THE COLONEL.

With cotton wool;

What the Colonel's business was nobody knew, nor did anybody care particularly. He purchased for cash only, and never grumbled at the price of anything he wanted. Who could ask more than that?

Curious people occasionally wonder-ed how, when it had been fully two years since the Colonel, with every one else, abandoned Dutch Creek to the Chinese, he managed to spend money freely and to lose considerable at cards and horse races. In fact, the keeper of that one of the Challenge Hill saloons that the Colonel did not patronize was once heard to wonder, absent-mindedly, whether the Colonel hadn't a money mill somewhere where he turned out eagles and "slugs" (the coast name for fifty-dollar gold pieces).

When so important a personage as barkeeper indulged publicly in the idea the inhabitants of Challenge Hill, like good Californians every-Hill, like good Californians everywhere, considered themselves in duty

The result was a complete vindication of the colonel, and a loss of considerable custom to the indiscreet barkeeper.

The colonel was as good-natured a man as had ever been known on Chalenge Hill, but being mortal, the colonel had his occasional times of de-
