismissed his bill for damages and an accounting.

The altar was handsomely decorated with flowers and lighted with candles.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

Interesting Service of Recognition by

Last Sunday, according to announce ment, the o0th anniversary of Queen Vic toria's reign was made the subject of specal mention at the opening service of the Baptist Sunday school. On the previous Sunday Superintendent L. W. Hawley had asked all those who had at any time been subjects of the Queen to risc. A large number arose among whom were Thomas Pentland, Sotney Edgett, John Cain, Mrs. F. A. Woodbury, Captain and Mrs. Somer-ville, Mrs. E. P. Foster, Miss Haigh, Mrs. Kirkwood, Mrs. Brockington and others.

Mr. Hawley then said that the Jubiles would be specially celebrated on the fol-lowing Sunday, and these persons were in vited to decorate appropriately the Sunday school building. They rose to the occasion enthusiastically and great was the delight and surprise of the great number who ntered the chapel on that day.

Immense quantities of laurel (what could have been more appropriate) were procured. The platform was fringed with a heavy mass of it, the piano and organ were covered with it and large bouquets were distributed. Donald McGillivray, the genial Scotch florist, gladly sent a large box of beautiful white and crimson roses. Five colored portraits of the Queen were procured from Montreal, and our artist, Will Stuart, made a nearly life-size crayon portrait of the Queen, which was framed and placed at the rear of the desk against the large division window. English flags abounded and bunting was festooned around the balcony and from the ceiling. A monogram, "V. R." (Victoria Regina) was wrought in white flowers and hung in front of the desk. Altogether the effect was very beautiful and inspiring.

In his opening remarks and prayer the superintendent alluded to the day as one which was honored because of personality behind it, and invoked blessing and added ears of usefulness for the noble President McKinley's congratulatory letter to Queen Victoria was read by Mr. Maynard, the established church prayers for the day were read by Mr. Temple, an appreciative tribute to her noble character was read by Miss Coates, and after a few ongratulatory words by Mr. Temple, the school arose and sang "God Save the

Was In a Dress Suit Case Stolen by M. Drislane.

Providence Depot at Boston --- Drislane's Story and What Frank Stoddard Said About Him. Messrs. Patten and Piper are special officers at the Providence depot in Boston who are constantly on the guard for pick-pockets, bag sneaks and the various other kinds of thieves who congregate about a terminal station. Their eagle eyes detected Michael Drislane loating about the staion Tuesday evening and they immediateadvertised last week finishing with an auction sale. Thesday evening, and his store is now closed. Mr. Barker expects to real and about the numerous passengers taking Just before the New York train, which connects with the Fall River boat, left the station, Drislane boarded the smoking car. fust as the train started he jumped from the car and fell in a heap on the station platform. He sprang to his feet and picked up a large aligator dress suit case which he held in his hand when he fell. When he reached the main waiting room the officers accosted him, and told him he was wanted at police headquarters. He said: Why, this is a mistake, but I am willing to go there and show you that I am not man wanted.'

When the prisoner was taken to the in-pector's room he said his name was "Mark Dresdaine," 23 years old, a wood finisher by trade. He claimed to have come to Boston recently from St. Louis, and said he was staying with friends in

The bag was a very fine one, filled with all the appurtenances of a gentleman's toilet, including a dress suit, a bicycle suit, five razors, two sliver-topped brushes, a silver tooth brush holder, a silver strop holder, a jewel case, filled with silver and gold collar and cuff bottons, necktie holders and scarf pins, to say nothing of a large quantity of shirts, collars and cuffs. The total value of the contents of the bag was estimated from $150 to $300. silver articles were marked with the initials J. K. H., and on the bag in gold letters was the name J. Kyle Holloway. Two pairs of gloves with electrical attachments and a lot of circulars describing then tended to show that Mr. Holloway, the owner of the bag, was a salesman for the Vitalized Electrical Glove company of Chi-cago. It is probable that Mr. Holloway, who was on his way to New York, discovered his loss before he reached Fall River and that he recovered the bag at police headquarters the following day. Drislane asked that a message be sent to 20 Bulfinch street. Reporters called at that address, and the landlady, Mrs. Stone, showed them to a room where they found Frank Stoddard, another young man, formerly of Brattleboro. The Boston Journal tells the story of what happened

Stoddard said: "I met Dresdaine five weeks ago on the street, and as he was an old schoolmate of mine in Vermont and he was without food and lodging I brought him to this room. I gave him money, and he started to look for work. I am surprised that he should do anything like that. Dresdaine comes from a wealthy family in Vermont, and his sister is housekeeper for ex-Gov. Fuller of Vermont. Dresdaine is the black sheep. If his mother knew of this affair she would be heart-broken." While the young man (Stoddard) was talking the reporter noticed that he was wearing a shirt that was marked "J. P. Lagare, Charlestown, S. C."

"Whose shirt is that" inquired the re-

"That is one that Dresdaine gave me aturday night when he brought a dres suit case here. He said that he had bought it for 50 cents," replied the young

He was then informed that the shirt was a stolen one. He consented to go to headquarters at once. . So he packed up the articles, and went to headquarters with the reporters. There he told Inspectors Wise and Robinson the story.

He said the fellow's right name was Michael Drislane. The reporter then went on a search for the case which held Mr. Legare's underclothing and toilet ar-ticles. He found it in the room of a wellknown young man in the West End, who bought it for $2 in good faith. He also came to headquarters and told his story.

stolen last Saturday night from the Providence station. The police have been searching for it ever since, and had it not been for the prompt work of the reporter they would still be chasing wild clues. When Drislane was searched a silk hand-kerchief was found bearing the name of J. P. Legare.

Drislane will be arraigned this week and his picture will be placed in the rogues gallery. Drislane formerly ran a pool room in Hooker block in company with his brother. The two young men left Brattleboro because they feared that they would be sued for damages by the wife of a man who was imprisoned after buying liquor at the pool room. There was a rumor in town last winter that Drislane had been arrested in Boston for some crime, but his friends denied the story. Drislane came to Brattleboro a few weeks ago but

DISTRICT NO. 6.

The school in district No. 6, taught by ula Belle Horton, closed last Friday with a picnic in Chamberlain's grove. The picnic was a very pleasant affair and was attended by the residents in the district and many other friends. Miss Horton's school has been made successful by a special effort of the pupils to make a good record. There have been no instances of tardiness and only three have been absent during the term. Frank Farnum, aged five years, won the prize for receiving the greatest number of merit stars.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The regular young men's meeting will be held Sunday at 4 o'clock. Some of the membership fees are now due and they should be paid promptly. Secretary Wilcox of Meriden, Conn., and some members of the association who are making a tour of Vermont on their bicycles are expected to call at the associaion rooms Monday.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, prosounced at hourable. Science has proved catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manfactured by F J Cheney & Co. Toledo, Onto, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful it acts directly on the blood and inucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.
