IS MUCH PLEASED WITH SOUTH DAKOTA

IOWA MAN SAYS THAT IT SUR-
PASSES HIS STATE

Journeyed With His Wife From Waverly, Iowa, to Aberdeen in Prairie Schooner—Spent Twenty-
Five Days on the Road and Had An Excellent Opportunity to See the Great Blessings of the State.

A trip that was commonly made in the pioneer days of South Dakota but which has been abandoned so long that its very repetition seems a novelty was ended a day or two ago on the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. George Moodie of Waverly, Iowa, to this city on a visit with their niece, Mrs. P. C. Watters.

The journey was a voyage in an old time prairie schooner over the Iowa and South Dakota prairies. For twenty-five days the voyage lasted, during which time the crew of the gallant schooner traveled more than 500 miles. The trip was taken at the time of year when the crops were just commencing to arrive at their maturity, affording the travelers an opportunity to see in all its beauty the grand and glorious country in which they were privileged to be. Mr. Moodie speaks of this state as the best country in which he ever visited and is so taken with it that he thinks that he will invest in some of the land of the Sunshine State. He recently sold his farm a mile and a half from Waverly for $107 per acre, and is willing to put some of the money back into land again.

The start was made, not far from July 1st. The first twelve days were stormy, there being a shower regularly once every twenty-four hours. This made going slow, as the roads became very heavy. The outfit consisted of the large emigrant wagon, Mr. and Mrs. Moodie, five horses and two birds, a magpie and a canary. Mr. and Mrs. Moodie did not see the inside of a house over night from the time they started until they reached Aberdeen. They camped wherever night overtook them and then journeyed on the next morning, as soon as they thought that the team had had sufficient rest to resume the trip. Mrs. Moodie did the cooking and the outdoor life was greatly enjoyed by both.

The route traveled took in the following towns: Ayrdale, Sheffield, Clemme, Britt, Wesley, Algona, Cyl-inder, Whitmore, Emmetsburg, Dickens, Spencer, Sheldon, Boyden and Rock Valley, Iowa; Canton, Sioux Falls, Salem, Huron, Ashton, Redfield, Mellette and Aberdeen.

Speaking of the country through which they traveled Mr. Moodie said: "I never was in a better country than that between Redfield and Aberdeen. The land there is just right and the crops were in excellent condition. The whole state from what I have seen of it—and I have journeyed from the extreme southern to almost the extreme northern part—is much better than that of western Iowa, where the land is too wet. The crops in South Dakota easily surpass those in Iowa, except corn and I am sure that if corn were raised properly in this state that it would succeed. I noticed that where the crop has been cared for it is just as good as it is in Iowa, but the trouble is that too many South Dakota farmers do not care for it after planting time. This is a great mistake. I am positive that if the Iowa farmers cared for their crops as their South Dakota neighbors do, they would never have a yield."

"The first harvesting that we saw done this season was when we passed through Ashton about a week ago. The crop was rye and it was a dandy one too."

"Do you know," Mr. Moodie continued, "that I did not expect to find a single tree from the time I crossed the Iowa line. In this I was most agreeably surprised for we met them all along the route and their shade was at many times very grateful. I got my poor impression from what a man from my town in Iowa, who had been to Aberdeen to buy some land, told me on his return. He said there was not a tree to be seen anywhere. But then he was sore at the country, as he fell, from what I learned, into the hands of land speculators and from the treatment he received he felt like knocking. He also told me that the state was full of buffalo grass and that where that was the land was poor. I think that I can disagree with him on that proposition too."

"The number of artesian wells which a person runs across on coming through the state is remarkable and I wish that I had tried to keep track of them. It is a great boon to any country to be able to afford good water at any place where a person has a mind to bore for it. South Dakota is a wonderful state, the best ever, and I see no reason why she should not come to be the grandest state in the union, though I guess she is pretty near that now."

Mr. Moodie said that he might locate here if he could find what he thought would be a good investment. He still owns property in Iowa and may return there in a few weeks.

INDIAN MARRIED AWAITING PRISON

JOHN BEAR, LIFE TERM INDIAN,
WEDDED AT WEBSTER

Was Convicted of Murder Several Weeks Ago and Sentenced to Life
Imprisonment — Ceremony Was Performed to Give Bride Her Share of the Estate.

Probably the strangest wedding, considering the circumstances, that ever took place in South Dakota occurred Monday, July 16th, at the court house. John Bear, the Indian who is under sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of the wife of Ma-ho-zo-Waste, was married in the jail by Justice Lee Lewis of Andover to Mary Tomapivaotawin, whom he has already lived with for twenty years. He has three or four wives living whom he married with the Indian ceremonies and by each of whom he has had several children. We understand that the object of the ceremony was so that the woman could get her share of the estate in preference to the other wives.—Webster World.

BASEBALL NINE IN COLUMBIA FAMILY

Brown county is in position to furnish a very unique baseball game, one that certainly ought to make good gate money if any part of the state can supply contestants for the other side of the game. We can boast of a family in which a ball nine can be organized which can put up a hot game for any ball team in the state. There are not quite enough boys in the household but the daughter, who is remarkably expert in handling the ball, and the father, still spry as a kid, can fill up the nine. Each boy from the oldest to the youngest can do as clever work on the diamond as the average member of the all-salaried nines of this locality. If there is any other family in South Dakota that desires a match game with this Brown county family it can likely be arranged to come off during the annual assembly next year at Tacoma Park. It would be a feature, an attraction as novel as interesting. Now let the other family show up.

FIRE DID NOT CRIPPLE

Coleman & Co. have opened a new temporary office at the old stand and are ready for business. They can furnish Deering Binders, binder twine, repairs, in fact any and all kinds of machinery that they ever carried in stock as their supply is by no means exhausted.
