Corporations Under Fire.

The Lincoln city council, sitting as a board of equalization, has turned its attention to the complaint of the Commercial club against the assessment of the Lincoln Gas and Electric company, in which the club asks for an increase of the assessed valuation of the company's property from $300,000 to $2,500,000. The board was in session both morning and afternoon today listening to testimony in the case.

Tax Commissioner Aitken was questioned for nearly two hours during the morning session as to how he determined the valuation. He received two schedules of the company's property. They were signed by General Manager Powers and came to his office by mail. One placed the personal assessment at $175,000 and the realty at $25,000. Mr. Aitken said he added $125,000 to the former and raised the realty to $52,-600. In fixing the valuation he considered the capital stock, indebtedness and frandid not value the franchise separately or apart from the other prop-

Representatives of the company testified that its stock is valueless and that its bonds have but a speculative value. Each side of the controversy is represented by an array of attorneys. The hear ing will be resumed Monday morning and will likely continue several days. Another complaint is pending against the Lincoln Traction company and will be taken up after the Gas company case is dis-

BADLY INJURED IN A ROW J. M. Francke Severely Beaten by Police Officer in Nebraska City.

NEBRASKA CITY, June 27 .- (Special relegram.)-There was a row at the Mattes Brewing company's garden last night and because of a general misunderstanding one man was badly injured.

A large crowd was attracted to the ground by the band concert, and everything was quiet and orderly until nearly 11 o'clock, when three young men, H. Hall, hands. F. Foster and J. M. Francke, who have been here representing a Topeka nursery, began scuffling among themselves. George Thomas, a special policeman on duty in the garden, came up and told them they would have to desist. They then began to argue the matter with Thomas.

Francke, who was standing to one side, came up and demanded to know what Thomas had to do with it. Without showing his authority the officer pushed Francke away and told him he wanted no interference from him. A fight ensued, in which the officer appears to have got the worst He finally pulled a gun and struck Francke three times on the head, knocking him down. He then called for help and started to take him to jail.

When about two blocks from the garden Francke's strength gave out and he fell to the ground. He was then turned over to his friends, who called a back and had him taken to a hotel. A physician was called and dressed the wounds for the injured He was only semi-conscious during the night and at times he was attacked by severe convulsions. Today he is resting easier and it is thought that he will come around all right. Had the officer known that the men were but fooling, or had they known that he was an officer, the trouble would have been avoided. Francke's father was telegraphed for and will probably be here tonight.
