The Bungalow Home

— GEORGE M. POST—ARCHITECT.—

The above plan is of a very tasty little Bungalow, and anyone having a home built on this plan would surely be pleased. It has plenty of floor space, large, pleasant rooms and windows enough to make it light and cheery; a large, commodious porch clear across the front of the house adds comfort and beauty to it. Everything modern and right up-to-date, a home to be desired and built, for a home of your own is a joy always and a constant pleasure in the planning, selecting and beautifying of that home. Select the site best suited to your means, then the plans and the building, and in a hundred ways your own individual taste and original ideas can be brought out.

just the right number of closets and window seats, built in furniture and the cheery fireplace, and all the pleasure of selecting the colors for the painting and staining, and the wall paper for each all is finished and you can sit make a Home, whether it be a mansion or a cottage, it is the love and thought put into it. Then comes the joy of furnishing, and so on until all is finished that you can sit down before that cheery fireplace and dream thoughts of "Home, Sweet Home, There's no Place Like Home."

The large veranda, 14 feet wide, extends clear across the front and returns around the side, forming a most convenient arrangement for dining in the open. The underpinning, walls and piers of veranda are shown on cobble stones, but just as interesting would be the use of tapestry brick. The exterior walls above underpinning are of cement plaster in "rough cast." Other good features are too numerous to mention, so are left to the imagination.

Hand embroideries give the exquisite finishing touch to the home, and where worked by the mistress herself lend individuality, gained in no other way.

THAT BUNGALOW

Almost the first thing you notice about a home or a bungalow is the Front Door. It may make or mar a house. Now we have just the right door and window to give tone and individuality to that bungalow, and our long experience has given us many ideas which we can carry out to your entire satisfaction.

Let us give you an estimate on that home.

Building

The Desire is Universal

Every one almost expects to some day own a home of their own, but just so long as you continue to pay rent you'll never have it. Why not consult us on our easy payment plan. We furnish you half the money, and in five years it is yours, and you haven't paid a dollar more than what you would have paid in rent; it is the best saving bank you can put your money into, and the returns the most satisfactory. Statistics show that 95 per cent of such loans are paid out, while 95 per cent of the straight loans are never paid, any more than the interest, and when the mortgage is due you're just as hard up as when you began. See us today. We write insurance, lines.

FIREPLACE

That will throw out heat, and smoke at the top of the chimney. It is the delight of every home, yet they are expensive, unless you get the man that makes his own brick to build them. Brick costs money these days, but I have my own yard, therefore can give a reasonable figure, and the work is guaranteed.
