

UPON THE ANXIOUS SEAT.

Lancaster Politicians Becoming Greatly Excited as Election Draws Nigh.

CHEERING WORDS FROM SALINE.

A Mania For Suicide Developing—Sudden Death—State Insurance—Statistics—District Court—Lincoln News.

FROM THE BEE'S LINCOLN REPORT.

As the campaign draws near its close it is safe to say that Lancaster county politicians, those who manage and manipulate, have not been so unduly exercised and anxious before in years. The fact that Church Howe and his terrific record has been a dead weight upon the county republican ticket has been manifest from the start, but the whippers-in have given it out that, inasmuch as there is great danger if Howe is defeated that he will blot out the city of Lincoln altogether, that the legislative candidates must do their utmost in congressional matters, and it is asserted that the municipal authorities of the city are using their political power to whip in every class who revolt against supporting the man who always had his hand in their pockets when the legislature was in session. This explains why some of the sporting fraternity that have been bled by Howe's gambling bills in the past are supporting him at present. The arm of the municipality, with Striker C. C. Burr at the head, could make it warm for them if they failed to come to time and help fight Howe upon the First district. This will do for a sample of the whipping in process, now being worked for all it is worth, and if any one thinks that the powers are not putting in every hour in the day here to hold a decent majority in Lancaster for Howe they want to come down and hear the cries of pain that come from the Journal office, see Kennard fly around and peep in under the covers of the city municipality at the mayor of the town.

Senator Van Wyck has been holding several meetings in Saline county, speaking for the straight republican ticket there, with the exception of the split of this combination of opposition, the straight republican ticket in Saline will be elected, and that all the efforts made to defeat it, even though many of them come from the republican side of the state, will go for naught. It may make the State Journal sick, but they can't beat the republican ticket in Saline this year.

Another attempt at suicide in this city which became public yesterday shows that the mania for self-destruction has seized the nerves of the town. The example of Dora Johnson seems to have no effect and warning. A day or two ago a young lady in the city who is a seamstress, became as near as ascertained, dependent in love affairs because she loved better that she had reason to think she was loved in return. As a means of ending her dependent state she followed exactly the same course as the unfortunate Dora Johnson, and she was successful in her suicide of a day or two previous, and going to a drug store procured a vial of poison and took it at a single dose. When the parties were called upon to attend to the body, the physician who by the active workings of a stomach pump combined with other restoratives soon brought her relief, although the young lady is scarcely able to get up. When the physician applied his remedies the young lady protested against it and vowed that she would completely take the earliest opportunity.

There was a case of sudden death in the Yankee Hill precinct, a few miles from the city, that occurred on Wednesday and the coroner remained for the same night, the jury finding that death resulted from heart disease. The man's name was Andrew Atkinson. He was seventy years of age and was out in the grove near the residence of Mr. Duff when he fell over and died almost instantly. He has a son and daughter at Fairbault, Minn., who have been telegraphed for, and were expected to reach Lincoln last night.

CONVENTION OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS. Representatives of the Nebraska railway commission met at Omaha on Wednesday the 19th inst. for the purpose of discussing the past week where representatives from every state in the northwest met with a commission have just met and agreed to call a convention of railway commissioners to meet in Des Moines on the 19th of December. The state expected to be represented are Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas. The meeting will, it is stated, come to some mutual way of working as nearly as possible in common.

These articles recite the business of the corporation to be the extracting of all kinds of minerals from the bowels of the earth, to deal in mines and mining stocks, and to manufacture and deal in lumber. The corporation has a capital stock of $100,000 upon which to transact the volume of business and the amount of indebtedness is fixed at $500,000. The corporation commences operations on the 1st of October, 1886, runs for one hundred years and the incorporators are W. H. B. Stout, R. C. Cushing and C. J. Greene.

INSURANCE BUSINESS IN THE STATE. In the auditor's office the statements of companies doing business in the state is being formulated, the statements showing that there are eighty-five fire insurance companies doing business in the state and that there are twenty-nine life insurance companies doing business in the state under the laws, and of these companies four have been admitted during the present year, of which are companies foreign to the state.

IN DISTRICT COURT. No cases of much importance are being heard this week in the district court. Lawyers in political work causing no doubt a number of the more important ones to be passed until after election. On Wednesday next the criminal docket will be taken up and it will furnish at least two weeks' continuous work, many of the cases being of considerable importance. Yesterday a motion for continuance was argued in the Stewart-Chute case, the decision being temporarily taken under advisement. In the case against the street railway for damages, particularly the paralytic, the jury found for the company.

NOT ON THE BILLS. There was a little episode at the city jail yesterday not on the bills. It appears that a clothing burglar was committed out at Friend's short time ago, and a party wearing a pair of pants taken from the store was arrested in this city, the pants being found to be the same as against him. His first night in jail, however, was in the company of a party who was time expired the next morning, and the two made an exchange of clothing and the identification of the prisoner was thus moved out of the city on the percentage of the released man, and the ruse brought liberty to both.

AMOUR TOWN. Mabel Smith, a frail female who has been out of jail some ten days, apparently became homesick out in the cold world, and as her husband, real or alleged, was in jail on suspicion of a burglary, the frail Mabel repaired to the bastle and kicked up such a furor that the boys on the night force had to lock her up for protection. When she found that she had her feet up with her head she smashed furniture for a while, and in the morning the court fined her $30 and costs, and she became a regular boarder. John's best pal, Carroll and Thomas Ramsey comprised a trio who were locked up for drunkenness, and who were before the judge yesterday. The usual lines followed, one of whom paid out, and the others were committed.

Carl Spitzer was another of the guests at the city jail yesterday, arrested and locked up on the charge of being a vagrant, moving in society without visible means of support. He was given a $10 fine to work out for the city in the line of public improvements.

The effects of election and its near approach are already manifest on the street, and in the increase of cases of hilarity from candidates' money that is engaged in setting them up to the boys. Yesterday forenoon several parties were arrested who were past safe navigation at the time.

A force of men are at work at the capitol building, laying temporary floors in the central part of the building so that people can go from wing to wing of the building without danger of falling into the cellar. The outside walls of the building have been caulked up for the winter.

The first of the Burlington & Missouri Lincoln excursion trains passed through Lincoln yesterday noon; it was attended by the regular morning train and simply increased that some three or four coaches.

Within the next three days John B. Finney's excursion train will pass through Lincoln yesterday noon; it was attended by the regular morning train and simply increased that some three or four coaches.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Housworth, who have been in Geneva, Illinois, where they are receiving congratulations from their many friends. Mr. Housworth, a member of the republican state central committee, was in Lincoln yesterday.

Jefferson's Royal Hospitality. Youth's Companion: Thomas Jefferson, toward the close of his life, was so ill that he could not be applied to the legislature of Virginia for permission to dispose of his large estate by lottery. He hoped by this method to realize a sum sufficient to pay his debts and to give him a competence.

Public duties prevented him from looking after his estate during many years and his profuse hospitality had exhausted his means. Mr. Jefferson was the most popular of American citizens and people came from far and near to see him, prompted by curiosity or affection. Life at Monticello resembled for years that in a hotel at a fashionable watering place. Members of congress, officers, clergymen, lawyers, doctors, artists, foreigners and people of fashion looked to see the great statesman and to partake of his hospitality.

Fifty guests were entertained one night and whole families came in their carriages to remain for months. One family of six persons came from Europe and made a visit of ten months. They made a short tour through the state, returned to Monticello, and remained six months longer. A gentleman asked Wornley, Mr. Jefferson's favorite servant, pointing to the three carriage houses, each of which would contain a four-horse coach, "How often were these filled in Mr. Jefferson's time?"

"Every night in summer, sir," answered the servant, "and we often had two or three carriages besides under that tree."

"It must have taken all hands to take care of your visitors," and we often had two or three carriages besides under that tree." "Yes, sir, and the whole farm to feed them," said the slave.

Chicago Letter. We were unreluctant from Federal City, Md., to Gresham in the summer of '83. The president of company G, Nineteenth Maine volunteers, carried a very large knapsack. Now this knapsack had for a long time, and during many long and weary marches, been the cause of much comment and the target of many impertinent and laughable jokes, remarks and friendly observations until Jordan had worn it out, and yet he carried that knapsack.

"Seize, how far are we going to carry that knapsack?"
