IT WAS A GREAT BIG HUNT.

Omaha Gun Club Men Return From Looking For Game.

NOT A VERY EXTENSIVE HAUL

Captain Brewer's Side Victorous and Parmelce Will Purnish the Banquet-Lefever Hunters Start -Other Sporting News.

The Grand Fall Hunt.

The grand fall hunt of the Omaha Gun club came off Thursday, and so far as the hunting was concerned it was a colossal success. In fact the emulous nimrods found the husting good everywhere, but the game scarce. The count on either side on this momentous occasion is not more than one-third that of last year, and there are many disappointed gunners in the city. As has been repeatedly stated the object of this great annual inroad on the furred and feathered game is a grand banquet, which is to be given at the Millard this evening, the losing side defraying the expenses thereof. One of the most conspicuous features of the present hunt is that the amateurs fairly wiped up the earth with the professionals, i. e., the tyros with the gun best the old experienced hunters out of sight, as the following record, giving the game killed and the count agreed on, clearly proves:

CAPTAIN BREWER'S SIDE.

'John Hardin and Dr. Worley-Wilson snipe, 145, 435; tiltup, 1, 1; clapper rail, 1, 4; pinnated grouse, 3, 13; hawks, 2, 20; mallards, 6, 42; widgeon, 1, 5, making a total count of

Mr. Parmelee, with his "man with the Zulu," and the rest of his merry men will experience the extreme felicity of liquidating for about fifty "plates" this evening at $4 per plate. The Lefever Round Up.

The two sides of the Lefever club started last evening for the different geese, duck and snipe grounds located in this state and Iowa. Their first club hunt comes off to-day, and the ambition of the boys is to beat the older organization, the Omaha club, whose showing was indeed meagre. The Lefever banquet will be given at the St. Cloud Monday

BADLY BEATEN.

An Old Man Knocked Insensible By a Mulatto.

A most dastardly assault was made last evening on Nelson Brown, the genial old patriarch who runs a candy stand on the corner of Sixteenth and Douglas streets. The trouble was caused by a negress named Alice Walker, who does Brown's washing. His bundle of clothes was sent to him a day sooner than he expected and he lacked a few cents of having enough to pay the bill. He promised to pay the rest to-day, but she demanded it instanter in the vilest and most insulting language she could command. She next sent for Pete Walker, who, without giving Brown any chance for an explanation, commenced a murderous assault upon him, beating him into insensibility with beer bottles and cutting his head and face in a frightful manner. The mulatto then fied and Brown was picked up apparently dead. He did not fully regain his senses for a quarter of an hour. Dr. Williams, who dressed the wounds, says Brown narrowly escaped being killed. Walker rooms in the old city hall but has not yet been arrested. hall, but has not yet been arrested.

Pete McAllister's Crime.

Officer Bonfield, of Chicago, arrived in Omaha last evening after Pete McAllister, who was arrested here Monday and held on a telegram from that place. McAllister was under indictment in Chicago several months ago on several charges of burglary, but jumped his ball when Lyman Anderson and Emil Gehrig were convicted of criminal assault and sentenced to eight years each in the penitentiary. May Cottie, a servant in the family of Mr. Perkins, living at No. 3424 Palmer avenue, was the victim, and three men, of whem McAllister is said to have been the leader, participated in the crime. On the night of August 10 May Cottie was walking with her beau near the corner of Thirty-sec-ond and Dashiel streets, when three men who claimed to be policemen frightened the lover away and then brutally used the girl as they willed. Anderson was first arrested and con-victed. Then a man named John W. Knoupp was arrested, but proved his innocence. Gehrig's arrest and sentence followed, and it was while the last named was on trial that McAllister ran away. Though he will be taken to Chicago on the burgiary charge, he will undoubtedly be tried for the more scrious crime of rape. Mr. Honfield will leave for Chicago with his prisoner this morning.

Bound Over For Burglary.

Al Williams, charged with burglary, waived examination when arraigned for trial yesterday and was put under $2,000 bonds to appear before the district court. There seems to be conclusive proof that he is one of the gang connected with the numerous burglaries in connected with the numerous burgiaries in the city on the night of November 1. It is positively known that he is responsible for the entering of Fred Sedebrind's residence, and the abstraction of a watch, pocketbook and other articles. He also has the credit of breaking into Mrs. Goley's residence and stealing a gold watch and two coats from Edward Cane.

Run Over By the Cars.

Thomas Connolly, a driver of one of Jardean's express wagons, met with an accident at the Union Pacific railway crossing at midright last night that may cost him one of his legs, if not his life. Connolly was standing on one of the many tracks, and at the time considerable switching was being done. Failing to observe a car that was being backed down, he was struck and thrown under the whoels which passed over his left leg between the knee and thigh. The unfortunate man's cries of anguish and pain brought to his assistance a number of train employes, who tenderly carried him to the depot and the police patrol wagon was summoned. The seriousness of his injury would not permit of his being conveyed in that vehicle, so a litter was procured and Connolly was moved by careful and considerate hands to St. Joseph's iospital, where he received medical attention.

The German Fair. The interest in the German fair still continues, the attendance last evening being larger than any evening previous. The concert was the great feature last night. The music was furnished mainly by the Union Pacific band and Prof. Steinhauser's orchestra. The Zither club played a couple of selections, which were warmly received, and Miss Bertha Steinhauser sang in her usual charming manner the beautiful solo, "Fleur charming manner the beautiful solo, "Fleur des Alp." The holders of lucky raffie tickets last evening were Mr. R. Pomy, Miss Luiu Peycke, Miss Clara Snyder, Mr. Andreson, Mr. Henry Kummerow and Mr. C. Metz. The voting on the awarding of the gold-headed cane to the most popular brewer continued with great interest. At the close of the evening the votes stood, Metz 407, Krug 361. The fair continues this evening and will end to-morrow night with a grand ball.

Anent the Fair Ground Blaze. The directors of the fair association are still busily engaged figuring up their losses. Before the exact figures can be arrived at they must get the plans and specifications of the floral hall, and as the architect who arew them is absent from the city, it will be some days before the real loss is ascertained. However, enough has been learned to show that the full sum cannot fall much below $18,000. Some of the fair officials have been in consultation with the authorities of the Missouri Pacific railroad, and it is a cer-tainty that if matters cannot be satisfactorily adjusted by arbitration, that a big damage suit will be on. The fair association has not been idle and has such testimony accumulated as seems to conclusively point to the origin of the fire.

A Rattling Mill. Anna Ewing and Mary Duncan, colored damsels, aged fourteen and twelve respec-tively, had a pitched battle on Ninth street yesterday morning, which attracted a motely crowd of two or three hundred people. The girls fought two or three rounds very grace fully, Anna closing one of Mary's eyes, and getting back in good shape on Anna's Finally they clinched, and the calico and wool was flying at a promiseuous rate when an officer happened along and assisted the pugnacious girls to the police court. Owing to their youth, they were allowed to de part with nothing more than a very severe

The sales of stamps during October amounted to $12, 641.24 and of stamped envelopes $3,949.39 This is an increase of about $1,000 over the previous month.

Hit Him With a Billy. John Sullivan, a brakeman on the B. & M. approached William Mullen, a fellow railroader yesterday morning on Tenth street and wanted to borrow $2 Miller couldn't accommodate him, and without any prove cation, Sullivan smushed him in the facwith a billy. Sullivan stood up before Judge Berka and pleaded that he was too drunk to know what he was doing. He got a fine of $5 and costs and fifteen days to sober up in.

Hit By a Cocoanut Machine.

Harry Hensley, a bright little boy, son of Mr. Hensley, of the government headquarters, was painfully injured yesterday at Peycke's, on Farnam street. In taking down a cocoanut machine from a shelf the article slipped and fell, striking him on the back of the head and inflicting a large gash, from which the blood flowed freely.

George Heimrod.

George Heimrod, well known in this city, is expected to arrive in New York to-day or to-morrow. He sailed sailed by the Rugia from Hamburg on the 23rd of last month and will be in Omaha in less than a week His wife and children remain for anothe year in Germany, where the latter are at tending school Mangled By a Dog. The little eight-year-old son of Mr. R. P. Anderson, of Twenty-eighth and Dodge streets, was horribly mangled by a dog be longing to Frank Attman. The animal attacked the boy on the street, threw him down, and tore some very painful wounds in the fleshy part of his legs. The ferocious brute was driven off, and promptly killed by Mr. Attman.

John Bishop enjoyed a bounteous weiner wurst lunch, and when asked by the peddler to liquidate for the same, John, although he had $10 in his inside pocket, refused to settle and battered the physiognomy of the weiner-wurst dealer. Officer Brady arrested the pugnacious fellow.

has threatened time and again to murder her and her whole family. Brennan was gath ered in but in the afternoon he was dismissed Tom Ormsby Dying. Jailor Tom Ormsby is lying in a critical condition at St. Joseph's hospital with inflam-

WAS HE MURDERED. Excitement Over the Disappearance of a Missouri Farmer. Mexico, Mo., Nov. 4 .- There is great exitement among farmers living southwest of this city over the mysterious disappearance of Ira Milligan, one of their number, who stands high in the community and who, it is feared, has been murdered. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Milligan, on approaching his house, saw a tramp trying to get in at a window. saw a tramp trying to get in at a window. The tramp wanted something to eat, and the owner of the house told him there were none of his family at home and that there was nothing cooked. The tramp insisted on going into the house, when Mr. Milligan drove him from his premises. The vagrant resisted, and as a last resort Mr. Milligan landed him in the road by a kick. The tramp left, swearing vengeance. His family being away on a visit, Mr. Milligan went to the residence of a neighbor, a Mr. Kline, half a mile this side, for his supper. To this gentleman and his family Mr. Milligan related the occurrence noted above and the tramp's threat, after which he returned to his home for the night.

Outraged a Child.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 4 .- President Goodwin, of the society of the protection of children from immorality and crime, caused a sensation to-day by reporting to the executive committee that he knew of a girl only thirteen years of age, now at the Children and Nursery hospital, who had a child two or three weeks old. The girl said she had been forced by threats made by the man who employed her to submit to his wishes. He re-fused to divulge any names, but the reporters hunted up the case and found in the young mother a handsome little brunette. She is no more than a child herself. Her name is Emily Blanche young brunette. King, and she is the daughter of Mrs. George Ring, and she is the daughter of Mrs. George Bassett, of this city, by a second husband. When but seven years old she was given in care of Benjamin Gibson, a married man with no children, who lived in Calvert county. She was brought to her mother last June by Gibson's father-in-law, when Mrs. Bassett learned of her condition. The girl, when pressed, said that her employer had forced her to submit. Mr. Bassett went to see the marshal of police, but he had no jurisdiction. It was then placed in the society's hands.

Wild Geese In Dakota. A correspondent from Harrisburg, Dakota Territory, writes: For the in formation and, perhaps, benefit of sports-men I will give a very faint description of what we are daily witnessing of the grand armies of the strong-winged birds whose name heads this letter. Of the variety known further south as wild geese, the "honkers," as they are called. from the peculiar cry when on the wing, we see large numbers. A great many of these nest and breed about the small lakes in our neighborhood, and people often take the eggs and hatch them under domestic birds, either geese or Besides these there are the brant, a smaller, gray goose, and the beautiful snowy geese. Of these last there seems to be no limit to numbers. The air is almost constantly filled with their notes, and one can scarcely look up at the sky-which is wonderfully wide from these highlands-without seeing flocks of these magnificent birds wheeling across it in one direction or another. No mathematics yet invented could enumerate the hosts that have so far appeared. Instantaneous photography is the only method by which any ful representation can be given of their hosts. We rode out, a day or two since, to the lake (Wamhuska, sometimes called Stump lake.) The day was one of the mellow, golden, bracing, thoroughly enjoyable days that October sometimes brings even to you poor dwellers amid the mists and damps of Indiana, but to us she is lavish of such treasures during her entire reign. Al the day and the days before—one cannot tell for how long—flocks on flocks of geese, in countless numbers, were sailing overhead in ranks and clusters of ranks, some dark and some snowy white, with black-tipped wings. They are congregating about our beautiful lake, probably making priminary arrangements for their southern flight. The whole blue vault, which cloud, was lined in every direction by ranks of snowy birds. The afternoon sun shone full upon their brilliant plumsun shone full upon their brilliant plumage, tingeing it a full golden color, than which no bird of paradise could be more dazzling; and the vast numbers on wing of shining, gold-hued hosts made one of the finest sights that one could behold. I never saw anything to equal it. When we came in full view of the it. When we came in full view of the lake, where there are several miles of water in sight, there was another remarkable surprise for us. If the canopy above was full of flying birds the surface of that long stretch of glistening water was a hundred times more so. Along the further shore and far out from land there were thousands of geese floating so close together that one saw no glimmer of water between them.

NEW YORK TO CALIFORNIA. Through Qmaha When Grass Was Growing on the Streets.

The Travels of Mr. B. F. Brown, of Council Bluffs - Omaha Twelve Years Ago-The High Altitude of Colorado, &c., &c.

Colorado, &c., &c.

"Ves," said Mr. B. F. Brown to our reporter, yesterday, at his cosy home in Council illuffs, "I am a New Yorker, but left that state about twelve years ago, I took Horace Greeley's advice and went west. I passed through Omaha, then only a village, with grass growing on the streets: I went to California, worked there a long time, then started east as far as Colorado; I settled at Leadville and was making plenty of money, but I had to leave there. You see, the high altitude of Colorado makes it anything but a paradise for anyone afflicted with a throat disease, and that was the cause of my leaving there. My son, Frankte, was suffering terribly with that awful disease, catarrh, and had it in the throat and head very bad; he would have an awful pain over his eyes. At night, while asleep, the pain would be so bad as to drive the little fellow almost crazy; he would wake up and cry out. Take that horse off my head; he suffered terribly; he would have a trickling from his nose into the back of his throat continually, as he described it, 'just like a stream of water.' I had him treated by some of the best physicians in Colorado, but they could do nothing for him. At last, one of them told me I would have to take him to another climate or it would soon lead to consumption. I took his advice and left Colorado, although I was making plenty of money there. I came east as far as Council Buffs and settled here about one year ago. Some time since I noticed the advertisements of Drs. McCoy and Henry, and told my wife she had better take Frankte over and see them. She took him to their office in the Ramge Block and had him placed on treatment about one month ago, and to-day he is almost as well as ever. He has no more pains in his head, and the back of his throat, and goes to school every day." years ago a poor unfortunate named Foley died in this city. He was without money or friends, and his death hardly created a ripple in the every-day cur-rent of local life. His body was em-balmed by old man Morrison, who was conducting an undertaking shop in the city at the time. No one appeared to claim Foley's cadaver, and, the county refusing to pay the expense of embalming and burial, Morrison kept the body, and it turned to a beautiful mahogany color, and bade fair to last forever. When Morrison moved to El Paso he took the relic of Foley along penates. Not meeting with success at El Paso, the embalmer moved on west-ward to San Diego, taking Foley along. At the latter place a bright thought penetrated Morrison's brain, no less a one than exhibiting Foley's body as a "Mexican mummy, dug from one of the sacred mounds of the Aztecs, and of un-known antiquity: admission 10 cents." known antiquity; admission 10 cents." The result is that Foley is visited by thousands and Morrison is coining St. Paul Globe: "I want to send a message in a great hurry."

FRANKIE BROWN. "How old is Franklie, now?" inquired the scribe, noticing the bright and intelligent little boy who was with his father. "He was twelve years old yesterday," answered Mr. Brown, who resides at No. 1118 Seventh avenue. Council Bluffs, Iowa, who will cheerfully corroborate the above to anyone doubting it.

The following statement regarding Drs. Mc Coy and Henry is made upon good authority. "Since these eminent physicians have been in the west, they have treated and cured over six thous and cases of catarrh and chronic throat and lung troubles, and of these cases 40 per cent had been declared and pronounced incurable."

CATARRH DESCRIBED.

The Symptoms Attending that Disease Which Leads to Consumption.

Which Leads to Consumption.

When catarrh has existed in the head and the upper part of the throat for any length of time—the patient living in a district where people are subject to catairhal affection—and the disease has been left uncured, the catarrh invariably, sometimes slowly, extends down the windpipe and into the bronchial tubes, which tubes convey the air into the different parts of the lungs. The tubes become affected from the swelling and the nucous arising from catarrh, and, in some instances, become plugged up, so that the air cannot get in as freely as it should. Shortness of breath fedlows, and the patient breathes with labor and didiculty.

In either case there is a sound of crackling and wheezing inside the chest, At this stage of the disease the breathing is usually more rapid than when in health. The patient has also hot dashes over his body.

The pain which accompanies this condition is of a dull character, felt in the chest, behind the breast bone or under the shoulder blade. The pain may come and go—last a few days and then be absent for several others. The cough that occurs in the first stages of branchial catarrh is dry, comes on at intervals, hacking in character, and is usually most troublesome in the morning on rising, or going to bed at night, and it may be in the first evidence of the disease extending into the lungs.

Sometimes there are fits of coughing induced by the tough nucus so violent as to cause vomiting. Later on the mucus that is raised is found to contain small particles of yellow matter, which indicates that the small tubes in the lungs are now affected. With this there are often streaks of blood mixed with the mucus. In some cases small masses of cheesy substance are spit up, which, when pressed between the fingers, emit a bad odor. In other cases particles of a hard, chally nature are spit up. The raising of cheesy or chalky lumps indicates serious mischief at work in the lungs.

In some cases catarrh will extend into the lungs in a few weeks; in other cases it may be When catarrh has existed in the head and the to see a reporter. SNEEZING CATARRH. What It Means, How It Acts, and

What It Is. You sneeze when you get up in the morning you try to sneeze your nose off every time you are exposed to the least draf tof air. You have a fullness over the front of the forehead, and the nose feels as if there was a plug in each nostril, which you cannot dislodge. You blow your nose until your ears crack, but it don't do any good, and the only result is that you succeed in getting up a very red nose, and you so irritate the lining membrane of that organ that you are unable to breathe through it at all. This is a correct and not overdrawn picture of an acute attack of catarrh, or "Sneezing Catarrh," as it is called.

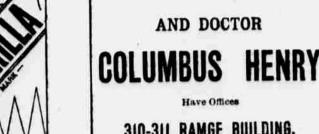

tack of catarrh, or "Sneezing Catarrh," as it is called.

Now, what does this condition indicate? First a cold that causes mucus to be poured out by the glands in the nose; then those diseased glands are attacked by swarms of little germs—the catarrh germ—that float in the air in a locality where the disease is prevalent. These animalculae, in their efforts to find a lodgment, irritate the sensitive membrane liming of the nose and nature undertakes to rid herself of them by producing a fit of sneezing.

When the nose becomes filled with thickened diseased mucus the natural channels for the introduction of air into the lungs is interfered with, and the person so affected must breathe through the mouth, and by such means the throat becomes parched and dry, snoring is produced, and the catarrhal disease gains ready access to the throat find lungs.
