SERVICES FOR DR. D. H. SLEEM

Arctic Brotherhood Will Conduct Services—Judge F. M. Brown to Deliver Eulogy.

The funeral services over the remains of Dr. D. H. Sleem who died last Saturday, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Eagle Hall. The business houses will all be closed in memory of the doctor, who was held in the highest regard by the people of the community.

The services will be conducted by the Arctic Brotherhood, Arctic Chief Sam McNeice conducting the services, assisted by Past Arctic Chief Thomas Quinn, Vice Arctic Chief Albert Dowling, J. G. Snyder, chaplain; Herbert Davis, keeper of the nuggets and Walter Stuart, secretary of the order.

Judge F. M. Brown will deliver the eulogy.

W. H. Caswell, the funeral director, will have charge of the arrangements at Eagle Hall, which will be used for the services.

A committee of members from each of the lodges of which the deceased was a member have been working all day draping the hall and preparing it for tomorrow.

The body has been prepared by the Valdez Undertaking company and has been placed in the hall and many floral tokens of love and regard have been sent to the hall, which will be kept open from now until the hour of service.

The people of Seward, in which town Doctor Sleem spent several years, have telegraphed to Rev. Charles S. Price as follows:

"Christian friends in Seward convey appreciation of Dr. Sleem's character."

(Signed) "CHRISTIAN FRIENDS."

Dr. Sleem was highly regarded by the people of Seward and numbered the entire population among his friends.

The public schools in Valdez and the Reservation will also be closed, as the deceased frequently delivered lectures to the scholars and was beloved by them all. The death of no man or woman in Valdez could have affected as many people as did the death of Dr. Sleem.

Dr. Sleem was a member of the Odd Fellows, Eagles, Arctic Brotherhood and Pioneers of Alaska. The body will be shipped outside on the Alameda, which was the oft expressed wish of the deceased.

BLEEDING A KING.

Louis XIV., a Grasping Doctor and an Ambitious Surgeon.

In 1693, when Louis XIV. began to feel the first touches of age, his physicians ordered him to be bled once a month. That duty was of course entrusted to Marechal, his Irish surgeon.

There was at the time in Paris, says the British Medical Journal, a young brother of the craft who conceived the idea of making his fortune by bleeding the king. The enterprise was difficult, but he knew that the most solid doors can often be opened with a golden key.

Following the advice of Iago, he put money in his purse and sought an introduction to Antoine Daquin, the king's chief physician. The negotiation was conducted on a strict business footing. Daquin, who was known to love money, was told that 10,000 crowns were deposited with a notary who had instructions to transfer the sum to him as soon as the surgeon had got the job.

It was not an easy thing to manage, as Marechal never left the king. One day, however, he asked permission to leave Versailles for three days. Daquin seized the opportunity to introduce his protegee, whom he had ready at hand for the purpose. Feeling the king's pulse one morning, as usual, he pretended to be alarmed at its strength and volume and ordered the illustrious patient to be bled forthwith. As Marechal was away, the king hesitated, but fear soon made him yield to his physician's proposal. The young surgeon bled the king, and Daquin got his money.

In the meantime a message had been dispatched for Marechal, who was not far off. He returned to Versailles in haste and was much surprised to find that the king, whom he had left in the best of health, had been bled. He was not on friendly terms with Daquin, and he quickly grasped the situation. He went to see the young surgeon and forced him to disclose the whole plot.

When the king learned the truth, he flew into a terrible rage, ordered Daquin to be arrested and placed the matter in the hands of the council of state. That obsequious body, after a very short deliberation, unanimously voted that the physician who had trafficked in the blood of the king deserved death. The royal wrath, however, subsided to some extent, and he graciously spared Daquin's life, but deprived him of his office and exiled him from the court to Quimper-Corentin. The too greedy physician did not long survive his disgrace.—London Standard.

The farmers of the Tanana valley will experiment in the growing of sugar beets. Delegate Wicksham has been investigating the conditions and believes that there is a possible future for that industry in the interior valleys.
