LOCAL BREVITIES.

A meeting of the Odd-Fellows in the city and especially the degree team is desired at the hall this evening for important business.

Mrs. C. A. Bergstresser has been a crucial sufferer for a week past with beating ears which came to a head and afforded her some relief to-day by breaking.

Ethel, aged 8 years, eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. David O. Williams, on the Moody county line, died on the 11th inst. of hip disease from which she had been suffering for over a year.

Clyde M. Thompson, of Clark's Mills, N. Y., a graduate of Woodcock's Horological school, arrived on the train from the east and will occupy the position of jeweler in Frank Smith's establishment.

Alonzo Pirsch, 19 years of age and only son of John Pirsch, living five miles southwest of Oldham, in this county, was kicked in the head by a stallion Saturday night and lived only long enough to be carried into the house.

Henry Stott who recently sold his house on the street northeast of town will commence building anew this week on a lot next east of Geo. Van Lanningham's house on the north side of the motor line just east of the bridge.

Ed. Soloski, a lad of 18 years, living on a farm near the La Belle ranche, went out hunting yesterday, when in loading his gun a cartridge exploded blowing a charge of powder into his face and eyes. The left eye is badly injured, but the doctor has hopes it will recover.

Subscribers to series "C" in the building and loan association should at once pay in their first installment, that a loan can be made at the first regular meeting and the series promptly launched. Delinquents are not doing justice by those who have paid in a month ago. Please pay up as soon as possible.

Gov. Sheldon arrived Saturday evening by train from Lake Preston, and joined Mrs. Sheldon, who came down on the train the Governor missed, in a visit to Dr. A. E. Clough and family. He returned this afternoon by the west train to Pierre. Mrs. Sheldon returned to her home in Day county.

J. R. Lowe, president of the state Farmers Alliance was in town to-day, making arrangements for the forthcoming annual meeting of the alliance which meets here June 27. Among the prominent speakers of that occasion will be Paul Vandervoort, of Kansas, commander in chief of the Industrial Legion, H. L. Loucks, president of the National Alliance and E. W. Fish editor of the Great West, St. Paul. A three day's session will be held and between 300 and 400 delegates and alliance men will be present. The local committee has issued a call for a meeting next week to make preliminary arrangements for the gathering.

Quite a delegation of Madisonians departed for Sioux Falls to-day to attend the grand lodges of Rebekahs and Odd-Fellows. Of Rebekahs, Mrs. E. L. Clark and Mrs. G. P. Borland were delegates from the local to the grand lodge; Mrs. C. A. Alexander is guardian of the grand lodge and visiting representatives were Mrs. Marquart, Mrs. Marsland and Mrs. Frank Scott. Of the Odd-Fellows, F. R. Van Slyke is representative of the local branch to the grand lodge, Peter Marquart is guardian of the latter body and Chas. Blackstone accompanied them. Tomorrow the degree team, which will enter the competitive prize drill, will depart. The team consists of F. R. Van Slyke, L. J. Corcoran, Peter Marquart, G. P. Borland, Pat. Tierney, Chas. Blackstone, Fred Fisher, B. A. Davis, Robt. Lee, Elwin Hart, Adolph Schmidt, Geo. Vedder, Ed. Rafferty, Louis De Celle, Martin Zuber, Will Curtis, R. B. Jones and John Pfister. The boys are drilled almost to perfection and expect to make a praiseworthy effort for the silver cup.

FROM THE PULPITS.

God's Special Providence Proclaimed—Poor Beds for Body and Soul—Inspiration in the Suffering, Labor and Self-Denial of Jesus Christ.

M. E. CHURCH.

Morning subject, "Particular providence." Text. Rom. 8-28.

The term "providence" is theological rather than scriptural. It occurs but once in the scripture. It means care government, administration, superintendence. Some theologians have divided providence into three parts; general, special and particular.

1. There are many other proof texts of God's special interest and care. (a) He thinks of us. David said "for I am poor and needy, yet the Lord thinketh upon me." (b) His eye is upon us. "The eyes of the Lord run to and fro and to show himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him." (c) His ear is open to us. "His ears are open unto their (the righteous) prayers." (d) He pities us. "Like as a father pitieth his children etc." (e) He guides. "I will guide thee with mine eye." (f) He provides. "Behold the fowls of the air * * yet your heavenly father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?"

2. Examples of God's particular providence are not wanting. Abraham, Joseph, Moses, David, Paul are only a few. But the age of miracles has not passed. God yet "moves in a mysterious way, his wonders to perform." Luther, Bunyon, Wesley, Spurgeon, afford modern examples.

Thousands of unknown lowly could tell of remarkable deliverances. To be kept from danger, is as great a privilege as to be kept in danger. If your lot seems to be cast in the midst of dark providences, look at it as St. Ignatius, who, when he met the Numidian lion in the arena, said, "I am God's grain; I must be ground between the teeth of lions to make God's bread."

What the king of Portugal called the cape of Good Hope, his mariners had first named the cape of Storms in memory of the adversities they encountered there. So our trials and adversities are quite sure to prove the cape of Good Hope in our passage to richer and deeper things of God. "They afterwards yield the peaceable fruits of righteousness to those who are exercised thereby."

3. If God is such a care taker of our interests, what implicit faith we should have in him, what calm resignation in the darkest hour; how we should "Hold still" in persecution and trial; what need of waiting upon him for guidance, and how mindful we should be of the "little things."

BAPTIST CHURCH.

"Poor comfort."

Isiah 28:20—"For the bed is shorter than a man can stretch himself upon it, and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it."

Beds are articles of furniture to secure comfort and rest for the weary. They vary with degrees of civilization, climate, dwellings and national characteristics. Beds of different peoples were described, and interesting personal experiences in an uncomfortable bed were given, all tending to make the figure of the text more expressive.

Attention was then called to the fact that while men give much thought and time to making comfortable beds and coverings for their bodies, they often neglect entirely or make miserable and uncomfortable provision for rest and comfort of their immortal souls, i. e.,

1. Many people are making a bed of philanthropy with a covering of benevolence.

2. Others make a bed of honesty with a covering of business integrity.

3. Still others make a bed of morality with a covering of friendliness to religion.

4. And lastly, some are making a bed of the church of God with a covering of religious profession.

In each case the bed was examined and measured and found too short and the covering too narrow for the sin burdened soul in the cold blasts of the judgment during the unending night of eternity. The only bed big enough, then, will be the unspeakable love of God, resting on his promises; the only covering wide enough the spotless robe of Jesus' immaculate righteousness woven into the woof of your repentance and faith and loving obedience.

Earnestness, zeal, good intentions and desires, benevolence, and good works are good in themselves and in their places, but not as a means of repose and comfort for the weary, sin burdened soul. Nothing will do but the finished work of Christ. Resting on this sure basis, no fears alarm, no shame confuses, no discomfort disturbs; but there is a rest, refreshment, solace.

"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord, is laid for your faith in His excellent Word. What more can He say than to you He hath said, You who unto Jesus for refuge have fled.

The soul that on Jesus hath leaned for repose, He will not, He will not desert to its foe; That soul, tho' all hell should endeavor to shake, He'll never, no never, no never forsake."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Text: Heb. 12:2, 3.

The christian race will become tedious and exhausting to all who do not refresh and strengthen themselves in the manner prescribed in the text. Take inspiration from Him who has heroically endured unto the end. Jesus is at once our companion, our example, our strength along the journey of life. We are to look to (believe in) Him. "Who endured the cross, despising the shame and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." We are also to "consider him who endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest we be weary and faint in our minds," let us therefore, looking to (believing in) Him consider what Jesus endured and his motives for so doing.

1. Jesus endured the cross. Primarily this refers to the sufferings borne by Him when nailed by the Roman soldiers to the cross of wood, but in general we may apply it to all the humiliation, shame and torture of soul and body incident to the Incarnation, the life and death of the son of God.

In leaving heaven He emptied himself of that glory which he had "with the father before the world was."

His was a busy, industrious life. "Alas a simple, unostentatious life. His days were filled with works of kindness, helpfulness; often He was weary and worn with labor and care. To many a sick one He brought healing and health, to many a sad one gladness and joy, He crowned earthly poverty with the wealth of everlasting possessions.

Moreover, he was patient, forgiving, magnanimous. To Herod's mockeries He replied not a word; and He paid no attention to the insults heaped upon him by the shouting, heartless rabble. To the inquisitive, designing, malicious Pharisees He replied with a dignity and authority that, while it silenced their cavilings, increased their hatred of one so pure, so patient and so noble. And finally He faced what He al along had seen to be inevitable, the bearing of the burden of the guilt of the world by the shameful death of the cross.

2. The motives for all this? Not self-glorification. Far from it. His object was to support the authority of His father's government, open a way for man's reconciliation to God and save a lost world. To do this was His "joy." Such heroism, patience, self-sacrifice, devotion to a noble aim should be an example and inspiration. Are we suffering for others? So did Jesus. Are we bearing pain and misunderstanding patiently? So did Jesus. Is our lot a hard one? But we have not yet resisted unto blood in our strife with sin and our warfare against the world and the flesh as did the Son of God. Drink, therefore, deep draughts of strength and hope by meditating upon the matchless example of Jesus Christ, "who was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." All His suffering was borne that each of us might take new heart and "run with patience the race set before us."
