Older Boys' Conference at Battle Creek Last Week

YALE SENT EIGHT DELEGATES IN CHARGE OF SUPT. GREENMAN,--MEETING WILL BE IN PORT HURON NEXT YEAR.

Eight Yale Older Boys and Superintendent A. T. Greenman returned Monday from the Twentieth State Older Boys' conference held by the State Y. M. C. A. at Battle Creek.

The local delegation was made up of Slosser, Clyne, Cogley, Andree, Beard, Etchells, Wark and Supt. Greenman. Mr. Greenman drove through with a load of the boys, the rest going by train.

The St. Clair County delegation numbered 52 and was one of the largest in the state, only being exceeded by Detroit and Barry Co.

The program was one of the best. On Saturday morning Daniel Swamidos, a native of India, captured the boys in a stirring message of the work of the county Y in India. The afternoon was taken up by the Conference picture, parade and sight-seeing. On Saturday evening, Pres. Hoben, of Kalamazoo, gave a remarkable address on "Fellowship in Athletics." There was considerable excitement Saturday evening, due to the voting on where next year's conference should be held. Invitations were received from Port Huron, Lansing and Ann Arbor. A strategic piece of work upon the part of the Port Huron delegates was the distribution of 1200 copies of a special edition of the Times-Herald. As a result of the voting, the majority vote was cast for Port Huron.

Sunday morning the delegates attended the churches of Battle Creek with their hosts, and in the afternoon the conference building was crowded to hear Dr. Fred Stone, of Chicago. In the evening the different delegations read their resolutions, and the closing address was given by Dr. Stone.

In most of the towns of the county the Conference delegates will report in the churches the message of the Conference which was "Christian Fellowship."

MUSIC STUDY CLUB

The Music Study club met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Andree on Tuesday afternoon in regular session, with a good attendance.

After the usual order of business was finished, a short talk on parliamentary laws and usages was given by Mrs. Greenman as the first of a series. The club finds that a knowledge of such will be very beneficial in its work, and Mrs. Greenman kindly consented to act as instructor, using Mrs. Fox's writings as guide.

The subject for the day's program was "Musical Instruments," and an excellent paper was read by Mrs. Staley. Two records were used on the Victrola during the reading to illustrate certain instruments.

Meeting was closed by the singing of "America, the Beautiful."

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Edighoffer.

"Honor Thy Dear Old Mother"

Time has scattered snowy flakes on her brow, plowed deep furrows on her cheek; but she is not beautiful? The lips are thin and shrunken, but these are the lips that have kissed many a hot tear from the childish cheeks, and the sweetest lips in the world. The eye is dim, yet it glows with such a radiance of holy love which can never fade. Ah, yes, she is a dear old mother. The sands of life are nearly run out, but feeble as she is she will go farther and reach down lower for you than will any one else on earth. You cannot walk in the midnight haunt where she cannot see you; you cannot enter a prison whose bars will keep her out; you cannot mount a scaffold too high for her to reach, that she may kiss and bless you in evidence of her deathless love. When the world shall despise and forsake you, when it leaves you by the wayside to die unnoticed, the dear old mother will gather you in her feeble arms and carry you home and tell you of all your virtues until you almost forget that your soul is disfigured by vices. Love her tenderly; cheer her declining years with tender devotion.

There is no limit as to how far a mother's love will follow her child, even in his career of crime. How tenderly and closely must a mother's love entwine itself about the child who walks the path of virtue, unsullied by the stains of sin. The thought forces itself into our minds that the days of mother's life are being numbered. We look upon her pale but pleasant face, but let us see in her gentle smile the index of the tender love that burns in her heart. Let us ever be mindful of the depth and warmth of our mother's love. In all our years it will be for us an inspiration and it will serve as our strongest security against the dangers the future may set across our path. Honor thy dear old mother today, it may be too late tomorrow.

A FRIENDLY LETTER

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 1, 1922
Mr. Menzies,

Dear Sir:—It has dawned upon me that the Expositor which I have subscribed for for my mother, Mrs. S. P. Murphy, must be coming to her simply through your courtesy, as I had overlooked the fact that the subscription had run out.

As mother depends on the Expositor for the majority of the news she receives in regard to the doings of her old neighbors, etc., it would be a great sacrifice for her to be deprived of the paper at this time, therefore I am enclosing my check for $2.00 to renew the subscription, and if you will acknowledge receipt direct to her at 7243 Yale ave., Chicago, I will appreciate it.

With regards from mother, I am,
Yours truly,
Mina Campbell

YALE BAZAARS

The December days have come, and with them the annual church bazaars for which the ladies have worked many weeks, and with the sale of many beautiful and useful articles of women's apparel and good things for the inner man to digest and many other things of which we know they plan to replenish mightily their treasuries and then to give of their bounty with gracious and lavish hands, wherever most needed in their churches.

It is a noble aim and worthy of the support of all.

Two of these bazaars have already passed into history, and both have been the success each hoped for. The Methodist Episcopal ladies held theirs last Saturday in a part of the large dining room of the church. The decorations were elaborate and beautiful, and the different booths were tastefully arranged. Everything was sold that had been prepared in the way of needlework, home baking and candy, and a fine supper was served.

The Presbyterian ladies came next with their sale on Tuesday. The diningroom here was also prettily trimmed with evergreen and dogwood berries, and the various booths were filled with lovely articles, all going like hot cakes. The candy, the popcorn and the chocolate booths were well patronized, as was also the home baking. The ladies here served a simple lunch which many partook of. They, too, were well pleased with the success of the bazaar.

On Saturday of this week the Methodist Protestant ladies held their turn with their sale to be held in the D. M. Davis store.

A HAPPY SCENE

A happy time was had at the Church of Christ on Monday evening this week when the church people met there in a reception for Iva Rector and Bert Beal and to give them a miscellaneous shower before their marriage.

A large number were present and many were the pleasant surprises and innocent jokes sprung upon the unsuspecting couple, even to blind-folding the bride-to-be and dressing her up in real bridal array.

The gifts for the new home were numerous, beautiful and appropriate. The evening ended with a splendid pot-luck supper and many congratulations for the happiness of the bride and groom-to-be.

Strayed—From my farm 2 miles north and 1 1/2 mile west of Yale, Friday, Dec. 1, a small brown horse. Finder please notify me at once. Joseph D. Holcomb, Yale.

A DELIGHTFUL FUNCTION

On Wednesday of last week the Seniors of this school year and the teachers were honored with a luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Andree at their home at five p. m.

The guests, about forty-four in number, were also honored with the opportunity of meeting and conversing with Mrs. Paulsen, who was in Yale for the lecture on that evening and was also a guest at the luncheon.

After the dainty meal, which was enjoyed thoroughly, Mrs. Paulsen, with her charming personality and unique means of attracting and holding interest, gave a short talk along the line of child welfare, using two of her Mother Goose rhymes, "Little Jack Horner" and "Sing a Song of Sixpence," with such splendid adaptation that we wish we could give every one to our readers. Our space is limited, but each one present could further her thought and ideals by word of mouth and much good would result.

Social gatherings like this one between teacher and pupil and parent are productive of many excellent qualities.

Brown City Well Not Oil Well Yet Is Claim

Brown City, Dec. 2.—Enthusiasm ran riot in this community and many were the stories circulated Thursday and Friday when the report was spread that oil had been reached at the oil well on the Yokey brothers farm three and one-half miles west of town, where drilling has been going on for some time.

Drillers found substance that resembled oil, and is said to contain oil of some kind, but just what it will amount to in quality and quantity is to be tested out.

A meeting was held Friday afternoon on the grounds which was largely attended. At this time the bailer was again lowered and more of the oily fluid brought to the surface.

More funds were raised to pay the expenses of drilling a while longer. If oil can be found in sufficient quantity and proves to be valuable, the well will be dynamited and operations commenced.

The county game warden is in this locality looking up violators of the game laws of the state and hunting for all who are without resident hunters' licenses. It would not surprise us if arrests were made for violating the law that requires a person to first secure a license to hunt or trap. Don't you be the first one to get caught.
