The Mammoth Ball of the K. o. L. the Largest in the City's History.

A VEXED QUESTION DECIDED

What Judge McCulloch Holds in Regard to the St. Mary's Avenue Paving-Two More Lancoln Girls Gone Wrong.

The K. of L. Ball.

Never in all her history has Omaha witnessed such a sight as was presented at the Exposition building last night on the occasion of the first annual ball of Henry George Assembly, Knights of Labor. To say that it was the largest gathering of the kind which has ever been held in this city does not convey an idea of its immensity, for never before has there been an opportunity for such an assemblage on a dancing platform. Long before 9 o'clock, the hour for the grand march, the floor was filled with a mass of humanity, while from the railings of the gallery peered a continuous line around the building of eager spectators. And the sight that was presented was both novel and beautiful. The restless throng on the floor waiting for the music to begin, the continuous arrivals and the decorations were amply sufficient to prove an attraction to the idle lookeron until the programme of the evening commenced.

The building had been ornamented on the interior in style worthy of the occasion.
The band stand had been moved to the north side and set in the center of the hall, directly fronting the door. Behind it hing two immense garrison flags, and in the center suspended a large engraving of Washington. About the graving of Washington. About the whole vast interior hung banners and flags of every hue and representative nationality, while bright cloths twined about the pillars and hung in heavy masses from the timbers of the roof. The finest displays, however, were the mountings at the east and west ends. On the west gallery railing was a group of these arranged so railing was a group of flags arranged so as to perfectly form the national coat of arms. The effect was fine and speaks much for the skill of the artist who arranged them. At a corresponding point on the east end was the regimental coat of arms of the Fourth United States Infantry regulars.
This was made up of the battle flags, regimental standards and company guidons, with a large storm flag for a back ground.

At precisely 9 o'clock the orchestra played the first strains of the grand march, and a thousand merry dancers responded to the music, which opened the delightful programme, arranged as fol-

28. Galop 29. Quadrille 30. Waltz-Home Viewed from the gallery the scene the floor was fairly dazzling. As the forms of the dancers threaded through the maze of the figures the sight resem-bled the turning of a kaleidescope. The gay colors were there, and with the constant changing the looker on was completely bewildered. The music was delightful, and despite the fact that the three callers could not be distinctly heard in all parts of the floor, there was little or no confusion. After the first few numbers the dancers multiplied, and at 11 o'clock it was estimated that at least 1,500 people were responding to the music. Probably 500 spectators occupied the gallery, and with the large number who were on the main floor who did not dance, swelled the throng to over 2,200. Indeed, this is a low estimate of the people present, as over 1,200 tickets had been sold. each of which undoubtedly represented two persons. The floor proved to be ex-cellent for dancing purposes, which added greatly to the pleasure of the occa-

At midnight supper was sewed in the building, tables having been set on the north side, immediately under the gallery. The refreshments were excellent, and were served in handsome style Dancing was then resumed and was continued until a late hour.

To say that the affair was a success, delightful, etc., is not necessary. It was magnificent in every respect, and the worthy order in whose benefit it was given can well be proud of their first annual ball. And the men who so successfully conducted the arrangements and carrie them out should also come in for their share of praise. They are as follows: Master of Ceremonies—James R. Young. AN IMPORTANT DECISION. Judge McCultoch Holds that Paving Districts Cannot Cross an Alley. This morning Judge McCulloch will render a very important decision, which interests the city of Omaha and a large number of tax payers. The case which calls for the decision is that of James Leis vs. the city of Omehn et al., which has been mentioned at length in the local press. Lels is the owner of a lot fronting on Jackson street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth sircets, which, on account of the diagonal direction in which St. Mary's avenue runs, was included in the paving district when the latter thorconers, who wished to make it a test case. The suit was accordingly aggred in the county court last mouth and Judge McCulloch has held it under advisement since. This moraing he will render his decision in favor of the plaintiff. The judge bases his decision on the fact that the lots are access an alley from St. Many's avonue, and heads that while the city ordinance makes a paving district extend 132 feet each side of a street, it can not legally do so when an alley intervenes in that distance. A payaccording to the docision, abut on the street payed and less beyond street, Omaha.

The decision of this case involves a large amount of money, as it not only covers paving but sewer districts.

ERRING LINCOLN GIRLS. A Distracted Mother Hunting for Tw

Missing Ones in Omaha. "Can't you help me find my girl?" was the beseeching question which a little woman, dressed in black, addressed to Jailor Pierronet last evening, while the tears welled up in hereyes. The speaker was Mrs. Dodd, a widow residing m Lincoln. She explained that her daughter Lizzie, in company with a girl named Fannie Langtow, had run away from home Sunday night. She had traced them to the depot in Lincoln, where they had purchased tickets for Omalia, but was too late to stop them. The only thing left for her to do was to follow them, and she accordingly arrived in Omaha last night in the hopes that she could induce them to return home. She feared that the girls had been induced to enter some disreputable house here. Jailor Pierrenet kindly took the griefstricken mother to the rooms of the Woman's Christian Aid association, and promised that an immediate search would be made for the missing girls. An officer was detailed to work up the case, but a visit to a number of disreputable houses last night tailed to throw any light on their whereabouts. The girls are about 16 years of age and are said to be rather pretty. Further search will be made by the police in the hope of finding them.

AMUSEMENTS.

MAGGIE MITCHELL LAST NIGHT. To attempt criticism of Maggie Mitchell would be something like sitting in judgment on the merits of the Songs of Solo-mon or debating the artistic points of a Raphael masterpiece. The opera house, despite the mammoth attraction at house, despite the mammoth attraction at the exposition building, was crowded last night to see her for the first time here in "The Pearl of Savoy." This play is a fancy dress, sparkling, musical and sentimental drama, with the scene laid in the Alps and Paris. It recounts the adventures of a pretty Savoyard maiden who left her mountain home and went to the world's gay canital—then gayest of all world's gay capital-then gayest of all under the Louis's—to achieve her fortune by street singing. The plot drags the lovely creature through a maze of solons and blazing salons, bears her safely out of the clutches of several lecherous barons and "markees" and lands her safely at last in the arms of her own true loved one, who also turns out to be a nobleman. There is a good deal of song and dance There is a good deal of song and dance business for the star which she attends to in fairly creditable form, while the character acting it largely affords is per-formed in her own inimitable style. Brevities.

County Clerk Needham improved the holiday yesterday by having his office thoroughly cleaned and overhauled. Messrs, O. H. Gordon and W. T. Helphrey, of the firm of Collins, Gordon & Kay, left yesterday for western Nebraska on business.

Workmen were busy yesterday placing the fire bell in position at No. 3 engine house, and it will be ready to sound alarms after to-day. Judge McCulloch vesterday afternoon

At the last meeting the members of Myrtle division, U. R., K. of L., presented their outgoing past recorder, Mr. W. F. Manning, a handsome silver water set in testimony of their appreciation of his devoted and efficient service in the office from which he was just retiring. The Y. M. C. A. employment commit-

Some of these are in needy cir-cumstances and would be glad of work of any kind—temporary or permanent. Communications by mail or telephone by those desiring help will be promptly answered by the secretary.

The services for the benefit of the deaf held in the library of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon, were more largely attended than on any previous Sunday.

Prof. J. A. McClure preached a short sermon in sign language, taking his text from Lake 12-32. Messrs R. Smith, Mr.
Fischer and others made short remarks at the close of the sermon. Assistant Secretary Samuel Tutbill made the closlag prayer, which was interpeted into signs by Prof. McClure.

Theodore Beckman, of Counci Bluffs. the son-in-law of Christian Meyer, whose body was found in the ice Sunday, came over yesterday morning and made rangements with Drexel & Maul to transfer the body to the the paving district when the latter thoroughfare was paved. Lels was accordingly taxed for the paving, but as his property did not abut on the street paved, he sued the city to recover the amount of the tax. In this he was supported by adjacent property covers, who wished to make it a test man he obtained two days after the occurrence and the day before Christmas. He was satisfied from the description that it was Meyer, but not wishing to mar the pleasure of Christmas day to nis wife, said nothing until the night of the heliday. He identifies the body as that of Meyer beyond a doubt and will have him buried in the family lot.

NEWS' NOTES OF A HOLIDAY.

George Washington's Anniversary Passed Quietly Without Celebration.

PAXTON'S BIG HOTEL SCHEME

A Monster Structure to be Erected This Season-The Charity Ball-Railway Notes, Police News, Etc.

Washington's Birthday.

George Washington's birthday has passed in Omaha without any signal cel ebration. If the greatness of America's patriots, statesmen, soldiers, etc., was to be measured by the fuss kicked up over the memories, the scroll of honor on this side of the water would bear few names of much consequence. The people of the United States have little reverence for time-stained monuments and sunken graves, and whereas they make a grand pageant over the recently departed hero, a month later they cannot raise a subscription for a memorial slab. That's certainly too bad, for it cheats the country out of many gala days. Had the father of his country given his paternity to the Germans or the French or the English, or any other civilized people outside of these United States, the favored land would been arrayed yesterday in grand holiday attire. How m grand holiday attire. How the contrary affairs Traffic went right to the were here. Traffic went right on as though George had never licked the British. The courts and banks, the postoffice, schools, and a few other public institutions a few other public institutions that take a holiday on the least provocation at all times, were shut up, but that scarcely affected the everyday appear-ance of affairs. The fine weather brought out a great many people who have spent the past few months indoors, and the chronic loungers sunned themselves in troops and droves.

Maybe somebody doesn't know that George Washington never observed the 22nd day of this month as the anniver-sary of his nativity. It would seem strange that he should be wrong on this point, when he got the date first-hand from his mother. The epitaph on his tomb, briefly extolling his virtues, says that he was born on February II, and that is what he always thought himself. It is not intended to say that he did not know that it was possible to put the day of his birth on the 22d but he ever preferred not to and it seems something of a sacrilege that his evident wishes in that regard were not respected by his mourning people. George was born in 1732, and up to his twentieth year very properly marked his mile posts, so to speak, on the 11th. The calculation of time conformed to the rule set in vogue by Julius Ceasar and named, in his honor, the Julian calendar. In 1582 Pope Gregory XIII reformed the calendar by suppressing the ten days which had accumulated in error since the time of Caesar and the 11th of February became then the 22nd day of that month. It was not until 1752 that protestant England acknowledged the correctness of the Gregorian computation. The American colonies as portions of Great Britain sub-mitted to the change in that time, and George, then a young man of twenty summers, saw his birthday ruthlessly transferred from its proper date. That is the reason Washington's birthday is in some little dispute as to date.

Sixteenth. Yesterday the negotiations were brought to a close, resulting in the transfer of the property to Mr. Paxton, for the consideration of $75,000, Mr. Paxton having the lot on the corner now possesses a frontage of 198 feet. It is rumored that he is now trying to secure the Hanscome lot, next to the Goos hotel, and the Wabash corner owned by Mr. McCormick, or in other words the block, back to the alley, a distance of 132 feet. It is not improbable that the transfer of the property will soon be

"What will he do with it?" is the question which everyone asked, as soon as the transfer of the Goos prop-erty became public. A reporter who investigated the matter, while unable to see Mr. Paxton himself, learned from parties in a position to know, that that gentleman intends to erect on this property a magnificent hotel, six and possibly seven stories in height, which will compare favorably with any hostelry west of Chicago in point of size and magnificence. In case Mr. Paxton can secure the

Hanscom and McCormick lots he will erect a building which will be a block in ength; but even should he fail in so doing, the structure would still be a mammoth one, possessing as it would a frontage on Farnam street of 198 feet and a depth of 132 feet.

THE CHARITY BALL.

The Hour for the Great Event Draws Nigh-A Few Suggestions.

To-night will occur the second annual charity ball. It is safe to say that the affair will be a success, that the representation of Omaha's culture, fashion and beauty will be such as was never before seen under one roof. All preparations for the event are complete, and it is certain that they have been so made that all who attend will be assured a good time.

Refreshments will be served in the north gallery. Two musical organizations, the Fourth Infantry band and the Musical Union orchestra, will be stationed at either end of the hall and will furnish inspiration for the dancers.

In compliance with a very general demand, and at the suggestion of many subscribers to the charity ball fund, the managers have decided to issue a limited number of spectators' tickets. These tickets will entitle the holder to a seat in tickets will entitle the holder to a seat in the gallery, and the price has been put at $1$ each, so that it comes within the means of all. The tickets were on sale last evening, and can be obtained at the following places: D. W. Saxe, opera house pharmacy; Kuhn & Co., Fifteenth and Douglas; J. A. The Union Pacific Mine Explosion at

Almy-Type Writers-Notes. Reports at Union Pacific headquarters afford no information of Saturday's explosion in the company's mine at Almy, Wyo., beyond that which is meagrely obtained in the press telegraph. The mine, No. 3, is the same in which some two months ago an explosion killed a dozen or more men. The cause of the present accident is attributed to the carelessness of a miner who entered one of the rooms with a naked lamp. He was thrown thirty feet for his pains but strange to say was but slightly injured. There were twenty-five men in the mine at the time and three of these were severely burned. The mine is now clear of gas and work

It is provided that the general storekeeper shall appraise the type-writers now in use and the operators will pay for them by installments of $10 per month, or more, as desired. Assessments on the market value will be made for all new machines. POLICE COURT NOTES.

The Grist Disposed of in Judge Sten berg's Tribunal Yesterday. Six young men were arraigned before Judge Stenberg yesterday morning, charged with being a gambling house. night the police raided the establishment formerly run by Sam Basowitz, on Fifteenth and Farnam street, next to the Y. M. C. A. rooms, because the proprie tors had failed to pay their fine for the past month or two. In addition to the arrest of the proprietors and patrons, a large quantity of chips and gambling tools were confiscated. J. F. Rutt and victed of a similar offense, were fined $3 and costs.

Peter Fleming was badly crippled. He was minus legs, minus hands and almost minus hearing. He was not minus a tongue however, and when Judge Stenberg in-formed him that a charge of intoxication had been preferred against him he plead eloquently in his own behalf. He said that he was journeying from Montaua to Milwaukee, Wis., where he expected to enter the Soldiers Home, and had merely stopped off in Omaha to have a few hours recreation. The judge released him with orders to leave Omaha without delay. James Ames had descerated the Sabbath and when arrested by Officer Turnbull made such a terrific resistance as to near ly overpower his capter. He was fined $25 and costs, and being unable to pay it was taken back to jail.

by engaging in a row at Kessler's hall.

To the charge of petit larceny John Dow, the next victim plead not guilty. He entered a house on the corner of Twelfth and Dodge, it is claimed, and carried off a lot of clothing belonging to a young woman. His case was continued for trial

Several other cases of vagrants and suspicious characters were disposed of. Among them was that of Matt Keith, who was fined $20 and costs for being a vagrant. He was unable to pay and went to jail.

AN ANCIENT DOCUMENT.

Original Resignation of A. D. Jones as Postmaster of Omaha.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BEE:-Hon. J. Sterling Morton fowarded to me document "No. 1" in the files of Nebraska, made in the archives of the post office department at Washington, D. C., which reads as follows, this being a true copy:

"OMAHA CITY, Nebraska, Dec. 15, 1854.

P. M. Genl.,
Dear Sir,
I hereby resign my office of
Deputy Post Master at Omain City, N. T.
Respectfully,
A. D. JONES."

The above document is in my own handwriting. Accompanying that doeu ment, Gov. Morton sent the following let ter: Washington, D. C., Feb. 17, 1886,—Dear WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17, 1886.—Dear A. D. Jones: Enclosed is a very interesting historical document, and I send it now, after thirty-one years, to its author, so that he may contribute it to the State Historical society to be preserved. It shows that some did "resign" and thank God, that they still live to retain the esteem and affectionate regard of the swiftly lessening band of the pioneers.

Faithfully yours,
J. Sterling Morton. Walker, instead of trying to jerk away iron from his hand fainting away shortly afterward. His wound was dressed, and he is now suffering but The filing on the back of the document, "Jan. 2d, 5t-Omaha City, Nebraska, No. 1," exhibits the fact that the little pain. postofice papers were the first put on ille. It reminds me of the friendly help I received from Dr. Enos Lowe, Col. Test, and Bernhart Herm, a congressman from Iowa, in procuring the appointment for me. That our city of 75,000 inhabitants was then only in acticipation, whilst the postoffice took for its designation the euphonious appella-tion of "Omaha City," and that our paper city had no existence until July, 1854, though the town organization had previously been agreed upon. Somewhat different from officeholders, generally, it appears that I did not know the name of my superior, the postmaster general, therefore the probability was that I was not importuned by the de partment to send in my resignation. am reminded that fortunes were not made out of the office at that date, as the earnings of the first fractional quarter were only three cents, for which I had to be mail carrier from Council Bluft, post-master and delivery clerk about town.

When we did not have eastiron collection boxes our cotton receptacles answered the purpose.

The original application for this postoffice was sent to Representative Herm during the winter of 1853 and 1854, and during the winter of 1853 and 1854, and after the usual correspondence with the department, the first Omaha postoffice commission was issued May 5th, 1854, and forwarded to me. The postoffice itinerated about town, being sometimes in the possession of the postmaster. Squire Lindley kept it in an axe box and Mrs. Frank threw it into a bushel basket and everybody picked out what was wanted. This the postmaster thought was a little risky and he tried several times to get clear of the responsibility. ALF. D. JONES.

Public Works.

City Engineer Rosewater said yesterday that to-day the council would order the bids for curbing which is to be done this year. As there is to be about five miles of pavement laid during the coming season, ten miles of curbing will be required. Bids will be requested on different kinds of curbing materials, and the board of public works can then select the bids and materials as it chooses. "I think " said Mr. Rosewater, in an swer to further questioning from the reporter, "that about $300,000 will be expended in curbing and paving this year, including the cost to both the city and property holders. We are also drawing up plans for sewers to be constructed this year, of which I presume about two miles will be laid, on a rough estimate. Yes, taking into consideration the viaducts, there will be as much done in the way of public improvements this year as any year in the history of the city. The Morse Bridge company is now at work getting ready the materials for the viaduet, and expect to commence work on the ground about April."

Eloped to the Bluffs. Several months ago James O'Neill, a waiter in Huston's restaurant on Farnam street, became acquainted with Lena Kohlmeyer, the 17-year-old daughter of Charles Kohlmeyer, proprietor of the United States hotel. The girl, who is rather pretty and accomplished, fell deeply in love with O Neill, and when he proposed marriage to her she listened readily enough to his words. The consent of the parents of the girl was not obtainable, however, and accordingly the pair determined to clope. Everything was arranged beforehand so quietly that neither Mr. or Mrs. Kohlmeyer had any suspicion of what was going to happen. On Friday the pair went over to Bluffs, where they were married. Satur-day Mr. Kohlmeyer received the letter usually written by eloping couples, beg-ging for forgiveness, and asking that the two be allowed to return home and hold reception under the parental roof. Mr Kohlmeyer is not disposed to make peace thus easily, and as yet Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill are in Council Bluffs waiting for developments.

A Panie Among the Hacks. As the overland train was running into the depot yesterday morning the locomotive, in passingthe back slips, let off one of those sudden and unearthly shricks of which a steam whistle is occasionally capable. A perfect stampede ensued among the hack-horses and cabs, carriages, hacks, coupes and express wagons were thrown into a jumble. The horses of one of Higgins' hacks broke away and in starting pitched the driver, known as "Big Soap" Frank, under the wheels. The animals made a good run of it and started across the tracks, the john started across the tracks, the jehu dragging along under the carriage, holding to the rems like a hero. About in the middle of the tracks a mob of men rushed out and stopped the horses. The driver was unburt. At the same time a cab horse galloped out of the enclosure and started to run around an imaginary circus ring in the street. The exerte ment was so great for a time that the drivers actually forgot to molest the passengers as they filed out and took the street cars.

The Blue Boys Booming. Another crowded house greeted Mr. Joe Critchfield last night at the W. C. T. U. Buckingham hall. The "Rough Diamond of Indiana" swayed the audience by his bursts of eloquence, pathos, humor and facts in handling the liquor business for over two hours. At the close of the lecture many new names were added to the club roster, the most of whom had been drinking men. To-night Mr. Critch field gives an entertainment in the hall, the programme containing among its va ried gens the following: Betsy and I Are Out: The Vagabonds: How We Caught a Mouse; A Boy's Speech; The New Church Organ; A Smack in School, and many others. Admission, 25 cents; children, 15 cents. No one should miss the treat in store, and by coming you will help the work at the Buckingham.

Death of Matthew: McNamara. After two weeks of suffering Matthew A. McNamara died at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, at his residence near Seventeenth and Jackson streets He was conscious almost to the last, and during the latter hours of his life seemed to suffer but little pain. The deceased was 42 years o age at the time of his death. He leaves a wife and five children.

Mr. McNamara came to Oranha abou twenty years ago from Brooklyn, N. Y., and has lived here continuously since that time. He was respected by all who knew him as a good citizen, a true friend, and a loving father and husband. The funeral will take place Wednesday morning from the family residence.

H. H. Haeger, Dubuque, Iowa-"There are 168 saloons running in our city. You can udge from that that prohibition does not prohibit in our section of the state. Yes, the saloon men there are fined, being unable to secure a regular license. They are arrested generally about twice a year and fined about $200 each time, so that practically they do pay a license of $400 a year. The sentiment against prohibition in our place is so strong that it would be folly to try to enforce the law. The fact is that most of the saloon men are pretty well pleased with the present order of things. They prefer to pay $400 a year to the city as a fine than to pay $1,000 for a license, as your saloon men do here for instance. In fact the liquor dealers of Dubuque, almost to a man, voted the prohibition ticket at the last election in order that the present regime might be continued. Henry Larriman, Laporte, Ind.: "1 am returning from California, having spent the winter with my wife in Los Angeles. Yes, the town as a sanitarium is worthy of its great reputation. Such a climate is good for any physical disorder but especially of the lungs. The tempeis mild and equable. rature I have not seen a day this winter that the mercury went below 50 ° and above 65 °, while the rainfall was very light and there was no snow whatever. The accommodations snow whatever. The accommodations for visitors are all that could be wished. The hotels are excellent and private board is obtainable among nice people and at reasonable rates. One noticeable feature of Los Angeles which will be, perhaps, of interest to you is the large number of Omaha people who are either residing or wintering there. In such a place, one makes extensive acquaintanceships and I met and grew intimate with many people. I believe I can say that Omaha has a larger representation than any other city, at least of equal population. The Omaha people, however, are not invalids but seem to be persons who can afford a recreative jaunt and indulge themselves in the pleasure."

After Many Days. Chas. J. Clark, an employe in Simpson's carriage factory, was in April last robbed at the pistol's point of a valuable gold watch and chain. No clue to the highwayman or the missing article was discovered until yesterday when chancing to pass the pawnshop of Moehle & Co. on Eleventh and Farnam street Mr. Clark saw his missing time-piece in the window. He at once went to the jeweler of whom he had bought the watch, and found that its number corresponded with that of the one in the pawnshop. He will replevin the watch unless Mr. Moehle makes a

PANORAMAS AND DIORAMAS. Some of the More Notable of American

Cycloramas. Philadelphia Ledger: The panorama was invented by Mr. Barker, a Scotch artist, who resided in Edinburgh, 100 years ago. The idea occurred to him while taking a sketch of that city from the top of Arthur's Seat. For that pur-pose he was compelled to invent a new kind of perspective for the horizontal lines, and to manage the projection so that just effect should be produced to the he spectator when the pictur viewed from an elevated point, and filled, apparently, the entire horizon wherever the eye might turn. Baker exhibited his first panorama in 1788. The word is de-rived from Greek words signifying all and view; representation of the whole landscape on every side, as seen from one point. Cyclorama is also an invented word which may be freely translated a circular view, or view all around. It eems to be the fashion to apply it distinctively to the larger panoramas. It was only seven years after Barker's first exhibition before the panorama was introduced into Philadelphia. Edward avage, an American artist, a native of New England, was the painter. Savage is well known as the artist who drew the picture of Washingtou and his family, a composition which was largely engraved and lithographed, and was in former years a favorite in the houses of patriotic families. Savage produced a panorama of London and Westminster, which he exhibited in 1795 in a circular building on Market street, between Tenth and Eleventh: whether it was specially erected for the purpose or adapted for the oceasion is not known. In newspaper notices of this picture it was said, "it is painted a circle, and looks like reality. building was afterward put to various purposes, and in January, 1805, fell from the weight of snow resting upon the roof.

The certainty of the establishment of the centennial exposition in this city brought a large number of exhibitions and side-shows from other places. In 1876, the Colosseum building in New York, which was built in 1873 by R. L. Kennard, was removed to this city and planted on the lot at the southeast corner of Broad and Locust streets. had bought the pictures of the Colesseum in Regent's Park, London. The exhibition in New York was open for two years, but was not very successful. The material of the building was corrugated iron, which rose seventy seven feet above the sidewalk, and was finished off with a sidewalk, and was finished off with a tower 100 feet high, which was in use as an observatory. The tower had two galleries, and was a fine point for observation of the city. The diameter of this building was 129 feet, and the circumference 405 feet. Altogether the colosseom was complete for the purpose intended. The picture was "Paris by Night," executed by Danson & Sons, of Paris, and covered 10,000 square feet of canvas. The buildings, streets, etc., were canvas. The buildings, streets, etc., were so faithfully drawn that visitors who had been in Paris were frequently able to pick out the houses in which they had been lodgers. It was a beautiful painting, wonderfully effective. It was opened on the 1st of May, 1876, under the manage-ment of T. B. Pagh, and drew for a long while. Subsequently, the hailding was while. Subsequently the building was used for a market, and finally was taken down and set up in Boston.

By permission of the commissioners of

Fairmount park a circular building was creeted on Elm avenue, near the east entrance of the Centennial grounds, 1876, for the exhibition of a picture which repre-sented the fight near the city of Paris in 1871, when the Germans were pressing upon the French capital. The view from an elevated position was connected with earth and grass, on which in the fore-ground were scattered figures of dead soldiers, broken-down artillery wagons and other indications of a fierce struggle. These led to the picture, and were so ingeniously arranged that it was im-possible to tell where these "stage properties" ended and the painting commenced. Although not so large beautiful or attractive as 'Paris by Night,' this was an interesting and effective painting, and enjoyed a good measure of success during the Centennial season and afterward. The exhibitors called it a "diorama;" improperly as it possessed all the attributes of a pano-

For twelve years the panorama ceased to be an object among our art exhibitors In the meantime, for the want of suit, able buildings for the display of circular paintings, the diorama had been invented by M. Dagnerre and M. Bouten, French artists, in 1822. The name diorama is derived from two Greek words signifying a look through. It was not a circular pic-ture. It exhibited a scene which was shown to the audience through a large aperture of prosce-nium. The admission of lights through parts of the picture through transparencies and other artifices, gave to these views a clearness, effect and distance which had not hither to been obtained in a panorama. The to been obtained in a panorama. The success of these stationary pictures led also to the invention of the "moving panorama," which for a time usurped the attention which had been before demanded by the circular views. The moving panorama. ing panorama was wound on cylinders. A portion of the painting as it was unrolled was seen by the audience, and rerolled upon another cylinder as the exhibition progressed.

How Jay Gould's Fortune is Invested. Harper's Weekly: Jay Gould's fortune is at present principally invested in and con-trols the 5,016 miles composing the Southwestern or Missouri Pacific system of railroads and the $271,090,000 of capital they represent. This does not include the now disintegrated Wabash-Pacific system, with its 3,550 miles of road and $129,000,000 of obligation, direct and in-direct. What is more important to the country, this fortune controls over 150,-000 miles of pole lines and two Atlantic cables, besides other telegraph, facilities that are capitalized in the Western Union and auxilliary companies at $123,000,000. Mr. Gould has also an absolute control of the clevated railroad system in New York, which is stocked and bonded for $45,000, 000, making the total amount, par value, of the sceurities controlled, not including the Wabash-Pacific, $439,000,000.
