FRESH INSPIRATION.

Napoleon and His Attitude Toward coleon understood human nature.

He recognised the great truth, "As a man thinketh in his heart so is be," and knew how to apply it not only to himself and his own ambitious projects, but to other men as well. More-over, he knew precisely the right mo-ment to apply it to quicken the spark of divine energy which smillders in every man, although the askes of fa-tigue and failure may cover its light

A French soldier carried a dispatch to Napoleon. Just as he delivered it into the hands of the emperor his apent horse dropped dead. Napoleon wrote an answer to the dispatch, then, dismounting from his own horse, he handed the bridle to the soldier.

"Take this horse and ride back, comrade," he said.

"Nay, sire," stammered the soldier, gazing at the blooded horse and its trappings, "It is too magnificent and grand for me, a common soldier."
"The time common soldier."

"Take it!" commanded Napoleon. There is nothing too grand and mag-ifficent for a soldier of France." The soldier mounted and rode on his perilous business, ready and willing, and Napoleon's words, repeat-ed through the ranks and columns of ed through the range and commanded the his army, gave to his tired through fresh inspiration and energy. "Nothing too grand and magnificent for a soldier of France" they said, and the thought that they were worthy of the best inspired them to the mighty deeds which followed.

WIFELY ORDERS.

Two Mon Obeyed Them, but the Third Man Balked.

"Three men sat rather late at the club one night," said the man who is club one night," said the man who is responsible for the story. "As they were separating they discussed a little nervously the receptions that awaited them at their wives' hands and agreed that he who didn't do what his wife told him on getting home should have to treat the others to a turkey dinner. The first man after reaching his house stumbled about the dark bedroom till he kicked the cat. The cut squalled, and the man's wife, raising her head and the man's wife, raising ber head from the pillow, mouned, Well, go on; from the pillow, monted, 'Weil, go on; kill the poor cat and have done with it.' The man frowned and muttered to himself, 'It is a case of kill the cat or pay for the dinner.' Bo he killed the

"The second man on his arrival could "The second man on his arrival could not find any matches. As he looked for some in the drawing room he bumped against the piano, and his wife complained, 'Why don't you break the piano, careless?' Determined not to lose his bet, the man got a hatchet, and the sound of crashing blows soon filled the house.

"The third man, getting home, stumbled on the way upstairs. His wife screamed angrily, 'Go on, fall downstairs and break your neck, do?' 'Not me,' said the third man after a moment's thought. 'I'll pay for the turkey dinner.' "—Chicago News.

One day as Mr. and Mrs. Lathers were leaving the store Mr. Stewart accounted them at the door.

"I hope, Mrs. Lathers, you have found what you want," he said.

"No, Mr. Stewart," she replied. "I want a very plain brussels carpet for a small library, a light color with a small blue figure. You have a great variety, but nothing just like that."

"I am quits sure we have that exact description," he said, and, turning to a clerk, added: "Ge to the third floor and get out from the last invoice of Kismath Falls, Oregon.

Consider the Birds of the Air. An eminent ornithologist calls atten-tion to the fact that a crane can travel through the air a thousand miles a day without flapping its wings, but by merely keeping them stretched and ad-justed to the prevailing breeses. A hawk can stay in the air for days and weeks, moving with its wings motion-less. It is the same with the gulls and numerous other winged creatures.
