Council Bluffs holds a strong hand, She has both high and low lands, geographically and financially. If a person wants to buy picturesque, high-grade homes among the glens and bluffs, this city can supply him just the sites. If one wants cheaper, level lots, low-grade, he can find them here. Council Bluffs has high, low and the game anyway. high, low and the game anyway.

"Nancy & Co." will entertain a large audience at Dohany's to-night without doubt and they deserve a crowded house. The New York World says it is "a running river of fresh merriment," while the New York Tribune puts it as "a dazzling picture in which frolic and laughter abound." The New York Her-ald says "the audience laughed them-selves tired." Go and see "Nancy & Co." and enjoy a good laugh as nothing Co," and enjoy a good laugh, as nothing in this world does a tired man so much good as a hearty laugh. It may be an odd grimace or an odd remark which makes him laugh; so he laughs right vigorously he is all the better for it. If he can be kept laughing for two or three consecutive hours, until he fairly aches, he has found the panacea for half the ills of business life.

Clerk Shea has to decide to-day whether to issue the writs of injunction closing the saloons, in accordance with the order of Judge Thornell. If he is-sues them he shows contempt for Judge Aylesworth, who has issued an injunction forbidding him from issuing the writs. If he fails to issue them Judge Thornell will be here to morrow morning to attend to his case. It is whispered that the federal court is expected to issue some order in the matter to day, so that there may be presented the interesting spectacle of three courts warring among themselves as to what had better be done in regard to the saloons. The clerk spent yesterday in solemn meditation over the difficulty of trying to several two matters. culty of trying to serve two masters, and wondering which he should cling to. His position is one of perplexity .

Busy Builders.

There is a large demand for dwelling houses in this city. Never before have small tenements of from four to eight rooms been so scarce as now. Yesterday a lady entered the BEE office and stated that she had been house hunting for three days; could not find a six or seven room house in the city and thought she might learn of one by applying at a newspaper office. There is a grand field for tenements, that is houses that are put together in good shape; those that would rent at from $15 to $30 per month. There is not a real estate office in the city out of the forty odd that do not have daily inquiries for desirable residences for small families. It is true that several persons are on the eve of building a number of houses, but there is room for many more. Many a family is now occupying a small house and paying $15 to $20 for it when they would pay $25 or $30 for a house that had a few of the modern conveniences and be more contented. There are few ways to invest money where the returns are so great as in building residences to rent in Council Bluffs. Nice, small dwellings in this city pay a large small dwellings in this city pay a large interest on the investment and the building of this class of houses will be the means of compelling the owners of the shells that rent for $30 to $30 per month and that are not worth as they stand in and that are not worth, as they stand in many instances more than $3.00 to $5.00, to put up more respectable and tenanta-ble houses. Monied men in the east who can only get a small percentage for their money could make fortunes out of small investments if put into desirable houses in this city.

"I wish I had the capital," said a gentleman yesterday, who has just returned from the cape cast, "I'd put up just such a row of dwellings as I saw in Washington. They are made of pressed brick, contain eight rooms each, have bath rooms, hot and cold water stationary ranges, and heat. cold water, stationary ranges and heat-ers, gas, inside shutters, fine cellars, nice back yards, beautiful lawns, some fifteen feet wide and parking; all this for $20 per month. This row of houses is located on both sides of F street in Washington, and is called 'Sherman Row.' These houses cost only $2,500 each. If we only had a row here a block long and on one side of the street they could be rented for from $30 to $35, per month, and would from $30 to $35 per month and would bring in a large interest on the investment. Such is what some enterprising capitalist should erect in this city, and he never would be sorry for the investment.

One cannot imagine the amount of activity going on in building unless a drive is taken around the city. The majority of houses now going up are of a small nature, principally houses of three to five rooms and ranging in cost from $500 to $1,000. It is estimated by a gentleman who does a great deal of riding about the city, that at the present time there are at the least calentation 300 houses of this class in course of erection besides some twenty that will cost from besides some twenty that will cost from $1,500 to $2,000 each.

A gentleman having occasion to go toward the transfer on a business errand yesterday went down one street and came back on another, and during his walk counted thirty-seven new houses in course of erection.

Many persons believe that it is very expensive to have an architect draw up plans for a building, when, in fact, a single blunder by a mechanic would pay the entire expense of the architect. An architect's charges are 3 per cent of the entire cost of the building for drawing plans and specifications, while for superintending the erection of the building an

Street Improvements. The new city council starts in with an enthusiastic determination to have the streets greatly improved this season. Council Bluffs has already done more paving, sewering and work of that kind than any other city of its size in the west, and yet there is more to follow. Fourth street is now ordered curbed, parked and paved from Broadway to Eleventh avenue. This is one of the most important im-provements of the year, and the order is made in accordance with the petition of the property owners, who are eager to have it done. The cross streets between Fourth and Main streets are also to be paved. The paving will be with cedar blocks.

The grade of lower Broadway being agreed to, the filling and paving of that street clear to the river will be speedily finished. This is another great enterprise. Portions of Ninth and Tenth streets, and Sixth and Seventh avenues have been ordered filled to grade. Avenue A is also ordered filled to grade from the east side of Eighth street to the west side of Eleventh street, and Eighth, Ninth and Teath streets from Broadway to ave-
